Charming Mommy of adorable triplets Chapter 2357

Chapter 2357

However, they couldn't stop the live broadcast

When they go back to the old mansion, Hannah and Cameron were having a great time chatting. They had gotten close when Cameron asked her, "What's going on between Zoey and Daisie?"

Hannah clicked her tongue and replied, "What else? They were fighting for the same role, but she didn't get it because the director preferred Daisie."

Going after the same character was very common in the industry.

Many artists had 'feuds' because of this, but they weren't doing it as obviously as Zoey. They would just do it on the down low.

Cameron held her chin. "She's so salty. It's just a role."

"Fighting for a role in the industry meant they were fighting for a job. It's as if you wanted to get a role, and everyone thought that it would go to you, but not only did you not end up with it, but you were also revealed to be a supporting one.

"Everyone in the industry wants their next role to propel them to stardom and rake in money. No one would be happy if they lost the role."

Cameron turned to see Daisie, who was standing next to Helios. "She's pretty lucky, then.

"She's the princess of the Goldmann family. The family would be willing to provide her with any resources she needs. Everyone else might need to work for decades to get their break, so she really is quite lucky when it comes to this."

Hannah smiled after lamenting. "Luck! to think the same way, but after working with her for the past few years, I realized that the Goldmanns never got involved with her career. If Daisie wanted to be famous, she could simply hook up with Royal Crown. She would have been at the top even sooner if she had worked with her own company."

Daisie wasn't considered the best in the industry, but she had a stable standing as an Actor with her title of Best Actress.

To the elites, she was just the daughter of an investor.

A lot of celebrities wanted to be actors and stars at the same time, but all Daisie wanted was to act.

One thing that Hannah knew that others didn't was that she wasn't paid as well as the top actors.

Helios was paid almost $15,000,000 when he was alive and was the highest-paid actor. Daisie was paid at most $700,000. That was a huge difference.

That was why Hannah didn't mind too much about Daisie asking her to apologize in public in the past. She felt that it was the right thing to do.

Soon after the director and the crew members got back, Helios went to ask about Zoey.

The director said, "Zoey pulled out from the show, but it was my fault. I didn't know that she was so extreme."

Helios smiled. "She's still young. Once she gains more experience, she will understand the industry's rules better."

The filming lasted a week before it finally came to an end.

Zoey was criticized badly because of her performance on the show.

At the same time, the unmanned automatic sugarcane harvester that Daisie promoted became so popular they were sold out. Even the posters were switched to those with Daisie's endorsement.

All the other guests on the show had a surge of new fans, especially Cameron and Waylon. People started requesting for them to go on talk shows.

When they returned to Bassburgh, it was Charm's one-month birthday celebration.

Charm's party was held at the Goldmann mansion. It was an open-air party with adorable decorations in pastel colors. The attendees were clients and close friends of the Goldmanns.

Chapter 2358

Nolan, Maisie, and Nicholas were greeting the guests. Titus cradled Charm while Yael and Christina were playing with her.

"Look at that. The second son started the baby training."

Thomas Clifford walked down the stairs along with Jackie and Violet.

Titus smiled. "Because he's my great-grandson."

Thomas sighed. "Time flies. I'm actually surprised that you're still around."

Titus glared at him. "Are you cursing me, you old fart?"

Thomas was used to the bickering. "Even Hernandez is still around. I guess it's not your turn yet."

Maisie and Nolan walked over. "Jackie, Violet."

Violet smiled and walked to Maisie. "It's been a while."

Maisie and Violet started catching up while Nolan and Jackie stood where they were. "Your son isn't here?"

Jackie chuckled. "Not worried that he might ruin your party?"

The youngest Clifford was very cheerful because Thomas spoiled him. When children's big eyes were still being protected and playing with toys, he was already on trees poking at bee hives.

Jackie had once brought him to a classmate's party, and that kid made the birthday boy cry over a cake. The present he had brought was a trick box.

Jackie almost never brought him to parties after that to avoid embarrassment.

Nolan slowly spiced on his wine while looking over at Titus. "You can try letting my grandfather take care of your kid."

Jackie smirked. "Forget it. I'm afraid that I might lose my son..."

Meanwhile, Maisie, Barbara, and Violet chatted until Colton walked in with Freja.

Barbara suddenly smiled. "I'm so jealous of you, Maisie."

Maisie asked, "Why?"

Barbara and Violet looked at each other. "Because you're a mother-in-law at a young age, and now you're a grandmother too. I think we're only going to be mothers-in-law in our 50s or 60s and grandmothers when we turn 70."

Maisie chuckled. "I guess it's because I met Nolan too soon."

Violet looked around. "Is Ryleigh not here yet?"

Barbara swirled her wine around. "She's living in Gibsons with Louis, so I don't think she's coming back. Even if she misses this party, there are weddings."

There were three children that hadn't had their weddings yet.

At the mention of weddings, Violet looked at Maisie. "Have all your three children registered for their marriage?"

Maisie sighed. "Only Daisie and Nolly are sealed. Waylon and Cameron are registered, but I'm not sure what's going on with them. Colton proposed to Freja, but they're not officially married yet."

Violet and Barbara were shocked. "What?"

Freja stood next to Colton. She didn't want to a big party like this, having to meet guests of the Goldmanns who came to congratulate them.

Colton put his arm around her waist. "Are you tired?"

She shook her head and smiled.

"Is your family not attending?" asked someone.

When Freja heard it, she wrapped her hand tightly around the wineglass and didn't speak.

Both sides of the family should have been at the party, but only the Goldmanns were there.

