21 Chapter 21: Her Plan Escape

"I'll buy it for you."

Just as Aaron is about to take Katrina by the hand to pull her to the ice cream shop, she suddenly catches him off guard and throws him over the shoulder.

If it weren't for Katrina's sudden move, Aaron would've forgotten that she was a cop. She graduated from a police academy, and she must've mastered some skills.

She runs fast as soon as he falls. As if she already planned her escape route, she runs straight to the door in the opposite direction.

Caught off guard, Aaron looks at her disappearing back and loses his temper, his voice dangerously shrill, "Katrina Miller! Stop right there!"

She dared to trick him!

Unexpectedly using coquetry to puzzle him, knocking him over when he least expects...

Aaron Wilson has never been so humiliated in public since he was a kid, and he has never been knocked down by a woman.

Katrina Miller! He underestimated her!

She looks soft and weak, but she's actually very skilled!

Katrina already defied him and made him angry enough to even think of running away.

Now, she dares to attack him and run away?

Aaron's expression becomes frightening. He's going to catch her and teach her a lesson.

Katrina can't help stiffening at Aaron's cold and sharp voice. But it also makes her even more eager to escape.

Instead of stopping, she runs faster.

Watching Katrina's retreating back, Aaron reaches for his phone and barks, "Lock up the surrounding streets and get that woman back at all costs!"

He's bound to catch her. She won't be able to run away under his nose.

He felt some tenderness for her, but Katrina's surprise attack irritated him,

He had never suffered such a great insult!

21 Chapter 21: Her Plan Escape

Meanwhile, Katrina is thrilled to be out of the mall. She runs in one direction, feeling that she can escape Aaron's sphere of influence.

But she underestimated Aaron Wilson.

Ten minutes later, she's caught by two men and sent back to Aaron

Seeing his angry and grim face up close. Katrina feels somewhat frightened.

Aaron holds her chin and tilts it up. He says through gritted teeth, "You've made me mad!"

He's never been so angry, even when he thought she had stolen his things. He was tolerant of her again and again. This time, he won't forgive her at all.

Aaron's hands are strong and his handsome face is insidious. Katrina can feel his radiating anger.

She becomes a little scared and nervous, "What are you going to do?"

"Take her back!" Aaron ignores her, and at his command, Katrina is put back into the car.

On the other side of the car, Aaron's dark face looms with a broken jaw and thin lips. He's not looking at her.

Katrina is choking on his rage. He's not going to kill her, is he?

She only wants to escape because she doesn't want to be kept in his villa any longer.

Although she admits that her method of escaping is somewhat unfair and that she shouldn't have acted against him, if he had agreed to let her go in the first place, she wouldn't have done that.

It was only for her own freedom. What did she do wrong?

Katrina feels a little aggrieved at the thought.

"Aaron Wilson, I already told you I'm not a thief. I have nothing to do with the culprit. Why won't you believe me! Why won't you let me go! What on earth will make you let me go!"

Katrina's voice is very low, and it seems like she's about to cry

Hearing her words, a sudden rush of emotion surges within him.

She can't wait to leave him?

Aaron doesn't know what's pulling him in, but he won't let her go, no matter how hard she tries to escape.

What he cares about is that she would dare attack him and throw him to the ground when he's unprepared.

Back at the villa, Aaron orders Katrina to be locked in the attic balcony.

21 Chapter 21: Her Plan Escape

The conditions in the open balcony are much worse than in the previous room that used to house Katrina.

When Aaron throws her to the balcony, Katrina goes into a panic, struggling and screaming, "Aaron Wilson, you can't do this to me! Please let me go! Let me go!"

But her shouts have no effect on Aaron. He snorts coldly, then turns and leaves at once.

It isn't long before Aaron changes his clothes and goes out again.

Katrina crouches on the narrow balcony, her face buried in her lap, feeling unspeakable grievance.

Aaron Wilson, that bastard!

Why does he have to imprison her! Why does he do this to her?

She hates him.

Why does he refuse to let her go?

