Chapter 900 The Hunter And The Prey Part Four

Jerry could not get a good look at Natalie because she was too far away before. When Jerry finally got close enough, he realized how exquisite Natalie's facial features were. The fact that Natalie was in a white bunny costume only made her all the more attractive. I guess it's only natural that men would find it difficult to look away.

"How much?"

"What?" Natalie raised an eyebrow curiously at Jerry.

"Am I not speaking loud enough? How much do you want? One million? Or two million?" questioned Jerry haughtily. "You're only here because of money, right? I don't see why else you'd dress up like that to work at this party."

When Natalie heard the man, she could not help but laugh out loud. Oh, wow! This is amusing, if nothing else. "What's wrong with the way I dress? Who do you think it is that wants to see me dressed up like this? And about the money..."

"One or two million? Are you kidding me? That's loose change!"

Jerry's face immediately hardened after Natalie uttered those words coldly, for he never expected that the woman would be that demanding. Does she seriously think she's worth hundreds of millions?

"Who gave you the right to bother my brother-in-law?" Jerry looked daggers at Natalie as he continued, "I'm only offering you money to leave him alone because I'm trying to be nice, yet you think you can negotiate with me? Who do you think you are?"

Natalie suddenly realized that she had misunderstood Jerry after listening to the man. "Wait a second. Are you talking about Amos?"

"Yes, he's my sister's fiancé!" replied Jerry firmly.

"And you think there's something going on between him and me? Well, you're wrong."

"I know what I saw. And if that's not enough, I heard what you said just now too." Jerry then grabbed hold of Natalie's arm tightly. "I'm not about to let a gold-digger like you ruin my sister's happiness!"

Natalie thought Jerry was just another playboy since he organized the adult-only party.

However, when she saw how protective he was of his sister, Natalie changed her mind. Sure, he's a little straightforward. But he's a pretty decent guy.

Just when Natalie was about to explain herself to Jerry, the man's face suddenly turned pale as a sheet.

Then, Jerry began to gasp for air as if he had something stuck in his throat.

Holding Jerry's arm, Natalie quickly checked the man's pulse. "You have asthma?"

She did not wait for Jerry to respond before checking the man's pockets for his inhaler. Still, Natalie could not seem to find it even after looking for a while.

Unable to say anything because of his condition, Jerry gestured to Natalie with his eyes to call for help.

However, that was not what the woman had in mind. It's just asthma; there's no need to trouble everybody. Besides, by the time I get someone to come over, he'd be a goner.

"You..." Jerry widened his eyes at Natalie, for he never thought she would be so cruel. I'm having an acute asthma attack here, and she refuses to call for help? What's wrong with this woman? I swear I'm going to kill her when I recover!

Ignoring Jerry's murder glare, Natalie squatted down to take the bag of needles fastened to her ankle.

Jerry watched as the woman carefully pulled out a silver needle from the bag.

"Don't move," ordered Natalie as though she was talking to a child. "I can help you. But if you refuse to cooperate with me, I might make a mistake, and you're going to be plagued with something worse than your asthma."

As much as he wanted to resist Natalie, Jerry knew he had no choice but to let the woman help him at that point.

Hence, he decided to lay down quietly and put his faith in Natalie.

Pursing her lips, Natalie then proceeded to unbutton Jerry's collar and stuck her needles in several acupoints to treat the man's condition.

Before long, Natalie had her crystal needles accurately inserted into Jerry's acupoints, and Jerry could feel the symptom of his asthma subsiding. Soon, the man realized he could breathe easier again.

It was only after seeing colors return to Jerry's face that Natalie pulled her needles out.

“How did a waitress like you learn how to treat asthma?” If Jerry were not the person at Natalie’s mercy, he would not believe she could cure acute asthma with just a handful of inconspicuous needles.

“Do you want to hear the hard truth or the easy lie?” Natalie gave the man a half-smile before continuing, “If you want the easy lie, I didn’t.”

“You...” Growing up, nobody in the Jones family dared to defy Jerry because of his condition. Hence, he had no idea how to respond to someone as audacious as Natalie.

She was still packing her needles when Olivia finally found Jerry on the terrace.

After glancing at Natalie and his brother in disheveled clothes, Olivia immediately boiled with anger.

“Just what the heck are you up to? Flirting with my fiancé wasn’t enough for you? Now you have to seduce my brother too?” Olivia then stomped toward Natalie and lifted her hand, intending to give the woman a hard slap on the face.

