Braxton left.

He knew that he was walking on a tightrope.

The consequences would be fatal if he made a blunder.

However, he did not have a choice.

For twenty years, he cooperated not only with the Tuckson family but also with many others.

If James got to the bottom of this, he would be doomed even if he did not do anything wrong.

However, he also knew that the dynamics in the Capital are complex and would get many involved.

He believed that James would not act recklessly.

After all, he could not deal with the ramifications.

At the same time, James was at the Red Flame Army's headquarters scrutinizing information concerning the Tucksons sent by Maxine.

The Tucksons were a huge family that had established itself in the Capital for centuries.

They possessed great authority and incredible wealth.

Their members assumed many positions in the army and the political realm.

Glancing at it, James said coldly, "The Tucksons are considered a powerful force.

Guess I'll make a move on them before cooperating with Yaroslav." He leaned on the chair and rested.

Time passed, and a few hours flew by.

A plane from the Southern Plains landed at the headquarters of the Red Flame Army.

A thousand Black Dragon Army led by Henry got off the plane.

They were the ones deployed to Cansington a while ago.

Upon seeing the Black Dragon Army, the Red Flame Army was confused, but they remained silent.

After all, the Emperor was also the Dragon General.

After getting off the plane, Henry called James, "I'm here." "Good," James said.

"Order the Black Dragon Army to remain on standby.

Come to my office." "Understood." Henry hung up the phone and headed toward the military region building.

A few generals caught a glimpse of Henry and the Black Dragon Army.

"What's the Emperor planning to do? Why did he bring the Black Dragon Army of the Southern Plains here?" "Is he making a move soon?" "Is the Capital about to descend into chaos?" "Who is he targeting this time?" The generals were puzzled.

Soon, news spread to the King.

At Peace Mansion...

The King was playing chess with Mr.

Lee while discussing the current situation in the Capital.

A guard walked in and said respectfully, "We just received word from the Red Flame Army that the Black Shadow General of the Southern Plains has arrived at the Capital with a thousand- strong Black Dragon Army.

They have appeared at the Red Flame Army's Capital." "oh?" The King froze.

"What is James planning to do?" Then, he waved, "I understand.

You're dismissed." "Understood." Holding a chess piece in his hand, the King looked at Mr.

Lee and asked, "Who do you will James target next?" Mr.

Lee shook his head slightly.

"Hard to say...

However, he's an unpredictable guy.

He doesn't concern himself with the delicacy of the Capital's dynamics.

I'm curious to see how he'll turn the Capital upside down, but let's hope that the situation will stabilize in the end." The King nodded.

"I thought James would make a move on Mr.

Gabriel upon his coronation.

I didn't expect him to redeploy the Black Dragon Army here.

I'm looking forward to his next move." Though the King knew that James had redeployed the Black Dragon Army here, he remained silent.

At that moment, Henry entered James' office.

"Emperor." Henry saluted James.

"Have a seat." James pointed at the sofa.

Henry walked toward the sofa and removed his cap.

James walked over to the rest area and handed Henry a cigarette, "How's the situation at the Southern Plains? How did the investigation go?" Henry nodded, "I'm almost done with the investigation.

I found out that General Grant had interacted with the previous Emperor's subordinates.

However, that was because the previous Emperor had abducted his family.

It was he who leaked all information regarding our whereabouts.

Apart from him, there are many other high-ranking generals..." Henry narrated the chain of events in the Southern Plains.

"Mihm.» James nodded and said, "We'll put this aside for now.

After resolving the matter in the Capital, we'll promptly return and deal with it." "Sir, am I on some kind of mission?" "Yes," James nodded.

"We'll have to make a move.

Though the Capital is peaceful on the outside, it is rotten to the core.

The time has come to tear down the rotten structure.

I'll make the necessary arrangements to add the Black Dragon Army you've brought here into the Red Flame Army." Then, James pulled his phone out and called Nathaniel.

Nathaniel was the only general whom James could trust.

Besides, he had even given him a bunch of crucial information which James had yet to have the time to read through them.

Soon, Nathaniel was here.

"Emperor..." He greeted.

Then, upon seeing Henry who was also in the office, he greeted, "Black Shadow General." James ordered, "I want you to add the Black Dragon Army which Henry brought from the Southern Plains into the Red Flame Army." "Understood, I'll see to it immediately." "You're free to go." James waved.