How badly did she provoke him, that he would retaliate this way?

Aaron is away all day, while Katrina is kept locked up on the balcony.

The whole day, no one paid any attention to her or came to see her. Since Randy left, not a single person delivered her food and water.

Through his actions, she could tell Aaron is upset with her.

It turns out that he has such a cruel heart.

22 Chapter 22: Burning Fever

His occasional indulgence was only a disguise. In the end, indifference and cruelty are his nature.

How could she be so naive as to think that he would let her go?

Katrina suddenly regrets traveling to Mae. She regrets going to that street.

If not for that, she wouldn't have been taken away by his men. She wouldn't have suffered such torment.

The sunsets on the mountain as the sky gets darker. The deep blue night sky is low, and the silence in the air is terrible. Thunder rumbles loudly, and lightning splits the sky in half.

Crouched in a corner, Katrina quickly covers her ears. She closes her eyes and buries her face in her lap.

She

huddles weakly, her body trembling uncontrollably.

The heavy rain falls from the sky and the weather suddenly turns cold.

Even with the small roof over her head, Katrina becomes drenched in the rain as she curls tightly into a ball.

She doesn't know how long it's been, but she's soaked through by the rain.

Her lips tremble with the cold, but she feels as if her body is on fire.

In the midst of hunger, cold, and the rain, Katrina finally loses consciousness.

Meanwhile, Aaron is attending a birthday dinner.

Roberts is a well-known political family in Hadley. They have been in politics for three generations, and all had high positions.

When Harris Roberts turns 60, Aaron is certain to attend the birthday dinner.

Not only did he come, but he also brought birthday presents that had been prepared in advance.

Harris likes traditional things, so Aaron put his best foot forward and bought a fist-sized jade cross necklace from an auction, that can be carried anywhere.

Politicians, more or less, believe that these things can bring good luck and ensure prosperity.

Harris takes Aaron's gift with a touch of love and praise.

This is the valuable item that Aaron lost the other day.

Katrina was imprisoned at Aaron's house because she was thought to be carrying a cauldron of his stolen things.

The huge banquet hall is luxurious. Many business leaders and dignitaries from Hadley are present at Harris

Roberts' birthday party.

Dressed in suits and evening gowns, guests stand together in pairs with wine goblets, chatting, and laughing.

The music flows slowly, adding a touch of elegance to the banquet atmosphere.

The banquet is lively and extraordinary. Everyone inside is unaware that it had begun to rain heavily outside.

Standing at the entrance of the villa, Aaron's guards can't help cursing.

A guard suddenly realizes something. Momentarily stunned, he asks, "What should we do about the woman?"

At Mr. Wilson's request, they locked the woman on the balcony earlier today.

Mr. Wilson didn't give any orders. After seeing how angry Mr. Wilson was, they didn't dare give her food and water without his permission.

But they wonder if she can tolerate the harsh weather.

If she gets into any trouble, they wouldn't be able to get away with it.

Anyone could see that the woman is very special to Mr. Wilson.

After realizing the problem, the guard's exchange looks and rush to the balcony where Katrina is being held.

Upon reaching the balcony, they see a frail figure crouching in the corner and immediately rush to her.

"Miss Miller!"

Katrina is already drenched by the rain, unconscious, and burning with a fever.

Startled, the two guards quickly take Katrina out of the balcony and into her room.

Although they're worried to death, they're also at a loss at what to do with an unconscious woman.

It's urgent that the matter is reported to Mr. Wilson immediately.

Otherwise, it will only get worse when he comes back.

Aaron accompanies Harris Roberts throughout the party.

Harris likes the young man who has accomplished so much at such a young age. He has nothing but praise for him.

He even wants to introduce Aaron to his precious daughter, who has just returned from college overseas. If Aaron becomes his son-in-law, their union will be a great combination of strength.

When the melodious dance music starts, men spontaneously invite their female partners to dance on the dance floor

Harris smiles warmly and says, "Victoria, why don't you dance with Mr. Wilson?"

