"You will always be my home."

Druig and Gaia found each other every reset of their lifetime. They never knew of the billions of years they shared with each other before they arrived on Olympia.

From uncaught staring at each other to stolen glances to undying love for one another.

Gaia never felt her heart beat so fast, she could swear he could hear it as he walked by.

From the pinking of the embarrassed cheeks to Gaia's beautiful grin that Druig would crookedly smile to.

Smiles and blushing only made their love blossom quicker

The love was always there is what Ajak always believed.

They were cosmic soulmates made for each other.

But, when Gaia turns into the one that got away will Druig crumble under the lack of Gaia's love?

Druig only knew that Gaia was the most beautiful being he'd ever seen.

The kindest soul.

Bravest and charismatic.

She was someone he thought he could never have. It didn't matter how long she was in his life, even if he wanted billions on billions of years staring at the way her cheeks dimple when she smiles or the way her smile projected warmth and welcome to anyone it reached.

What happens when billions of centuries of romance is revealed to Gaia a er her mind was reset incorrectly by the celestials this time around?

Will knowing the outcome of each and every lifetime they shared destroy Gaia from within?

Druig reuniting with the ' one that got away'leccades later cause a ripple through his tough exterior leaving him vulnerable from attacks from within the group?

Will he be able to put his feelings aside for the better good of earth?

Strong language will be used, violence and swearing and some sexual content will be throughout the book