Nathaniel briefly glanced at Henry before leaving.

James stood up and said, "Order your men to head to the arms depot at once.

Make sure they are fully armed and prepared to move out." "Understood." Henry stood up and swiftly left.

James then brought the fully-armed Black Dragon Army to the Tucksons' villa.

At the same time, in the dungeon of the Tucksons' villa...

Jeanne and Delilah were hung up with bruises all over their bodies.

Halvor was sitting on a chair sipping his tea.

Looking at the two women, he asked nonchalantly, "Last chance..."

Where is Xavion Zachary?" "I don't know.

Please let us go," Jeanne pleaded.

Halvor's face darkened, and he said, "Continue." Whish! Immediately, a man who was holding a whip lashed at the two.

"Argh!" Jeanne screamed in pain.

"I really don't know." Delilah yelled, "Stop whipping my mother, you animals! Come at me!" She knew that James would be here soon.

She just had to stall for time.

"I-I know! I know where he is!" Hearing this, Halvor waved and his bodyguard stopped.

"Speak then." Delilah said, "I know you're after the latest technology of my father's company.

I know my father's location and where the technology is.

Let me down first." Delilah had seen the documents the Red Flame Army had found.

She knew some insider information and the fact that the Tucksons would kill without any hesitation.

Now, she just had to stall for time.

Halvor waved a hand slightly.

"Let her down." Immediately, Delilah and Jeanne fell to the ground.

Delilah hurriedly helped Jeanne up, "Are you alright, Mom?" Jeanne was bloodied all over.

Since she knew that James would be here soon and that her daughter was stalling for time, she put on an act too.

"Oh Delilah, just tell them everything you know.

After this is over, let's leave the Capital together.

I can't stand this place any longer."

"I want money." Helping her mother up, Delilah looked at Halvor and said, "Give me 100 million dollars and help me clear all of my debt.

In return, I'll give you the information." Though she did not know what technology his stepfather's company had made a breakthrough in, she knew it would be worth a fortune.

Otherwise, the Tucksons would not have gone to such lengths.

After all, they risked antagonizing the Emperor for this.

"Sure." Halvor did not hesitate.

To him, they were already dead.

He would agree to whatever conditions they put forward.

"First, get us a doctor to treat our injuries," Delilah said with a frustrated look on her face.

Her expression, which seemed to be one of resignation and helplessness, managed to fool Halvor.

He thought that Delilah had information regarding the technological breakthrough and was ready to hand them over to him out of fear.

However, Delilah was an actress, whose acting skills were top-notch.

"Sure." Halvor nodded and immediately ordered, "Call the doctor." "Can you stand, Mom?" Helping Jeanne up, Delilah looked at Halvor and asked, "Don't tell me you're still going to imprison us in this underground basement?" "I'll arrange a room for you too," Halvor said with a bright smile.

Soon, Delilah and her mother were brought to a room.

Delilah whispered, "Don't worry, Mom.

The Emperor will be here to save us soon.

It's over for the Tucksons." Jeanne was afraid.

She had never stared death in the eye.

Even now, she was still shivering in fear.

“will everything be alright, Delilah?” she asked fearfully.

At that moment, the door opened and a female doctor walked in.

Behind her were Halvor and a few other Tucksons.

Delilah immediately said, “Everything will be alright, Mom.

Once I hand over the information, we’ll receive 100 million dollars, which will be enough for the rest of our lifetime.

Then, we’ll the Capital and never return.” “At least you aren’t dumb.” Wearing a bright smile, Halvor asked, “T got you a doctor.

Where’s the research data?” “T-In my house,” Delilah said.

“Where?” “There’s a tiny shelf in my room.

The research data is inside it,” Delilah began making things up.

Halvor immediately dispatched his men.

Delilah silently pleaded that James would arrive before the Tucksons reach her house.

Otherwise, she and her mother would be doomed.

At that moment, James had already departed from the military region with the Black Dragon Army.

The thousand-strong Black Dragon Army had already joined the Red Flame Army, giving them authority to act with impunity.

The mighty column of convoys departed.

James was in the backseat of the frontmost convoy, resting.

Henry who was beside him asked, “James, what’s our plan of action this time?” “The Tucksons,” James said.

“What? Who are they?” Henry was confused.

As he spent most of his days in the Southern Plains, he knew little about the Capital and the families there.