Victoria's beautiful face flushes.

Aaron is the most attractive young man at the party, and Victoria Roberts has admired him for a long time.

It's because of her reserve that she didn't dare ask Aaron for a dance earlier. But hearing her father's words, she finally summons the courage to walk towards Aaron.

Aaron is about to take Victoria by her hand out of courtesy when his phone rings abruptly.

"I'm sorry I have to take this call." Aaron nods politely to Harris and Victoria and turns to the phone.

As soon as he answers the phone, he hears the panicked voice of one of his guards. "Mr. Wilson, Miss Miller has lost unconscious and currently has a high fever!"

Aaron frowns at the news, "A high fever?"

He just locked her up on the balcony to punish her. How could she suddenly lose consciousness in less than a day?

Before he knew it, his heart became anxious at the news of her illness.

The guard explains with trepidation, 'The temperature drops at night, and the heavy rain may have caused the fever.'

'Fetch the doctor at once, I'll be home right away!' Aaron says and hangs up.

Fully preoccupied with Katrina's illness, Aaron isn't in the mood for a grand event like this.

After hanging up, Aaron walks over to Harris and Victoria. 'I'm sorry, Mr. and Miss Roberts, something urgent has happened. I must go back home now.'

Seeing him answer a phone call and immediately leave after, Harris asks in disbelief, 'What happened, Aaron?

Even Victoria feels a sense of loss as she misses the chance to dance with him.

Aaron is silent for a while. 'The cat in the house is sick, and it's very serious.'

At Aaron's explanation, Harris nods in understanding, 'A life is at stake. Go ahead, Aaron.'

'Thank you, Mr. Roberts.' With that, Aaron turns and leaves quickly.

22 Chapter 22 Burning Fever

Harris doesn't realize something is wrong until Aaron has left the party.

Helicard that Aaron has a dog that he loved like a son.

When did Aaron get a cat?

23 Chapter 23: He Is Angry

As soon as Aaron walks out of the banquet hall, he hears the heavy rain pouring outside.

'Shit! At the sight of the heavy rain. Aaron curses and strides out to find his car.

When the doorman sees Aaron coming out, he rushes to hold an umbrella for him. 'Mr. Wilson, it's raining hard outside. Let me take you to your car!'

Aaron resuses grimly 'No!'

With such a gloomy and dreadful look, it seems Aaron is in an unpleasant mood. The doorman doesn't dare follow him.

The headlights of the car light up and Aaron turns the car around, driving straight to his villa.

Aaron keeps the car at a fast pace the whole way.

The rain pours heavily on the windshield, almost obscuring the view. Although the wipers are working nonstop, Aaron almost bumps into oncoming vehicles several times.

He drives to the villa faster than usual, and in the blink of an eye, Aaron arrives home.

Getting out of the car, he shuts the door and strides towards the villa,

At Aaron's arrival, the restless heeler in the living room rushes to greet him, 'Mr. Wilson!'

Seeing Aaron's wet hair and suit, he hurriedly says, 'Mr. Wilson, your clothes are wet.'

Aaron ignores his wet clothes. 'Where is she?'

'Miss Miller is in her room. The private doctor has already been called, and Dr. William says he'll be here soon...'

Before the heeler finishes, Aaron walks past them and strides towards Katrina's room.

om.

Katrina is lying on the soft bed. Her hair is wet on her slightly flushed face, her eyes are tightly closed, and her lips are pale and trembling. She looks like a quiet and lifeless doll.

Aaron's heart suddenly aches at sight. He steps forward and touches Katrina's cheek, but his fingers shrink involuntarily.

"Mr. Wilson," the healer says, trembling with fear, "Miss Miller's clothes are still wet. We, we..."

After all, she's a girl. Although they know it isn't good to wear wet clothes, changing her clothes is inconvenient. They just put her in bed and waited for Aaron Aaron lifts the quilt. Indeed, Katrina's clothes are so wet, and you can wring water out.

