Chapter 391 This money was supposed to be used as capital for her company's recovery. "That's right, she received this money from someone else. It never actually belonged to her in the first place. You're not just going to sit back and watch your family get extorted by loan sharks, right?" David blurted desperately.

"If the loan sharks don't end up killing you, I will!" Infuriated at her son's shamelessness, Gladys continued hitting David with the broom. "Thea, please. I'm your only brother."

"Please, Thea... Save Davie. He's learned his lesson! He won't repeat this mistake ever again." The couple knelt at Thea's feet and continued to plead. After giving David a beating, Gladys looked at Thea. "Thea, you have money on your card, don't you? Why don't you help them pay off the debt? You can earn back the money eventually, but if you lose your brother, he'll be gone forever."

"Mom

Thea was put on the spot.

This was not just a paltry sum. It was over a billion dollars they were talking about here! "Mom, the loans aren't legitimate anyway. How about we contact the police?"

"D-Don't!"

David crawled toward Thea and prostrated himself in front of her, "Maximus has men all over the place. If you call the police, he will take action. Our family will be done for!" "...but 800 million of debt with a 600 million dollar interest is just too much!"

Thea was not willing to pay off their debt.

out that Thea's backer, the Black Dragon, made enemies out of many powerful people. They're all chomping at the bit to kill him. They won't bat an eye if anything happens to the Callahans." He was not only a shrewd man but astute as well. With these traits, Maximus was able to seize the opportunity and rise at the perfect time. Otherwise, he would have waited for the bigwigs to go into hiding before he rose as the new king of the Cansington's underworld. At the Callahans,

David once again burst into tears. He headed for the window and prepared to jump again.

"It's all my fault. I should just die."

Alyssa pulled him back in time.

Though Gladys knew it was David's fault, he was her only son. Since the damage had been done, there was no use crying over spilled milk. She stood up and reprimanded Thea, "Someone else gave you the money in the first place. Why can't you just use it to save your brother? He's your only brother! Are you really willing to watch him jump off the 8th floor?" "I..."

"Would it take me throwing myself over the balcony too to make you fork out the money?" After she said that, Gladys also made her way to the window. Benjamin intercepted her.

He turned and looked over at Thea, "Thea, we can't offend these powerful people. Just pay up and it'll all be over."

Everyone in Thea's family was pressuring her to deal with this problem. 1 Thea cried out in exasperation, "Fine! Fine! I'll pay. Are you satisfied now?"

Chapter 392 Thea had no other choice.

At this point, all she could do was fork over the money and get this over with. Since this money came from someone else originally, she did not feel as horrible about letting it go.

Gladys calmed down when Thea gave in to their badgering. She sighed, "Thank you, Thea."

Turning towards David, she addressed him sternly. "From today onwards, you're not allowed to leave the house without my permission." "Yes, of course."

David knew he had no choice but to agree.

After the heated discussion, Thea decided the best way forward was to pay off her brother's debts.

Knock! Knock! Knock!

A knock came from the door. "Answer the door, Benjamin," Gladys said to her husband. Benjamin answered the door.

She said in resignation, "This money isn't mine in the first place. Mr. Xenos gave it to me because he was fearful of the Black Dragon's wrath. Now that the Black Dragon has resigned, it's only natural that he'd want it back." "You can't return it, Thea!" Gladys tried her best to persuade her, "How are we going to save David without the money?"

"I-I don't know either!"

Thea was at a loss.

Although it was Richard who transferred her the money, he was free to take it back whenever he found it convenient. On top of everything, she only had 1.5 billion left on her card. Richard was demanding she return the two million dollars. Even if she had transferred everything she was still 500 million short. She'd be taken to court if she failed to return it. Shortly after the representatives of the bank left, Thea received a notification from the bank. All money on her card was transferred away.

Richard must have been behind it.

Richard was an influential man. Demanding the bank to transfer the money on her card back to him was a simple task. Without the money, the rest of the Callahans started panicking again.

"What are we going to do now?"

David yet again began to cry.

Chapter 393 Gladys could only wring her hands anxiously. The whole family was in a state of panic.

Just when they thought they were anxious enough, the Xenoses lawyer's letter was here to make things worse

It accused Thea of unlawfully possessing the wealth of others and misappropriating 500 million dollars. It demanded that she return the funds within a certain time frame. Otherwise, she'd be prosecuted in court.

As the saying goes when it rains, it pours. Before they could even pay off David's debts, the Xenos had transferred the money in Thea's bank account away.

The Callahans were in a full-blown crisis.

