Chapter 1021

Creak...

The door opened.

A skinny old man walked out. His face was timeworn and wrinkled, and he seemed a bit spiritless as if life and old age were getting the better of him.

The man walked over to Thomas and took a seat.

"Thomas..."

His soulless eyes suddenly lit up.

Watching the old man intently, Thomas grinned.

"Winston, to think that you were able to make a breakthrough into the eighth rank before your death. Congratulations, you get to live for a few decades or so." Winston sighed.

"At long last...I was in closed-door meditation for so long. However, I'm still not an eighth-rank martial artist. I'm just halfway there. Regardless, I can definitely live for an additional twenty years. You, on the other hand..."

He glanced at Thomas.

"What do you plan to do? For the past thirty years, you have visited Mount Littleroot thrice. You have read through all of the Blithes' martial art manuals in the library."

"Yup."

Maxine nodded and said, "James asked us to return to Cansington at once. He'll be there shortly. He must be worried that we might be seen by the Blithes, which would certainly complicate things."

"In that case, we should leave." Thea nodded.

"Alright."

They headed to the airport.

Meanwhile, James headed to the suburbs.

After finding a desolate place, he removed the human mask on his face.

Tobias walked in. He looked at an elderly man who was sitting in a lotus position on the floor and greeted him respectfully, "Grandfather."

The elderly man opened his eyes.

Nodding his head, he asked, "Is something the matter?"

"Grandfather, I just received news that the Blithe family now has an eighth-rank martial artist."

Faced with Bennett, the individual of the highest status in the family, Tobias spoke in a respectful tone despite being the patriarch.

"Oh?' Bennett's curiosity was piqued.

"Eighth-rank?"

Tobias continued, "Yes, my sources are accurate. The situation is becoming more and more disadvantageous to us. The other three families of the Ancient Four accused me of stealing their paintings. At the Mount Thunder conference, the Johnstons, Sullivans, and the Lees will surely confront the Cadens. Not only that, we've had a falling out with the Blithes. If the eighth-rank martial artist of the Blithes appears at Mount Thunder..."

Tobias fell silent.

"It really isn't me, Grandfather.Besides, although the secret of the painting has been unraveled, I still don't know how to cultivate it." Bennett nodded his head slightly.

"Yes, I had a look at it too.Indeed, it's impossible to cultivate.Let's not be too engrossed in deciphering the painting.Perhaps the Prince of Orchid Mountain was just trying to fool us all.With so many varieties of martial arts in the Caden family, each of them, when mastered, is extremely powerful-especially the Thirteen Heavenly Swords.If you can master the Thirteenth Sword, you'll be undefeatable."

"Understood." Tobias nodded.

"You're dismissed."

Bennett waved his hand and returned to the bamboo house, slamming the door shut.Tobias stood at the doorstep, lost in contemplation.

"Did Grandfather manage to reach the eighth rank?" he murmured.

He knew that Bennett had reached the seventh rank decades ago. Since he had been in closed-door meditation for so long, theoretically, he should have succeeded. However, he was not too sure. all, reaching the eighth rank of people had accomplished only the Sect Leader of the Mount Thunder Sect, the Great Grandmaster of the ancient martial world a hundred years Gu Sect, drained and he perished there. Maxine shook her head slightly. "I'm not sure either. That's my opinion after watching his fight with Donovan. Only he has the answers." Thea smiled. "We'll know once he gets back." The three gathered and discussed the events that unfolded at the Western Border. Soon, Quincy returned. Though Quincy had her own place to stay, she was feeling bored alone.

Thus, she would normally go to Cynthia's place after work.

After all, her villa was vast and spacious.

Quincy was fatigued after a whole day of work.

"you're back. Where's James though?"

Quincy walked over to them.

Then, tossing her handbag casually aside, she took a seat on the sofa.

They could not believe James' luck.

Maxine said with an envious look on her face, "You're certainly lucky, James. However, you only managed to withstand the potent True Energy because you opened up your meridians in advance."

James asked, "By the way, why didn't Tobias show himself? What happened?"

Hearing this, Maxine fell silent. She had been left to her own fate.

Between her and the Cadens' best interests, Tobias had chosen the latter.

"Grandpa had no choice." She sighed.

"As the patriarch of the family, he can't put the family in harm's way just because of a single individual. If I was in his position, I would have done the same thing."

Chapter 1027

Maxine briefly introduced the concept of True Energy Materialization to James.

True Energy Materialization was the process of releasing True Energy, controlling it, and modifying it into any shape.

"Try it out, James."

Maxine did not know what rank James currently was, nor did James himself.

That was because no one had explained to him the differences between ranks. He only knew that by opening up his meridians, he had made a breakthrough into the fifth rank.

James catalyzed True Energy.

The energy flowed through the meridians in his arm and gathered in his palm.

Then, white light glowed from it, but the light dissipated almost immediately.

"What the hell?"

James was puzzled.

James asked, "Are you alright? Do you need me to take your pulse?"

Maxine waved her hand and said, "No need, I'm fine. I only need a few days to rest up."

She looked at James and spoke in a gentle tone, "James, I plan to return to the Capital."

"The Capital?" James frowned.

"Tobias has already given up on you. You were lucky to survive this. If I hadn't received the inheritance of the Blithes' Grand Patriarch, you would have been dead at Mount Littleroot. And you..."

He turned to Thea and rebuked her, "Why did you act so recklessly? That's the patriarch of the Blithes we're talking about! He's a sixth-rank martial artist. He could have easily killed you."

"I-I was worried about you. It's also partly your fault for not telling us that you escaped. I was worried sick, you know!"

"I was curious to see if Tobias would come to my rescue. I also wanted to see what the Blithes were up to."

"Stop right there, you two."

Maxine interrupted their conversation and said, "James, Thea was really worried about you. For your sake, she did her best to practice martial arts. She even managed to learn the basics of the Thirteen Heavenly Swords. We planned to use the sword art to intimidate Donovan. We never thought that he would be unafraid. Thankfully, you intervened in time, or else..."

"It's my fault."

Thea hurriedly said, "If I didn't mistreat you from the very beginning, Quincy wouldn't have seized the opportunity and followed you to the Southern Plains to take care of you when you were injured. She wouldn't have entered your heart in the first place. It was my fault. I failed as a wife."

Thea blamed herself. She could not see James' care and concern for her.

Sometimes, one did not know what they had until they lost it.

"Darling, I'm not trying to blame you. At that time, she took care of you without asking for anything in return. If it was me, I would have fallen for her too. However, you rejected her advances because you still have me in your heart. So, I kept lending you my aid in the hopes that you would return to me."

Thea was getting agitated.

James said softly, "Let's leave this for some other day. It's getting late and we should sleep. Tomorrow morning, I'll return to the Capital with Maxine. I'll try asking the King about Mr. Gabriel and visit Tiara while I'm at it."

"Mhm."

Thea nodded.

The two headed upstairs.

However, unwilling to let the others hear, she buried herself under the blanket.

On the balcony of another room...

Wearing a thin set of pajamas, Maxine was staring at the pitch-black sky, daydreaming.

Although there was another room between hers and James', she could hear the commotion in his room.

After all, a martial artist like her possessed good hearing skills. Her expression was calm.

In fact, there was even a slight hint of relief.

Pensive, she stood on the balcony and stared at the sky.

The night passed silently. It was an eventful night for many.

James, on the other hand, slept soundly.

By the time he woke up, it was already morning.

Thea was still sleeping.

Looking at the woman laying beside him, a smile crept up on James' face.