James said, “The Tucksons are a powerful family established in the Capital for centuries.

They have a close relationship with many high-ranking officials.

First, we'll head over to the Tucksons' residence and save lives.

After that, we'll arrest all individuals related to them." "What?" Henry was stunned.

"James, the Capital will be turned upside down." James smiled.

Making a move on the Tucksons would have much greater consequences than executing Mr. Gabriel.

The mighty column of convoys could not help but attract the attention of passers-by.

"where are all these convoys headed to?" "What's the new Emperor trying to do?" "They seem to be heading in the direction of Hope Villa District.

Only powerful and influential people live there." "Let's enjoy the show." The crowd was in an uproar.

Soon, the convoys arrived at Hope Villa District.

Fully armed soldiers got off and fell into formation.

This created a sensation.

James got off the convoy with Henry following close behind.

At the same time, in the Tucksons...

"what?" After receiving a call, Halvor was enraged.

He grabbed Delilah's hair and slapped her across the face.

"How dare you lie to me, you b*tch?! I'll tear you to pieces!" Delilah's face was swollen, and blood was dripping from her lips.

Halvor pulled out a gun and pressed it against her head and roared, "One last chance! Where is the research data?" Jeanne's face paled.

She immediately knelt before Halvor and pleaded, "Delilah has nothing to do with this. She doesn't know anything.

Ask me instead." "Mom, get up!" Delilah yelled, ignoring the gun pressed against her head.

"Speak!" Halvor grabbed the handle of the gun and smashed it against Delilah's head. Blood immediately oozed out, and she collapsed to the floor.

Before she could react, Halvor began beating her up.

The excruciating pain contorted her face.

"I-I dare you to kill me...

The Emperor will be here soon." Delilah had no choice but to use her last resort.

"I've been with the Emperor all this while.

He ordered Forrest and his men to bring us here.

He'll be here soon." "Think you can threaten me?" Halvor's face darkened.

"Hmph! Delilah said coldly, "Why don't you test things out?" At that moment, the door opened.

A man staggered in and cried out, "Something bad has happened.

The Red Flame Army has assembled outside the district in full military gear.

A-And the Emperor is here too." "What?" Hearing this, Halvor's face paled.

"Is it truly the Red Flame Army? Is it truly James?" "Yes, I'm sure of it." Halvor immediately pulled out his phone and called Braxton, "What the hell is going on, Braxton? Why didn't you inform me earlier of the Red Flame Army's mobilization?" "It's over for the Tucksons, Halvor.

I only just received news that James brought the Black Dragon Army into the Capital and joined the Red Flame Army.

As he only used his former subordinates, I wasn't informed of this.

I'm about to make my escape.

Good luck to you." Then.

Braxton hung up the phone.

Halvor's face was pale.

"Curse you, James! There's no way you'll make a move on the Tucksons." Gritting his teeth, he ordered, "Inform the Wagner Mercenaries to reinforce the Tucksons immediately.

If James dares make a move, we'll fight to the bitter end." "Have you gone mad, Father? We don't stand a chance against the Red Flame Army!" "Grandpa, I don't want to die so soon.

Please don't act recklessly.

We should use our connections to avert this crisis." The Tucksons were panicking.

Hearing that they were about to fight against the Red Flame Army, the Tucksons panicked.

"What else can I do then?" Halvor's face darkened.

James' army was already outside the district.

The Tucksons would be over if he does not resort to extreme measures.

"We should remain calm, Father.

James is different from other generals.

He's the commander-in-chief of the Black Dragon Army and the Dragon King.

He climbed the ranks by stepping on the corpses of his enemies.

Why would he be afraid of mere mercenaries?" "Exactly." The Tucksons tried convincing Halvor.

Halvor composed himself.

He immediately pulled his phone out and called the Secretary-General.

"Secretary-General, why is James here outside my house with an army? Request an audience with the King and ask him to order James to retreat." A hoarse voice came from the phone and said, "Halvor, do you still not understand the situation? Why did the King make James the Emperor? That's because he wields the Blade of Justice.

He can accomplish feats others can't.

I wish you good luck.

In any case, I can't do anything to help.

Do not contact me anymore, and don't you dare rat me out.

Otherwise, the Tucksons will surely be doomed." Beep...

Before Halvor could say anything, the Secretary-General hung up the phone.