23 Chapter 23. He Is Angry

Pain and sorrow All Aaron's eyes. He asks sternly. "How long has she been in the rain?"

Shuddering, the man stammers, "Two... two hours."

It's been raining for two hours before they remembered her.

Aaron becomes even more furious to hear the healer's words.

Is she been in the rain for two hours before they found her?

That means that after he left, they never went to see her on the balcony, or give her any food.

Even though he was angry and wanted to punish her, he never thought of hurting her that much, let alone starving her and letting her get drenched in the rain.

These damn bastards! How dare they treat her like this!

Aaron looks sullen and says, "Kneel in the yard! Stay there until she gets better!"

If she never wakes up, they will kneel outside until they die!

Although Aaron isn't a good-tempered man, he seldom gets angry with his heelers and rarely punishes them.

For the first time in years, the two men witnessed such an angry look on Aaron.

Unexpectedly, Mr. Wilson is deeply concerned about the well-being of Miss Miller.

"Yes, sir!" The men are scared out of their wits and quickly run out to kneel in the rain.

As they let the heavy rain thoroughly soak their bodies, they keep praying for Miss Miller to get better soon.

If anything happens to her, they probably won't survive, either.

After the heelers leave, Aaron looks at the thin and weak figure on the bed. His heart aches deeply.

Aaron picks her up gently and begins to take off her wet clothes.

He knows that if she wakes up and finds out that he took off her clothes, she'll be angry with shame and call him a "rascal" while she points her finger at him.

But now, he can't watch her helplessly lying in wet clothes. It will only make her condition worse.

The unconscious Katrina is docile, much more manageable than usual. She neither resists him or talks back to him. She allows him to take off her clothes, leaning gently in his arms.

2 Chapter 23 He is Angry

She's usually lively and eloquent, but that's better than being unconscious in bed

Earlier today, he was very angry that she schemed against him and threw him over her shoulder to the ground.

But his anger is far less intense now. Her pale tips and burning body tug at him painfully,

He never thought that he'd care so much about the safety of a girl he's just known for a few days.

Aaron strips Katrina's clothes of one by one, including her wet underwear. Her body is slim and symmetrical, and her skin is as clear as snow. Every part of her body is perfect. Aaron's throat dries out as he takes in her beautiful body, Finally, he picks her up and walks to the bathroom. He's extremely gentle as if he's afraid of hurting Katrina in his arms. He puts her in the bathtub and gives her a hot bath. The beautiful scene and the soft touch of a girl's skin inadvertently make Aaron's body temperature rise. Seeing her body in person is far more alluring and compelling than the view through the surveillance footage. Aaron tries to restrain his thoughts. After washing Katrina clean, Aaron picks her up and holds her in his arms. He covers her with a large and soft towel and wraps it tightly around her tiny body. He takes her in his arms and brings her to his room. Aaron has just settled Katrina on the big bed when someone knocks on the door and reports, "Mr. Wilson, Dr. William has arrived. He's in the living room." "Let him wait outside. Bring in a set of clothes from the shopping this morning." "Yes, sir." Katrina is still naked beneath the towel. Even though Aaron and William have known each other for years, he can't let William treat Katrina in this state. After the clothes are delivered, Aaron helps Katrina into the clothes. Although the bra looks simple, it's still difficult for Aaron, who knows little about women. He spends a lot of time getting Katrina dressed. After making sure Katrina is fully-clothed, Aaron orders William to come in.

24 Chapter 24: Serious Neat Freak

William enters with his medical kit.

Earlier, he was stunned when he received a call from Aaron's helper saying that a woman was sick in his villa

Everyone knows that Aaron has never desired a woman. For so many years, William has never heard of an affair between Aaron and any woman, and a woman has never set foot in his private villa.

It's understandable for William to be greatly shocked at the news.

He rushes to the villa, not only because of his professional attitude as a doctor but also because of his interest in the affair.

He's curious about the woman living in Aaron's private villa. What does she look like?

But when he arrived, Aaron kept him waiting in the living room for a long time.

