Chapter 2 How Could Her Memories Be Reversed?

'Drip, drip, drip.

It was so quiet that it seemed that he could only hear the sound of dripping water in her ears.

Hellen moved her fingers and slowly opened her eyes.

She turned around and saw the man dozing off beside the bed. Just as she was about to get up, she found that she couldn't move at all because of the pain.

Her face was pale, and she weakly said, 'Brother...

Everet Jovano was scared out of his wits and almost fell to the ground.

He blinked his eyes and asked with slight concern when he saw Hellen had awoken.

'You're awake?'

able.

'Brother... Hellen was in so much pain that she felt miser-

Everet was stunned. He felt that something was wrong with Hellen.

In the two years that she had been married to Hans, she had only come back home a few times. He always felt that there was a distance between him and his sister, but now...

Hellen coughed. 'I want to drink water.

Everet wanted to say something else, but after hearing

W she said, he immediately got up, poured her a glass of water, and then carefully helped her sit up. 'You were so lucky that you didn't suffer any serious injuries after being hit by the truck.

There were bruises all over her body and some slight fractures.

Hellen moistened her throat and stuffed the cup back into Everet's hand.

'Where's Hans Grant?' Everet put the glass of water on the table and snorted. 'He didn't answer the doctors' phone call!

Hellen was somewhat puzzled. 'Who's Hans Grant?'

She thought for a moment and said, 'Is it the person who sent me to the hospital today?'

It was Everet's turn to be confused. 'Huh?'

After a long while, he came to his senses and asked, 'What do you mean? Don't you know who Hans Grant is?'

Seeing Hellen shake her head in a daze, Everet instantly jumped up from the chair and frantically rang the bell at the head of the bed.

Ten minutes later, the doctor finished his examination and said, 'Although there is nothing serious with the body, the Hippocampus is injured and caused her to lose some of her memories.'

Everet thanked the doctor, then turned to look at Hellen.

After a long while, he said, 'How old are you?'

Hellen was stupefied. 'Twenty-three years old.'

Everet: '?!'

'What the hell? How could her Memories be reversed??'

'However...

Everet's eyes lit up.

'Isn't it the perfect time to save his stupid little sister?'

He coughed and warned her in a serious tone, 'Hans, whom I told you about just now, is a f*ckboy. Stay away from him as far as you can. Do you understand?'

Hellen nodded, puzzled.

After staying in the hospital for a few days and seeing that the bruises on Hellen's body were almost healed, Everet brought her back home.

Actually, it had been two years since Hellen had returned, but her memories had gone back to two years ago. She no longer remembered anything, and she ran back in, as though she knew the way.

Seeing her mother watering flowers in the garden, Hellen went over and hugged her.

'Mom, I'm back. Why haven't you come to visit me these past few days?'

Lady Jovano had heard from her son that her youngest daughter had lost her memory. Although she missed Hellen, she was too embarrassed to see her, so she stayed at home.

Until today, knowing Hellen was coming back, Lady Jovano, who was unwilling to go outside to water flowers due to the cold weather, came to the garden early in the morning.

While she was absentmindedly watering flowers, the maid next to her kept shouting, 'Milady! if you continue watering the flowers, they will drown!'

Now that she was hugged by her daughter, Lady Jovano immediately wanted to cry.

She touched her daughter's head and said, 'Your brother didn't tell me.

Everet was speechless. He didn't expect that she would blame it on him.

'Good girl, let's go in. I've prepared your favorite dessert for you!

Hellen cheered and ran home.

Lady Jovano looked at her departing figure, feeling conflicted.

After a long while, she turned her body sideways and said coldly to Everet, 'Delete Hellen's medical record. Don't let Hans Grant find her. It's best if he doesn't see her again!'

'Alright.'

Her father had passed away ten years ago due to an accident, and it was her mother who had led the Jovano family to become stronger.

Now that she loved a quiet and natural environment, Everet almost forgot how decisive and resolute she was.