The man who asked was an owner of a building material distribution company. Mr. Weatherby. He probably never met anyone from Freja's side and was saying that there was nothing special about her. She was only able to marry a Goldmann because of her beauty.

Chapter 2359

The Goldmanns were more than any other affluent family in Bassburgh. Everyone would be curious about the person who married into the family if they were somebody. How could Freja's family be absent?

Everyone's expressions changed.

Anyone who paid attention to the news would know why. Those who didn't might talk about it.

Mr. Weatherby didn't notice how the atmosphere changed and pressed on upon seeing how Freja didn't reply. "Did something important come up, and your family couldn't come because of that? How could they miss a party so important? Even if your relatives were busy, your parents should be here."

Freja pressed her lips together and was going to speak when Colton held her hand and calmly said, "I'm glad everyone is able to attend my daughter's party. My wife is married to me and is now a Goldmann. If you can't even respect her, we shouldn't have any more dealings in the future. Don't you think so, Mr. Weatherby?"

Mr. Weatherby wasn't expecting Colton to be so protective of his wife. He was from a serious family and had to be careful with what he said. He only thought the woman was marrying up and wasn't respected in the family.

Even when he was given a warning in public, he had to let it go because it was against a Goldmann.

Colton guided Freja away.

Freja turned to look at him. Her heart warmed when she remembered how he protected her. Thank you."

"There's no need. I just don't like the way they are."

They would always find the person they thought was weak and step on them. He looked down. on people like that.

Nicholas asked Colton to go over, so he said to Freja, "Wait here. I'll be back."

She nodded and stood alone among the crowd as he walked away.

The more Mr. Weatherby thought about it, the angrier he got, so he drank a glass too many. When he saw Freja standing alone and that Colton wasn't around, he had to confront her.

She was a woman who gave birth before even getting married. He wouldn't believe that the Goldmanns, aside from Colton, would respect a woman with no background.

Freja looked at her watch and thought that Daisie and the rest would be there soon.

"Mrs. Goldmann?"

Freja turned around, and it was Mr. Weatherby again.

She didn't want to make it a big issue because it was an important occasion, so she nodded politely. "Yes, Mr. Weatherby?"

He smiled. "I shouldn't have said that just now. I hope you forgive me."

1/2

Freja thought he was apologizing, so she said, "Don't worry. I didn't take it to heart."

"Good. But you look really young, around 23 or 24?" Mr. Weatherby looked at her from head to toe with bad intentions. "That's how you kept your figure after giving birth."

Freja was offended, so she narrowed her eyes. "I'm going to walk away if there's nothing important, Mr. Weatherby."

She was going to leave when he stood in front of her. "Where's the fire? I'm here to apologize."

After that, he passed Freja a glass of wine. "I'm showing respect, so you should show some too. Drink with me!" ►

Freja thought it was just a drink, so she nodded and took the glass from him.

Chapter 2360

No one expected Mr. Weatherby to suddenly grab Freja's hand and rub it !

Freja pulled her hand back but lost her balance, the glass dropped to the ground, a and the noise startled everyone's attention.

Mr. Weatherby took his chance and started to pretend that she was the problem. "Mrs. Goldmann, I've apologized, so even if you don't want to f orgive me, there's no need to act this. way."

Freja clenched her jaw. "You're not apologizing. You're-"

"Look at this woman. She's not even married into the family yet, but she' s already throwing tantrums. I apologized to her, but she pushed the gla ss away."

He didn't give Freja a chance to speak and kept adding fuel to the fire. He was going to push Freja into a corner.

Freja balled up her fist. She didn't want to start anything at her daughte r's party, but she was no fool to be bullied.

Mr. Weatherby saw that she wasn't fighting back and guessed that she didn't have the guts to do it. If she said he molested her, he would just s ay she tried to seduce him.

Maisie walked out from the crowd. "What's going on?"

Mr. Weatherby immediately walked toward her to complain. "Mrs. Gold mann, look at what happened. Not only did your daughter-in-law reject my apology but she also dropped the wine glass I handed to h er away. It's a happy occasion that you're celebrating today, and I don't want to make a scene, but what is the meaning of this?"

Nolan noticed something was happening, so he walked over and heard Mr. Weatherby point. out what Freja did wrong to Maisie.

Mr. Weatherby sounded confident and said that he was treated badly. Ev eryone who didn't see what happened thought Freja had done what he said she did.

Freja clenched her jaw but relaxed a moment later. "I would accept you r apology, but why did you have to grab my hand?"

Mr. Weatherby froze. He didn't expect her to tell the truth!

Everyone gasped, and Maisie's face dropped.

"Nonsense, I didn't grab your hand!" he continued. "Please don't accuse me like this. You're Coleman Goldmann's wife. How could you say such a thing? I think it's more like you who were trying to seduce me."

Saying that at a party held by the Goldmanns meant that he was challen ging them.

Any family would be upset if this happened to them.

Mr. Weatherby thought he knew how they would react.

No matter how nice the daughter- in- law was, all the family members would just start avoiding her if she cau sed a scene.

Freja looked at him and was already calmer than she was a minute ago. She smirked. "Am? Seducing you? You're old enough to be my father. Why would I give up on the handsome man I'm with to seduce an old fart like you? You're nothing compared to my h usband. Do you think you can get your way just because my family isn't here to help me?"

Mr. Weatherby turned pale. He never expected her to be such a strong character.

After what she said, everyone could tell who was the one who was lying without having to think twice.

Maisie was going to speak, but Nolan stopped her.

Colton was already standing behind Mr. Weatherby, and he had never ev erything. His eyes were chillingly cold.

Created in Deepseek Writer