If he hadn't seen Aaron dressed so neatly, he would think that Aaron has done something unspeakable to the woman to keep him waiting so long.

William immediately comes to the bedside.

The woman lying on the bed looks young and petite. Her eyes are closed tightly, her long eyelashes casting a shadow under her eyelids. Her beautiful lips are pale from the illness, making her look frail.

are

William becomes even more surprised when he realizes the woman is lying on Aaron's bed.

Aaron is a serious neat freak, and he especially hates it when other people approach his bed.

Once, William accidentally sat in Aaron's bed and was almost thrown out because of this.

But now... Is Aaron letting a woman lying on his bed?

It seems that this woman is really special to Aaron.

William becomes increasingly surprised. "Aaron, I didn't know that this is your type of woman. When did you get to know each other? How long have you been together?"

Last time he was here, he didn't notice anything unusual.

After only a few days, Aaron has managed to keep a mistress in a love nest?

Aaron is unhappy with William's comments on his private life. His dark eyes narrow as he says, "Treat her illness seriously and shut up! Cure her quickly! If she doesn't wake up, your career is over!"

24 Chapter 24 Serious Neat Freak

William shivers at Aaron's words.

Aaron has just threatened him. It seems this woman is really important to Aaron William doesn't say another word and immediately checks Katrina's condition.

After the examination, William says, "She's very cold from being under the rain too long, and now has a high fever. She needs a shot to reduce her fever and lower her temperature. But don't worry, she's fine. After the injection, she'll wake up tomorrow."

William begins to find the disposable syringe and antipyretic agent from his medical kit and puts the medicine into the syringe.

When everything is ready, William gently presses the syringe to squeeze the air out. "This can only be injected into the muscle on her buttocks. Aaron, please turn her over and lift her skirt up."

At William's words, Aaron's dark eyes fixed on him with anger.

Taken aback by Aaron's glare, William quickly explains, "It's just a shot, Aaron. Don't be so upset, and I don't mean any offense. Don't glare at me like that."

Aaron is too protective of the woman. As a doctor, William feels great pressure. If every female patient's male relatives were like this, how could he stay a doctor? He doesn't know how many times he'll get beaten up.

Unable to bear Aaron's glare, William hesitates to say, "She can just take medicine for the fever, but the effect is relatively slow. I don't know if she'll wake up tomorrow morning from the medicine, but I can try to increase the dose..."

While William rambles about an alternative, Aaron holds out his hand. "I'll do it myself!"

William is shocked. Understanding Aaron's intention, he hands the syringe in his hand.

To prevent William from seeing Katrina's in a state of undress, Aaron plans to give her the injection himself.

Besides, Aaron used to be a soldier in the past and had strict training in case he got seriously injured. Even if he treats the wound on himself, it's not difficult for him to give himself an injection.

After taking the syringe, Aaron glances casually at William, who immediately turns around to evade his stare.

Turning Katrina over, he lifts her skirt and pulls her knickers down. After finding her gluteus maximus, he sticks the needle into her skin.

Despite his gentle actions, it's impossible for her to feel nothing with a needle sticking into her body.

In her unconscious state, Katrina seems to feel the pain, frowning, and groaning slightly.

24 Chao!u 24. Serious Meal Freak

At her cal-like whinc, Aaron becomes worried and comforts her in a low voice, "cy now, it's just a little pain.

It will be alright."

With his back to the scene, William is surprised to witness Aaron being so tender. He's always been aggressive and indifferent.

Aller Aaron injects the antipyretic into her body, he pulls the needle out and arranges her underwear and skirt before allowing William to turn around.

Half an hour later, William gives Katrina a simple examination and says, "Her body temperature has decreased. It's good to maintain this body temperature. If it's still hot at night, you can adopt a physical cooling method like wiping her body in alcohol."

He adds, "She may catch a cold from the rain. Remember to give her cold medication tomorrow."

After assuring that Katrina is all right, Aaron seels much more relaxed.