Even though Jerry could not stop his sister in time, Olivia’s hand halted within inches of Natalie’s face.

“Let go of my hand!” roared Olivia at Natalie.

“Why? So you can slap me?” Do I look like I’m that stupid?” asked Natalie rhetorically as she narrowed her eyes at her attacker.

Natalie was only at the party to talk business with the Stones, so getting into trouble with the Joneses was definitely not what she expected.

However, it did not mean that she was just going to let the Joneses push her around.

“Who the heck do you think you are to talk to me like that?” questioned Olivia.

“Olivia, it’s not what you think.” Jerry hurried over to his sister after buttoning his shirt to explain, “I just had an asthma attack and realized I didn’t have my inhaler on me. She helped my condition with acupuncture.”

Olivia was slightly taken aback but still refused to believe her brother.

“Did she do something to you, Jerry? Is that why you’re trying to protect her?”

“I’m not! I’m telling you the truth, Olivia. I owe her one, so you can’t treat her like that,” replied Jerry earnestly.

However, he had no idea that his sister was already blinded by jealousy. Even when Amos was alone with Olivia, it was obvious to her that he could not stop thinking about Natalie, so she vowed to make the woman pay.

“Just admit that you’re lying to me, Jerry!” shouted Olivia. “I don’t even remember the last time you had an asthma attack, and now you come up with this ridiculous lie to protect her?”

“That’s not what I’m doing, Olivia.”

“I’m not listening to you!”

After glancing coldly at Olivia, Natalie released the woman’s hand before chiming in, “Your brother’s telling you the truth. Whether you want to listen to him is up to you. I’m only going to say this once, so you decide if you want to believe me. I’m not interested in anybody, man or woman, at this party.”

Natalie’s tone was cold and firm, leaving no room for doubts; Her facial features were captivating yet indignant.

Olivia was so startled by Natalie’s fierce look that she froze for a while even after the woman released her.

She only returned to her senses when Natalie looked away.

Like his sister, Jerry was stunned for a moment as well.

He had seen many ladies in his life, but none of them was even half the woman Natalie was.

Even though Natalie was dressed in a vulgar bunny costume, she exuded an aura so intense that anyone would think twice before messing with her.

Olivia rubbed her wrist as she tried to convince her brother. “Jerry, she’s nothing but a big fat liar!”

Still, Jerry did not give up on explaining the situation to Olivia. “She’s not. How many times do you need me to repeat myself, Olivia? That woman saved me! If it weren’t for her, I’d be dead on this terrace right now.”

“That’s enough, Jerry. I don’t care how many times you repeat yourself, but I’m not going to believe you.” Olivia glared at her brother and refuted him before storming off.

Just who the heck is this woman? Not only did she flirt with my fiancé, but she also seduced Jerry! She even got my brother to lie for her. An asthma attack? Really? I'd be a fool to underestimate someone like her. Still, I'm not just going to stand by idly and let her steal my man! I'll make her regret that she ever made a move on my fiancé and my brother!

Olivia then walked over to her bodyguard and informed, "I have something I need you to do for me, Tom."

"Of course, Ms. Jones."

"Check the surveillance cameras and find the woman in a bunny costume who just left the party. I want you to teach her a lesson she'll never forget." Even though Olivia was speaking gracefully, the words that came out of her mouth were despicable. "I heard that you have a friend who's contracted syphilis. That's probably not something you can get rid of easily, isn't it?"

Tom nodded in response. "No, Ms. Jones. But what do you need me to do?"

"I think you know what I need you to do," Olivia smiled deviously after setting down the wineglass in her hand. "This woman thinks she has all the men eating out of her hand just because she has a pretty face. Let's see how well she fares when plagued with the disease."

"I'll get it done, Ms. Jones."

After taking care of her business, Natalie left the party to call Yandel.

Even though the call went through, the man did not answer his phone.

It looks like Yandel's still having trouble with Amy. Forget about him; I need to get out of here now. I'm sure someone like him will eventually figure out how to get rid of that annoying woman. Just when Natalie was trying to catch a ride home, a black Porsche suddenly parked right in front of her.

Before she could get a good look at the people inside, two large men suddenly stepped out of the vehicle and approached her.

"Who are you guys?" questioned Natalie after instinctively taking a few steps back.