"Hello? F*ck!" Halvor cursed.

Then, he called another number.

"Chief Executive..." Beep...

Before he could finish his sentence, the other side immediately hung up the call.

Halvor, however, was persistent.

He kept calling various powerful figures whom he had a close relationship with.

He wanted them to use their connections and order James to retreat.

"I'm sorry, the number you have dialed is unavailable." "F*ck..." Halvor cursed.

Though he had a good relationship with these powerful figures, none of them were willing to extend a helping hand.

The Tucksons looked at him in anticipation.

"How did it go, Father?" "Keep calling, Grandpa.

You have a close relationship with these powerful figures.

Every year, we would even send them gifts..." "Shut up!" Halvor yelled.

The Tucksons fell silent.

Delilah's face was swollen, and blood was oozing out from her forehead.

With great difficulty, she got up while clutching her head.

Immediately, Halvor grabbed her by the hair.

"You're the reason why James is here.

I'll kill you!" "No, Father!" "Calm down, Grandpa.

We shouldn't act recklessly.

Since you're the cause of this, you should admit your crimes.

Otherwise, the Tucksons are doomed." The Tucksons would surely be doomed if Delilah was killed.

"This is bad, Mr. Halvor.

The Red Flame Army has entered the district and is now heading here," came a yell.

A thousand strong fully armed soldiers surrounded the Tucksons' residence.

Then, a few soldiers rushed toward the door and broke it down..

Boom! The door collapsed, and James walked in.

Seeing the fully armed soldiers, the Tucksons immediately crouched down and covered their heads.

Halvor knew it was over for them.

However, he was unwilling to admit defeat just like that.

He immediately called a number.

“Marion Wagner, the Tucksons’ residence is surrounded by the Red Flame Army.

Bring a few thousand men here at once and force James to make a retreat.

Once I’ve escaped safely, I’ll give you a third of the Tucksons’ assets.” A voice came, “Mr. Halvor, what makes you think that I’ll help the Tucksons out?

Once you’re dead, all of the Tucksons’ assets will be confiscated.” Halvor hurriedly said, “I have several bank accounts overseas with a couple of billions in each of them.

Help me out and I’ll give you a third of them.” “T would love to.

However, I value my life more.” “Don’t f*ck around with me! I thought you mercenaries would be willing to do anything for money even at the cost of your life! You don’t have to come personally.

Just send your men here.

There’s no way James would allow the situation to escalate in the Capital.

Can he withstand the consequences of this?” Halvor had no choice but to make a gamble.

Marion remained silent for a while before saying, “Fine, I promise you.

But first, you’ll have to pay up.” “Sure, I’ll make the transfer immediately.” Halvor hurriedly made the transfer.

In less than a minute, the process was complete.

Clack! Clack! Clack! The sound of footsteps could be heard outside.

Halvor immediately grabbed Delilah and pressed a gun against her head.

Meanwhile, in a hotel in the Capital...

Seeing that the transfer was made, a man stood up and gave a call, “Mobilize three thousand men to the Tucksons’ residence and rescue Halvor Tuckson no matter the cost.

Don't worry, I'll give your belongings to your family." After hanging up the phone, he swiftly headed to the airport.

In the Tucksons' residence...

James walked up the stairs.

Then, he entered a room with Henry and a dozen fully armed soldiers following close behind.

The moment he entered through the door, the Tucksons immediately covered their heads and crouched down.

Halvor, on the other hand, grabbed Delilah and retreated to a corner.

Looking at James and the fully armed soldiers, he said coldly, "Give the order to retreat immediately, James.

Or else, I won't hesitate to put a bullet through her head." James remained composed when faced with an ordinary man.

He was confident that his speed was much greater than Halvor's bullet.

"Why bother resisting when it has come to this, Halvor? Tell me honestly everything you did all these years and who you've been in contact with.

I promise I'll spare your life." "Hahaha..." Halvor burst into a peal of laughter.

"What's the point of sparing my life? I'm not interested in spending the remainder of my life in prison.

Besides, do you dare make a move on me, James? Do you know what the consequences are? Do you know who are the ones behind me?" James glanced at him and said, "Why don't you tell me about it?" "There's the Secretary-General and the Chief Executive.

Also, let's not forget a group of high-ranking officials in the military.

The Capital will be thrown into disarray if you dare make a move on me.