Instead of staying in the room and disturbing Katrina, he goes to the living room with William and asks one of his men to bring William a cup of tea.

William drinks his tea, and his dissolute smile is full of interest in gossip.

He doesn't dare ask about Katrina, but William is genuinely pleased to see that Aaron, who has always been aloof towards the opposite sex, finally has a woman.

Because of Aaron's insomnia, William feels great pressure every time he diagnoses Aaron.

Since Aaron has a woman, his temper should improve. Otherwise, nobody can stand him.

Speaking of Aaron's insomnia...

William says, "Aaron, the new sleeping pill, has been developed and is recently undergoing clinical tests. If it doesn't have any side effects, it will be sent to you as soon as possible."

"I see."

Ever since Aaron discovered that Katrina could help him fall asleep quickly, he hasn't looked forward to the new sleeping pills.

He's more willing to choose her over medicine.

25 Chapter 25: Weak Condition

William leaves as soon as he's done drinking the tea
He can feel Aaron's impatience from the way he keeps looking at his watch.
Aaron wants to go back to his room and take care of Katrina, he definitely doesn't have time to drink tea with

William in the living room

After William leaves, Aaron returns to the room. He instantly frowns when he notices Katrina's frail and gaunt
face from the illness,

To prevent any emergency at night, Aaron decides to stay with her all evening. After taking a bath, he lists the quilt and goes to bed.

Katrina's forehead is hot because of the illness, but she's shivering from the cold despite being covered in a blanket

Seeing her shivering. Aaron holds her in his arms. He warms her small figure with his body temperature.
As a result, the faint fragrance of her body pours into his nose, giving him an indescribable feeling of joy.
Through her hazy mind, Katrina feels like a furnace is near her. She snuggles closer for more warmth.

Her soft

body rubs desperately against his arms, her delicate face pressing against his bare chest Aaron just wants to sleep peacefully, holding her in his arms, but now, Katrina is rubbing against him restlessly.

Because of Aaron's unspeakable desire for Katrina's body, his body reacts shamefully, and he quickly becomes erect.

He holds Katrina's head and says in a deep voice, "Don't test me, woman!"

If she goes on like this, he's not sure if he can control himself from doing something inappropriate to her.

But Katrina is completely unconscious. Instead, she leans a little closer to his chest, and her thighs inadvertently rub against him.

When Aaron feels her soft skin, an electric current spark in his brain, his throat tightens as if the fire is burning within his body.

Aaron looks intently at the girl in his arms. He's very anxious to make her pay for what she did...

But seeing her slightly morbid face, he can't allow himself to be so cruel.

25 Chapter 25 Weak Condition

When he can't take it anymore, Aaron curses lowly and gets up to take a cold shower,

For the first time, Aaron feels depressed. As a man who's always been strong and resolute, he's never compromised so easily

After being teased and aroused by a woman, he feels wronged into taking a cold shower because of her
This damned woman! As a result of her illness, he lets her off the hook. He'll have to get back at her another time.

In addition to taking Katrina's temperature every other hour, her restless movements don't allow Aaron to sleep well all night

Fortunately, her body temperature returned to normal the next morning. Aaron's efforts the whole evening were not in vain

He never thought he'd stay up all night looking after a woman. This is the first time for him to take care of someone

When Aaron gets up, Katrina still hasn't woken up yet.

Aaron goes straight to the kitchen and personally cooks a soft and plain congee.

Katrina didn't eat much yesterday and fell ill afterward. When she wakes up, she needs to take something plain to nourish the stomach and restore her strength for her to recover quickly

Outside the villa, the two heelers are still kneeling in the yard. The rain has stopped earlier. For the strong men, being exposed to the rain was nothing to them.

But after kneeling all night, they're inevitably tired, and their knees are numb.

They don't know how Katrina is doing, and they don't dare ask Aaron for mercy. They'd better keep kneeling until she is well

"Mr. Wilson, it's time to go to work."

As Aaron waits for the porridge to get ready, another heeler comes over and bows.