"Get in the car, and you'll find out."

Natalie was ready to attack the men when she felt a strong electric shock on her neck. Suddenly, the woman lost consciousness and was at the mercy of the mysterious men.

"She's not going down without a fight, huh? Luckily, we brought a taser."

“Stop babbling and help me get her into the car.”

Then, the two men carried Natalie and moved her into the backseat of the Porsche.

One got into the driver’s seat while the other stayed with Natalie.

Holding the unconscious Natalie in his arms, the man glanced at her face and then at her body. “This woman is quite a catch, if nothing else. Look just smooth and fair her skin is. It’s like that of a baby! No wonder Ms. Jones is jealous of her. Anyhow, we’re definitely not complaining.”

Even though the man in the front did not say anything in response, he kept stealing glances at Natalie and gulping while driving.

Excited to get a taste of the woman, the drooling man instinctively floored the accelerator to pick up the speed.

Meanwhile, a Rolls-Royce Phantom was following the Porsche closely behind.

Jesper, too, floored the accelerator to keep up with his target.

While driving, Jesper checked the rearview mirror and noticed the icy-cold visage of his employer. The aura emanating from the upset man seemed like it was freezing enough to turn anything into a block of ice.

Because of that, Jesper focused all his attention on tailing the Porsche and dared not to lose it.

Samuel had been upset since he noticed Natalie attending the party in a bunny costume, so Jesper could not understand why his employer did not do anything then.

It was only after seeing the two men tased and kidnapped Natalie that Samuel ordered Jesper to take action.

Naturally, Jesper did not have the right nor the audacity to investigate Natalie’s background. However, he remembered Billy telling him that the woman was everything to Samuel and that he should be completely loyal to her.

Jesper thought Billy had exaggerated things, but after seeing how Samuel reacted when Natalie was in trouble, he realized how wrong he was.

Following the Porsche, Samuel and Jesper reached a remote part of town.

The man driving the Porsche glanced at the rearview mirror and furrowed his eyebrows in concern. "Why is there a Rolls-Royce behind us?"

"Who cares! They're probably not here for her; that much I'm sure. After all, she wouldn't be working as a waitress at the party if she had friends in high places," replied the man at the back, who seemed unable to take his eyes off the woman lying beside him.

The man in the driver's seat could not think of any reason to disagree with his partner, so he simply nodded.

Then, the two men got out of the car and proceeded to carry Natalie with them.

All of a sudden, somebody slammed the car door forcefully and injured one of the men.

"Who the heck—"

Before the man could finish his cursing, his attacker swiftly grabbed his wrist and broke it.

"Ah! That hurt like hell!" wailed the man like a pig to the slaughter.

Staring coldly at the man, Jesper did not even blink when he applied pressure to fracture the man's bone.

The poor guy was in so much pain that he could barely make a sound anymore.

After seeing what happened to his partner, the other man hurriedly pulled out a knife from his pocket and went for Jesper's chest.

With a slight turn, Jesper effortlessly dodged the blade and grabbed hold of his assailant before giving the man a knee to the stomach.

Before long, the two kidnappers squirmed in pain on the ground like worms, wondering what they had done to deserve such a beating.

Then, they noticed a man stepping out from the back of the Rolls-Royce.

The person, hiding behind a silver mask, slowly and intimidatingly walked toward them in a pair of leather shoes. Even though the kidnappers could not see the man's face, they could clearly feel the intensity of his aura.

"So which hand did you touch her with?" inquired Samuel while looking down on the injured men.

It was only then that the kidnapers realized why they were beaten up. "We... We didn't touch her," lied the kidnapers because they knew they would lose their hands if they told the truth.

"Knife," Samuel ordered Jesper.

"Yes, Sir."

The subordinate then bowed and handed his weapon to Samuel.

After receiving the blade, Samuel plunged it into one of the kidnapers' right hand, and blood immediately spilled out.

While his partner writhed in pain, the unharmed kidnapper breathed a sigh of relief that he was not the one getting stabbed.

However, that sense of relief did not last more than a few seconds. Before the kidnapper knew it, Samuel had already punctured both the man's hands and let blood flow freely out of them.

After wiping the blood off his hands, Samuel turned to Jesper. "Take care of it."

"Yes, Sir," responded Jesper with a nod as usual. There's a reason why nobody would dare to touch Ms. Nichols, and this is it.