Not even the King dares act recklessly.

So can you?" Hearing this, a grin crept up on James' face.

"what do you think?" Then, with the speed of lightning, he appeared behind Halvor.

Before Halvor could even react, he felt a searing pain on his wrist, and his gun fell to the floor.

Then, he cried out in pain.

Grabbing Halvor's hand, James threw him into the air.

Halvor was sent flying and collapsed to the floor.

Meanwhile, a few soldiers immediately handcuffed him.

Halvor struggled with all his might but to no avail.

He cried out, "Don't you dare, James! I promise I will annihilate your wife's family." "Take them away." James' expression darkened, and he said coldly, "Seal off the Tucksons' residence and confiscate all their assets." "Understood." Halvor was taken away.

James pulled his phone out and called Thea.

"Thea, inform the God- King Palace to protect the Callahans, Quincy and the others in Cansington.

A storm is brewing in the Capital."

A cornered dog would inevitably lash out.

James was worried Halvor would do something reckless.

Since he was currently in the Capital and was unable to concern himself with the affairs in Cansington, he immediately called Thea and instructed her to order the God - King Palace to step up their security measures to protect the Callahans, Quincy, and the others in Messiah Corporation.

"How dare you arrest me, James? Do you know who I am? Do you know what I'm capable of?" Even as Halvor was taken away, he continued shouting.

However, James paid no heed to him.

He looked at Delilah who was bloodied all over and apologized, "I'm sorry I was late."
"T-It's alright..." Caressing her bloodied forehead, Delilah said, "Thank you for arriving on time.

Otherwise, my mother and I..." James waved slightly.

"It's the least I could do.

I will ask someone to send you to the hospital first.

Once I'm done resolving the matter, I'll visit you." Henry immediately ordered, "Send her to the hospital." "Understood."

A few soldiers brought Delilah and her mother away, while all of the Tucksons were arrested.

In a convoy...

Handcuffed, Halvor's expression was grim.

He was waiting for the mercenaries' arrival.

The mercenaries were not afraid to die.

As long as they were paid, they could do anything.

He believed that James would definitely let him go once they arrived.

Under James' orders, all businesses under the Tucksons were seized.

Outside the Tucksons' residence in Hope Villa District...

Henry walked over to a convoy and reported, "Emperor, all Tucksons have been arrested.

Please give us your order." "Take them to the courthouse and imprison them in the dungeon.

Also, give the order to investigate the Tucksons.

At the same time, put out a reward to gather $\mu, \sigma \nu \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \nu \sigma \kappa . \phi \sigma \mu$ evidence of the Tucksons' past crimes."

"Understood." Henry saluted him and ordered, "Retreat." The convoys began leaving.

However, before they could leave the district, a few trucks drove toward them.

Then, the container opened and fully armed mercenaries charged out and surrounded Hope Villa District.

They were the Wagner Mercenaries.

However, Marion was not the one leading them.

It was one of his subordinates, Nott Thorstein.

Nott knew exactly what he was doing.

Though he and the remaining three thousand men knew that their chances of surviving were close to none, they chose to come for the sake of money.

“Surround them.

Do not let a single one of them pass,” Nott yelled.

Around forty years of age, he was a tanned man.

There were a few scars on his face.

The column of convoys stopped dead in its tracks, and a soldier hurriedly dashed toward the convoy James was in.

James got off the convoy and asked, “What’s wrong? Why did you stop?” “Something bad happened.

Thousands of fully armed mercenaries have surrounded Hope Villa District.”

Hearing this, James’ face darkened, and he roared, “How did thousands of mercenaries manage to sneak into the Capital where the Red Flame Army is in charge?

This is preposterous!” Henry furrowed his eyebrows.

“This is bad, Emperor.

This is a district where many influential and wealthy people live.

If this becomes a battlefield, many lives will be lost.” Wearing a grim expression, James pulled his phone out and called Nathaniel.

“Is something the matter?” η-ονελεβσοκ.φσm “Mobilize the army and seal off the Capital.

Hearing this, Nathaniel's face paled, and he asked, "Why? Did something happen?"

James ordered, "Three thousand mercenaries have surrounded Hope Villa District.

I want you to mobilize the entire armed forces and reinforce me.

I don't wish to harm any innocent people, nor do I wish to let a single enemy escape."

"Holy..." Hearing this, Nathaniel was stunned, and he immediately gave the order.