Although he knows Aaron is very worried about Katrina's health, Aaron always works hard. It's his duty to remind Aaron of his work.

Aaron responds without lifting his head. "Put off the important work until tomorrow. Have the assistant handle trivial matters."

The heeler is stunned for a moment. But he quickly lowers his head and says, "Yes, I'll get to it immediately."

D

25 Chapter 25 West Condition

Mr. Wilson is willing to put off all his work for the woman. Mr. Wilson clearly cares about her.

Even Mr. Wilson's father has never tasted porridge cooked by him, but Mr. Wilson is willing to cook for her,

When the porridge is ready, Aaron goes back to the room.

Since Katrina is sleeping in bed, he sits on the leather couch with his laptop. He accompanies her as he goes through his emails..

Katrina's fingertips move slightly. Waking up slowly, she frowns.

She moves her head and feels a faint headache, and her nose is a little stuffy. Her whole body is weak, and she has no strength. She's sick!

Where am I? What happened to me? What's wrong with me?

As Katrina gathers her thoughts, Aaron senses the movement in bed from the couch. "Awake? He puts his laptop aside and uses the house phone to ask the healer to bring in the porridge he just cooked.

Katrina is stunned to hear Aaron's sudden voice.

Because of her weak condition, she responds slowly.

Aaron walks up to Katrina and immediately arrives at her bedside.

He touches her forehead before taking her temperature, making certain her temperature is normal.

It's at this moment that Katrina recalls what happened yesterday.

Yesterday, Aaron brutally locked her up on the balcony and left her there. It rained heavily, and she was drenched in the rain, shivering in the cold.

Katrina doesn't know when she lost consciousness, but during the desperate and wretched situation, she thought she was going to die.

As soon as she opens her eyes, she sees the person responsible for imprisoning and mistreating her in front of her. How could Katrina not get angry? How could she not hate him?

Originally a little confused, her eyes suddenly turn resentful, burning with a flame that can crush him.

Katrina waves her weak arm and hits the hand on her forehead. "Don't touch me!"

She looks like a weak and angry cat.

Just then, the healer knocks at the door and comes in with the porridge.

5 Chapter 25 Weak Condition

Aaron takes the bowl and sits on the chair next to the bed. He ignores her resentful glare and says calmly,

How that you're awake, have something to eat."

He scoops up a spoonful of porridge and makes sure it's not too hot before bringing it to Katrina's mouth.

27 Chapter 27: I Don't Mind Feeding You Personally

Besides "asshole," has she ever cursed another way? Will she just keep repeating herself?

What a naive and stupid girl. She can't even curse properly!

But seeing her reaction, Aaron feels a little sad and asks softly, "Are you so anxious to leave? Is staying here so horrible?"

He can buy the most beautiful clothes and the most expensive jewelry for her. He can invite the world's best chef to prepare her three meals a day, 365 days a year, without repetition. He can give her the best life money can offer, making her the envy of every woman.

Aaron is handsome, rich, and dignified. Many women dream of climbing into his bed and getting involved with him.

Wouldn't it be better to stay with him than be some insignificant policewoman?

Aaron doesn't know where this sudden urge to dote on her came from, but she's the first woman to incite such a desire in him.

He doesn't want to keep her because he wants to take vengeance on her. But after meeting her, he couldn't bear to let her go.

This is the only reason he forced her to stay here.

Katrina immediately loses control of her emotions. "You almost... froze me to death... yesterday."

The nerve of this guy to ask her why she doesn't want to stay here!

Who would want to stay in a place that restricts her freedom? Who would want to face such a bully and demon every day?

In only three days, she's already been tortured so much. Will she survive if she remains any longer?

The tears in Katrina's eyes make Aaron's heart shrink instantly

He's rendered speechless in the face of her accusations.

He was the one who didn't think things over and went too far yesterday.

After a few seconds of silence, Aaron holds her in his arms and strokes her hair gently. He says in a low voice,

"I'm sorry. It won't happen again."

