

The Adorable Twins and Their CEO Daddy Chapter 13

Chapter 13 Could He Be The Male Prostitute

“Don’t cry.” Silas felt very uncomfortable when he looked at Aileen’s pitiful face. Wiping away her tears, he asked, “Was Adrian taken away by those men in suits?”

Kimora was also on the verge of tears, but she nodded in reply.

“They are not bad guys. Those men work for my uncle...” Embarrassed, Silas turned to Aileen, blushing. “They only came to take me to school.”

“What?” Aileen and Kimora exclaimed in disbelief.

“I’m going to kindergarten now. Once my uncle finds out that they caught the wrong person, he will definitely send Adrian back.”

At the same time, Eliana rushed to the kindergarten, panicking. When she couldn’t find Kimora there, she took out her phone and called her, trembling.

However, the busy tone kept ringing, and the more she thought about it, the more flustered she became.

Kimora initially told her that Adrian was chased by some men and was taken away, but later she said that it was just a misunderstanding. So, Eliana could not help but wonder, ‘What the hell is going on?’

All of a sudden, she felt someone grab her dress. “Mommy.”

Eliana lowered her head and saw Adrian standing beside her, safe and sound.

“Adrian!” With tears in her eyes, he held her son and began to check if he was hurt. “How are you? Are you hurt?”

“I’m fine. Mommy. Don’t cry, you’ll get wrinkles.” Adrian touched the corner of her eyes, wiping away her tears.

Eliana did not know whether to cry or laugh.

He then stroked her hair softly and comforted her, “Don’t worry, Mommy. I am okay. But... I’m late for school.”

“Let me take you in.” Eliana lifted him up and carried him in her arms as she walked into the kindergarten.

A Maybach drove past them as soon as she turned around.

Corbin glanced out of the car window and said, "Mr. Moran, she seems to be the boy's mother."

Maurice turn to his side and saw a slim women disappear into the kindergarten.

That day, everyone in Eliana's family was worried.

Later in the evening, Eliana and Kimora prepared a sumptuous dinner to comfort themselves.

After they had dinner, Eliana read the kids a story.

"A long time ago..."

But she began to yawn as soon as she read the first few words. She had been so tensed all day long that the moment she sat down on the bed, her exhaustion took over her body.

Adrian and Aileen looked at each other.

Eliana had put herself to sleep once again.

With a slight sigh, Adrian tucked his mother and sister in bed before he also fell asleep.

The next morning, Eliana worked for a while before she went to the water cooler to talk to her colleagues about acquisition of the Pierce group.

Although there are more than 2000 employees in the company, only a few knew about it.

"I've never heard of the Pierce Group." One of the employees, who had just joined the co mpany, was confused.

Hearing that, an older employee frowned and said, "The Pierce Group went bankrupt and was acquired by Mr. Moran five years ago. Why are you suddenly asking about it?"

Eliana relaxed her eyebrows a little and replied calmly, "I read about it on the Internet, and I was a little curious."

"Shouldn't you all be working?" A sharp female voice came. Gabrielle walked to them, narrowing her eyes at Eliana.

Even though Eliana was new in the company, she was already on bad terms with Gabrielle.

Everyone tried to escape with an awkward smile, but Gabrielle turned around, and blocked their way. "It's been really busy in the Design Department for some time now. I'll buy you coffee."

"Thank you, Miss Aston!" everyone said in unison.

However, when Eliana saw her evil gaze, she knew that she was plotting something again.

Just as she expected, Gabrielle handed her a card, smiled at her, and said, "Eliana, I don't think you will refuse to do something as trivial as buying coffee for me, will you?"

Looking at the expectant eyes of her colleagues, she knew that she could not say no.

So she smiled sweetly and took the card.

After glaring at her for a second, Gabrielle left.

By the time Eliana returned to the Moran Group with two packs of freshly brewed coffee, an hour had passed.

She walked into the elevator, put the heavy cups of coffee on the floor, and took a deep breath.

It was really difficult to earn money.

She found it ridiculous when she recalled that Preston had offered to pool money to compensate her.

She had obviously not believed him then.

Although it had been a few days since he had said that, he still had not contacted her. So she figured that he must not have been able to pool the money.

She decided to laugh at him if she saw him again.

A few other employees walked into the elevator, so Eliana moved to a corner with her head down as she sent a text to Preston.

"How much have you gotten?"

She instantly heard a notification tone.

She looked around and found that Corbin was also in the elevator. There was another intimidating man standing in front of him. He had a powerful cold aura, which made it obvious that he must be Maurice, the CEO of the Moran Group.

He was tall and strong, making people afraid to go near him.

Eliana withdrew her sight and sent two emojis to Preston, urging him to reply.

The same moment, she heard another notification sound coming from the elevator.

What was going on?

Was Preston also in the elevator?

Eliana sent another message, and a few seconds later, she turned to the direction from which the notification tone was heard.

She was stunned to see that it was from Maurice's phone.

Eliana opened her eyes wide in disbelief. Could he be the male prostitute?