Sirens began blaring throughout the Red Flame Army's headquarters.

The Red Flame Army hastily assembled and was prepared to move out.

Convoys, armored cars, and helicopters were on the move.

At the same time, in Hope Villa District...

The mercenaries seized control of the security room and wiped out all security guards.

A man full of scars on his face was speaking using a loudspeaker, "Listen up, James.

Release Halvor Tuckson immediately and prepare a helicopter for me, or else I'll flatten Hope Villa District." "Curses!" James was enraged.

"Emperor, we shouldn't act recklessly.

We don't know about their numbers or their weapons.

The consequences will be dire if we're reckless," Henry hurriedly reminded James.

James took a deep breath to calm himself down.

"Hahaha..." Halvor burst into a peal of laughter, "I told you, didn't I? There's no way you can withstand the consequences.

Release me at once, or else I'll make sure hundreds of innocent victims die alongside me." James ignored him.

At the same time, Central Command was established.

A few drones were used to scout the situation outside.

"Emperor, there are approximately three thousand men outside armed with heavy weaponry.

They even have RPGs.

We can't annihilate them all without getting innocent people in Hope Villa District involved."

"Emperor, they're the Wagner Mercenaries, who are active in the North African region.

I don't know how they managed to infiltrate the Capital." "Their weapons are Solean weaponry.

They must have been in contact with the military." More and more news came.

Hearing them, James' face darkened.

Things were way more complex than he initially thought.

He was confident he could annihilate the mercenaries.

However, he could not guarantee the safety of the civilians inside Hope Villa District.

James was wearing a grim expression.

"Emperor, the Secretary of Defence is on the line." "Put him through." James grabbed the phone beside him.

"Do not act recklessly, James.

Hope Villa District is full of important figures of Sol.

Their deaths would be the nation's loss.

Accept whatever demands they make." James hung up the phone.

"Emperor, the Directorate of Security is on the line." "Ignore him," James ordered.

He knew that these powerful figures were trying to pressure him to accept the enemy's demands.

However, as the person in charge of this battle, η_σνελεβσσκ.φσm he called the shots around here.

Henry asked, "What should we do, Emperor? Do we compromise or..." James said, "We will stall for time before the main forces arrive.

This is the Capital, the capital of Sol.

If we allow them to take Halvor just like that, what would the world think of us? Are the negotiators here?"

"Yes, they are in the process of negotiating.

However, the enemy only demands to see you." "Alright then, I'll see what they are up to." James stood up and left Central Command.

Of the Crazy Carriage stories I have ever read, perhaps the most impressive thing is The Almighty Dragon General. The story is too good, leaving me with many doubts. Currently the manga has been translated to Chapter 1128. Let's read now the author's The Almighty Dragon General Crazy Carriage story right here

Outside Hope Villa District...

Three thousand fully armed mercenaries surrounded the entire district.

The security guards had been annihilated, except for three.

They were kneeling on the ground, with guns pressed against their heads.

Not too far away, a column of convoys was stopped in their tracks.

Thousands of fully armed soldiers were on high alert.

Aman in a black jacket whose face was covered in scars was standing nearby the security room.

Behind him were a dozen men, who were aiming their RPGs at the convoys.

James approached.

A soldier immediately presented him with his bulletproof vest.

However, James waved slightly and politely declined.

He walked over to Nott.

“Halt.” With a loudspeaker in his hand, Nott yelled, “Take another step and we’ll open fire.” James stopped.

A few shielded soldiers hurriedly walked over to James and handed him a loudspeaker.

James lightly waved.

“I do not need this.” Looking at Nott, James catalyzed True Energy and yelled, “What are you trying to do? Do you know where you are right now? This is the Capital.

All escape routes have been sealed off.

Do you seriously think you can escape?” As James had catalyzed True Energy, his voice was audible even from twenty meters away.

James’ voice buzzed in Nott’s ears.

It was a little uncomfortable.

After a few seconds, he replied, “I have no plans of leaving this place alive.

Bring Halvor here at once and prepare mea helicopter.” “Fine, I accept your demand,” James said without the slightest bit of hesitation.

“But I need time to prepare the helicopter.” “T want the helicopter in ten minutes, or else the district will be in ruins.” “Got it.” Then, James returned to Central Command.

“when will you arrive, Nathaniel?” “The Air Force is ready.

