Chapter 39

It was also Thea who put the Callahans in extreme danger last time. Howard slammed his hand on the table and growled angrily, “Benjamin, this is too much. How can you be late?! Do you think you’re greater than us now that you have the family shares? Do you think we deserve to wait for you?”

“I’m sorry, Howard,” Benjamin’s head hung low as he apologized.

Thea came over and said, “Howard, it was me who caused the delay. It’s not my dad’s fault.”

Howard became even more furious.

“Thea, don’t you understand our rules? Family meetings are of the utmost importance. Just because you have something with the CEO of Celestial Group doesn’t mean you can ignore the rules.”

“Yeah, because of you, we almost died at Trent Xavier’s hands.”

“Thank god I wasn’t home that day, or else I’d definitely be canceled in Cansington.”

“You jinx! You dare to ask for a 10% share after all that?” The Callahans talked over each other as they berated Thea’s family.

“Enough,” Lex announced, finally stopping the dispute. James Caden remained silent. He was a son-in-law in this family, so he had to be quiet in order to not attract any more trouble for Thea. Now that all of the family members were here, Lex commenced the meeting.

” Tomorrow will very likely be the succession ceremony of the Blithe king. There is word that only 100 seats are available. Think, voice any ideas to get our hands on those seats.”

Nobody in the hall spoke. How could that be possible? There were so many affluent families in the five regions. It would never be their Turn as they were of a lower class.

“Why, are we all mule? I thought you were a talkative bunch?” Lex glared across the room before he yelled furiously, “Look at yourselves. When you’re fighting for my legacy, you couldn’t be any louder, but all of you hide when it comes to helping your own family!”

“Grandpa, let Thea go do it,” Tommy Callahan, of the third generation of the Callahans suggested.

“Thea is Alex’s lover. She can go sleep with him once more. With his influence, it wouldn’t be hard to get us a seat.”

Thea was always obedient. She never spoke back against any of her family members’ opinions.

Nevertheless, this angered her.

She pointed at Tommy with a trembling finger as tears welled up in her eyes, “Tommy, don’t speak of me like that.”

“Am I lying, though?” Tommy bat an eyelid of annoyance at her.

“You must’ve had sex with Alex for him to treat you so well. Heck, he even canceled the business deal with us because of you.”

“You...” Thea’s chest heaved heavily out of disbelief. She could not even speak a word.

However, Benjamin did not say anything. Gladys wanted to say something but she did not know how, as she was also uncertain whether Thea slept with Alex, James stepped towards Tommy.

This caught Tommy by surprise. “What, what are you doing?! James, watch yourself. This is the Callahan mansion!”

Tommy had his reasons to fear James, especially when the man was tall, strong, and loaded with military experience.

However, being in a Callahan property gave him confidence. “I’m not wrong. Alex was only good to her because they had sex!”

Smack!

James gave him a loud slap across the face.

“Ow!” Tommy held his face as he cried in agony. He snapped his head at Lex and screamed, “Grandpa, look at him! He hit me at a family meeting. You have to let this man go!” Lex fixated his eyes on James, looking cross.

Thea tugged on James’s hand and whispered, James, apologize.

Although James was helping her and that made her happy, this was still a Callahan family meeting. His behavior was clearly violating their family rules.

“You violent scumbag! How dare you attack my son. Dad, he’s acting all cocky because he has some shares. You have to make him leave our family, and revoke Benjamin’s shares,” Tommy’s mother, Jolie Loretta blurted.

“Yes, make him leave, and revoke Benjamin’s shares.”

“Such arrogance! What do you see the family rules as?”

“Do they look like a joke to you?”

“You’re disrespecting the head of the family.” The Callahans raged.
