Chapter 848 Leave Him Be

“Sam?” Steven’s eyes went wide in disbelief when he saw Samuel stepping out from behind Luna.

His firm chest and abdominal muscles could be seen as he slowly buttoned up the shirt that was loosely draped over his shoulders.

What the... Why are these two... I mean, it’s fine for Sam to come see Luna, but why would he be shirtless in her house? Also, Luna got really nervous when I simply wanted to come inside for a bit. Was she afraid of me seeing something I shouldn’t?

With that in mind, Steven questioned him anxiously, “Sam, what are you doing here?”

“I have my reasons for coming over to see her. Just because you’re my brother doesn’t mean I have to report everything to you, you know?” Samuel replied with an icy-cold expression.

Steven shifted his gaze between them as he protested, “But you’re shirtless in her house, Sam! Don’t you think you should at least explain yourself? This could really give others the wrong idea!”

He was determined to have Samuel provide him a satisfactory explanation no matter what.

Unsure of what to say, Luna got so nervous that her knuckles turned white on the spot.

Samuel narrowed his eyes and said, “Both Luna and I are adults. We’re capable of taking responsibility for our actions, so there’s no need to explain anything.”

Steven felt like his heart was being smashed to pieces by a sledgehammer as he stared at Samuel.

“What if it wasn’t me who showed up today? What if it was Natalie instead? Would you have said the same thing to her?” he asked with a sad look on his face.

There was a hint of darkness in Samuel’s eyes when he heard that, but it was gone in an instant.

“Yes, I would’ve told her the exact same thing,” he replied coldly.

Steven stepped forward and grabbed him by the collar as he shouted, “What the heck has gotten into you, Sam? I thought you liked Natalie! How could you do this to her?”

“Who I like is none of your business. What, are you going to hit me now?” Samuel replied while brushing Steven’s hands off.

“You...”

Steven glared at him furiously with reddened eyes as he continued, “I’ve always been proud to have you as my brother, Sam. This is the first time I’ve been so disappointed in you!”

“Okay,” Samuel mumbled nonchalantly without a care in the world.

Steven was so upset that he turned around and left without saying anything further.

Samuel waited until he had closed the door behind him before turning toward Luna, who still had hesitation written all over her face. “Luna, continue the treatment.”

“But... Mr. Steven seems to have gotten the wrong idea about our relationship...” Luna protested with her eyes red.

I didn’t get to say much earlier, but I clearly noticed the look of pain and defeat on Steven’s face. I came to Dellmoor all by myself, so Steven was the only person keeping me company this whole time. On top of that, I can tell that he has feelings for me. I bet he must think I’m a promiscuous woman now that he has caught me and Samuel in such an intimate situation, huh?

Samuel took his shirt back off as he said, “Leave him be. I told you, I need to keep my poisoning a secret. No one else can find out about this. You know my condition best. If I don’t find a way to suppress the poison, I’ll only have about six months left before I need to be put on life support. If I can find a way to cure myself of this poisoning, then I will compensate them for the damage I’ve done. If not, then... Maybe leaving them like this isn’t so bad after all.”

Being his personal doctor, Luna was able to understand the internal struggle he had to go through when making this decision.

“What about Ms. Nichols? What do you plan on doing about her?” she asked curiously.

Samuel’s eyes watered up slightly as he replied with a wry smile, “If six months is all I have left, then I will let her go. Someday, I won’t even have control over my bladder and bowels, and I would rather die than let her see me in that state.”

Chapter 849 What Has Gotten Into You

As Kenneth wasn’t getting any younger, Natalie would examine his health often.

“The weather may have started to warm up lately, but your body needs time to slowly adjust. I’ll prescribe you some medication to help with that, so make sure you take them on time, okay?” Natalie said with a smile after taking his pulse.

“Thank you so much, Natalie!”

“Don’t mention it, Grandpa. Honestly, you really don’t have to keep thanking me for every little thing,” Natalie replied.

Kenneth sipped on his tea and exclaimed with a sigh, “Sometimes, I still dream of how I used to think Yara was my savior, and it reminds me of how foolish I used to be. Fortunately, we were able to correct that mistake and make things right before it was too late. I’m very glad to have found my real savior in time before I make even more irreversible mistakes!”

“We should just let bygones be bygones, Grandpa. Right now, I’m satisfied with having Franklin, Sophia, Xavian, Clayton, and Yumi by my side,” Natalie replied.

“You sure are incredibly mature despite your young age, Natalie!” Kenneth exclaimed while staring at her in admiration.

The more I know her, the more I am able to see her merits... Our family truly is blessed to have her as Samuel’s wife and as a mother for the kids!

After leaving the guesthouse, Steven’s mind was in a mess as he made a trip to the Bowers manor.

He tensed up in surprise when he got there and saw Natalie inside. “You... W-What are you doing here?”

“Steven! How could you be so rude to Natalie? Her presence is very much welcomed here! Are you trying to kick her out in front of me?” Kenneth scolded him angrily while putting his teacup down.

“I’m sorry, Grandpa. That’s not what I meant.” Steven glanced nervously at Natalie as he continued, “I-I just wasn’t expecting to see her here, that’s all!”

He had yet to regain his composure after seeing Samuel shirtless at Luna’s place earlier, so bumping into Natalie immediately after nearly drove him insane.

Natalie shot him a glance and asked with a faint smile, “What’s wrong, Steven? Why are you acting like you’ve just seen a ghost? Do I really look that scary to you?”

Steven rubbed his nose awkwardly as he explained, “O-Of course not! I was just a little surprised, that’s all! You and Grandpa are probably just overthinking things! Besides, I really love having you as a sister-in-law, so why would I not welcome you here?”

Kenneth stroked his beard as he said, "I suppose it is time for you and Samuel to plan your wedding."

Natalie pursed her lips and kept quiet, but the look of joy and shyness in her eyes was clear as day. They had indeed been planning their wedding, and she was expecting for him to propose to her in a few days.

Steven felt a lot worse when he heard that and recalled what he had seen at the guesthouse earlier.

Had they seen how Samuel responded earlier, I doubt they'd be able to think that with such certainty!

Steven, who was usually a chatterbox, fell incredibly silent all of a sudden. On top of that, he even actively tried to avoid making eye contact with either of them.

When it was time to leave, Natalie excused herself and walked out of the mansion with Steven.

Being the more sensitive type, Natalie noticed something off about him and asked, "What's gotten into you today, Steven? You looked really uncomfortable every time Samuel was brought up in our conversation earlier."