As for the rest, around twenty minutes or so.” Hearing this, James frowned.

It would be too late by then.

“T want real-live footage of the surveillance $\text{ισπελεβσσκ.}\phi\sigma\mu$ cameras outside Hope Villa District.” In an instant, the images appeared before him.

There were many fully armed mercenaries.

With a simple glance, he immediately understood the mercenaries ’ battle positions.

The moment a battle broke out, they would immediately charge into any nearby villas and annihilate the people living inside.

As they were unafraid of death, the whole place would be in ruins once battle breaks out.

“How many people live here?” “Around three thousand people.

They are all wealthy multi- billionaires and CEOs of mega-conglomerates.

James frowned.

Everyone in Central Command was wearing a grim expression.

After a brief moment, he pulled his phone out and called Maxine.

Before he could speak, Maxine said, η-σνελεβσοκ.φσm “I already know what’s going on.

Three thousand mercenaries have surrounded Hope Villa District.

Don’t act recklessly, James.

If the situation goes out of control, many innocent lives will be lost.”

James said solemnly, “I don’t have a choice.

In a short amount of time, many powerful figures called me to warn against escalating the situation and to accept the enemy’s demands.

Help me think of something, Maxine.” Maxine had been paying close attention to this incident the moment James called Thea.

Then, news came from the Cadens.

After hearing of this, she had been thinking of a way to deal with the three thousand-strong mercenaries while suffering minimal losses.

Now, she had a general idea of what to do.

“James, from what I understand, these mercenaries know that they will be fighting against the Red Flame Army in the Capital.

This means that they have no plans of returning alive.” “This is rather problematic.” “They are most certainly risking their lives for money.

Before battle breaks out, try demoralizing the mercenaries.

Promise them you will reward them with a sum as long as they surrender.

Once a few wavers, seize the opportunity and make a breakthrough.” “You're the Black Dragon.

You have seen and experienced many combats.

You know what to do.” This was the only way Maxine could think of with the limited time she had.

“T understand.

I'll give it a try.” James hung up the phone.

Now, he had a rough idea of what to do.

He ordered, “Red Flame Army, prepare to get into position.

Snipers, into position.

Once I give my orders, I want you to end the battle as soon as possible.

Do not give the enemy breathing space.

Soldiers in Hope Villa District, swiftly head toward the periphery and occupy the high ground.

Once I give my order, work together with the Red Flame Army from outside.” After giving his orders, James walked toward the convoy Halvor was in.

Halvor was sitting in the convoy with a composed look on his face.

Upon seeing James, he smiled, “James, I believe you will make the right choice.” Glancing at Halvor, James said coldly, “Halvor, what a bold man you are.

This should have been over once I arrested you.

Now that you have created such a commotion, it wouldn't be easy for me to deal with the mess." "I only want to live," Halvor said coldly.

"Take him out," James ordered.

The handcuffed Halvor was immediately brought out.

James then headed toward the entrance of Hope Villa District with him.

At the same time, in Peace Mansion...

The King and Mr. Lee were together.

The King was wearing a grim expression.

He was worried that the situation would escalate out of control.

The consequences would be dire.

"Mr.

Lee, can James really resolve the issue?" Mr. Lee was composed.

No one knew what he was thinking about.

However, deep down, he was worried.

After all, no ordinary people live in Hope Villa District.

Now that news had spread, panic swept the nation.

If not properly resolved, the consequences would be dire.

"I think so." Mr. Lee was unsure.

After all, the mercenaries were armed with heavy weaponry and were unafraid to die.

The King said, "If the situation escalates out of control and Hope Villa District becomes a battlefield, many innocent lives will be lost.

Even a single death would shake the pillars of Sol.

I just received news that James has mobilized the Red Flame Army while declining to accept the call of the powerful figures in the military.

He's going all out." Mr. Lee said, "As a military man, he knows what to do.

I believe he will compromise when necessary.

Besides, we don't have any other options now.

We can only have faith in him.

If he can successfully resolve this matter, the dynamics of the Capital will completely change.

Think of it as a purge in advance." "Mhm...

I hope James will handle the situation well." The King nodded.

Since he made James the Emperor, he believed in his ability.

However, he also had a backup plan.

He only hoped that needless bloodshed could be avoided.

Otherwise, it would be difficult for him to clean up the mess.