27 Chapter 27.1 Don Mind Ferding You Personally

He will never again let her get drenched in the rain or cause her to become ill.

What happened yesterday was an accident, and he won't let it happen again.

Aaron's arms are strong and powerful, and his chest is firm and wide. In his arms, Katrina can feel his body temperature and strong breathing.

But Katrina can't find herself believing that Aaron will change into a good man because of this little act of tenderness. To her, he's still a ruthless and greedy devil.

Katrina wipes the tears off her face and pushes Aaron away. She says in a calm voice, "I'm done with the porridge. I'm sleepy now, and I want to rest."

It's clearly a dismissal.

Aaron knows Katrina isn't really sleepy. She simply doesn't want to see him.

But due to yesterday's events, he doesn't bother her anymore. He gives her the medicine and leaves.

After Aaron leaves, Katrina tosses and turns restlessly on the bed.

She suddenly realizes that she's not in the room she'd been sleeping in for the past two nights.

The luxurious room is large and simple, in dominantly cool colors. It seems to be Aaron's room.

If she slept in Aaron's room last night, where did Aaron sleep?

Katrina recalls the vague memory of a nearby furnace during her semi-conscious state. She immediately realizes that the source of heat was none other than Aaron.

Did Aaron sleep with her all night?

Katrina looks down at her clothes. Not only had they been changed, but so was her underwear, There's no one else in the house. The only person who could possibly be responsible is Aaron.

Not only did he sleep with her last night, but he also took off her clothes and saw her naked while she was unconscious!

At the realization, Katrina can't help grinding her teeth in rage and shame.

Aaron, you bastard!

How could he do such a thing to her!

What an animal!

For so many years, she's always been innocent in love. She never even had a boyfriend

Except for the incident four years ago when a drugged man forcibly raped her,

Now, she's indiscriminately imprisoned by Aaron, who has taken advantage of her several times.

Why does she keep getting caught up in bad things? Is she destined to have a bad fate?

In contrast, she suddenly realizes what gentleman Marcellus is.

At lunchtime, Aaron comes to the room and calls Katrina downstairs to eat.

Still upset that Aaron might have seen her naked, Katrina turns her back to him and says in a sullen voice, "I'm not hungry. I don't want to have lunch."

Katrina is depressed and in a bad mood. She doesn't want to see Aaron now, let alone have lunch with him.

Not hungry?

Aaron scowls at Katrina's response.

Her illness had become so serious that it takes a great effort to get better. Now, she doesn't want to have a good meal. Does she want to go on a hunger strike because of him?

Aaron definitely won't allow Katrina to hurt herself this way.

He says patiently, "Even if you aren't hungry, you have to go down and eat something."

Katrina simply pulls the blanket over her head.

At breakfast, she was forced to eat porridge through a shameless method. Would he do the same for lunch?

He can't chew it up and feed it to her!

Seeing Katrina hiding and avoiding him, Aaron bends down to pick her up along with the blanket.

She feels her body suddenly rise and fall into a warm embrace. When she feels a draft behind her, Katrina immediately pulls the blanket over her head. "Aaron, what are you doing?"

From her perspective, she can see his angular chin and slightly closed lips.

Aaron looks straight ahead and strides downstairs. "Going downstairs to have lunch!"

Katrina struggles in his arms. "I said I wasn't hungry! I don't want to eat!"

But her strength is too weak, and there's a blanket around her, restricting her movements. Her struggle was in vain. His steps remain steady and unaffected.

Soon, Katrina is taken to the dining room on the first floor.

Aaron places her on the chair in front of the table, He sits next to her and puts the food into her bowl to supervise her eating

Lunch is much more sumptuous than breakfast.

For Katrina's sake, Aaron asked the chef to make light dishes that are easy to digest.

Once again, forcibly carried against her will, Katrina is upset and angrily turns her head away. She doesn't want to see Aaron.

Katrina looks like a mangy girl.

Aaron touches his chin and thinks for a moment before he says, "Since you won't eat, you can sit on my lap. I don't mind feeding you personally."