They gathered.

No one was able to utter a single word. The atmosphere was suffocating.

"Think of something, mom." Desperate, Alyssa broke the silence. There was nothing Gladys could do. What could she have done?

They owed the Xenos 500 million. Add that to the 800 million loans and the interests and the amount they needed was astronomical. Even if they sold the Callahans' Eternality Group, they still would not have enough. "You're David's only hope, Thea." Gladys looked at Thea mournfully.

"How?!"

Thea cried out.

Now that he had resigned, she felt like her life had turned upside down.

"Why?! Why me?!"

Standing in the rain, she yelled hopelessly.

However, there was no reply.

The rain eventually subsided.

Thea sat at the bus stop alone. She was soaked by the rain. Her wet clothes clung to her skin revealing her curvaceous figure. "What should I do?"

She thought long and hard.

She now owed the Xenos 500 million. In addition, her brother owed 800 million to loan sharks. Add the interest into the equation and the total had surpassed over a billion already. She owed approximately 2 billion dollars in total. The Xenoses were a rich and powerful family. She had no choice but to comply with their demands.

Maximus was also a vicious and cold-blooded figure of the underworld. If she didn't pay up, the Callahans would also be in deep trouble.

But where on earth could she find 2 billion dollars?

Chapter 394

The Callahans were up a creek without a paddle.

They had to think of a way to resolve the problem. Putting the loans aside, they had to return the 500 million they owe to the Xenos as soon as possible. Thea still had 100 million in her company account she could withdraw. The villa the Black Dragon gave her as a present should be worth around 300 million. They should be able to easily sell it for 300 million even if they sold it below market price. However, they were still 100 million short. Where on earth could she get 100 million dollars?

She wandered about aimlessly. Before she knew it, she arrived at the entrance of Majestic Corporation.

She wanted to meet the mysterious Mr. Caden. There were rumors that he was in the Southern Plains fighting the twenty-eight fighters at Mt. Thunder Pass and was surrounded by an army of a hundred thousand men.

Some said that the Black Dragon made it out alive.

Others believed he died on the battlefield.

Then, he called Thea.

Thea was wandering about on the streets. She had no idea where she was nor what she was going to do next. The phone rang. She pulled out her phone and saw it was James. She answered the call. "What's wrong, honey?" James replied, "I've been busy for the past few days and didn't have time to contact you. Now that I'm free, I finally have time to ask how you are. Is everything alright at home?" "N-Nothing. Everything's fine as usual."

Thea held her tongue. She knew James would not be able to help her out.

James had given her all his money. What she needed was more than what he could possibly give her. "Honey, tell me if anything is going on. There's nothing I can't fix. I'm almost done here and will be back in around ten days." "Alright, all the best. Everything's fine here, so no need to worry."

Thea hung up the call.

Then, she wept.

She crouched down and cried her eyes out.

Chapter 395 If only her husband was not useless... If only James were a powerful and influential man, her problems would not have surfaced in the first place. 1

Unfortunately, her husband was trash.

James was just a good-for-nothing son-in-law of the Callahans.

James relaxed after making the call. He tossed his phone on the table and asked, "How's Henry's condition?" Levi replied, "He's still stable."

"Good. Watch his condition closely. Let me know immediately if something's wrong."

"Understood."

"You may leave me now. I'm tired. I'm going back to sleep."

Levi left his commander to his rest.

James got on the bed.

He was bone-tired.

He had used up a lot of his strength after his combat with the twenty-eight fighters at Mt. Thunder Pass. To make things worse, he had to flee from the hundred-thousand-strong army for a whole night. His body was near its limit.

She nodded.

Quincy called Xavier and explained what had happened.

At the Watsons' villa, Xavier was deep in contemplation after learning what had happened to Thea.

He still could not forget Thea after all this time.

It was only because of how influential and intimidating her husband was that he never dared to approach her.

Now, things were different. News of the Black Dragon's resignation had caused an uproar. There were also rumors on the internet that the Black Dragon was in the Southern Plains locked in combat with the twenty-eight fighters and being pursued by a massive army.

"Since James had resigned and was no longer the Black Dragon, what is there to be afraid of? Not only that, he's also made a lot of influential enemies. Putting all things aside, the Five Provinces Business Alliance isn't going to let him off the hook after he used his connections to forcibly take over the Transgenerational New City."

"It's best if he had died in the Southern Plains."

"Even if he survives, he'd be in deep trouble the moment he returns to Cansington." Thinking about this, Xavier grinned expectantly. "You're finally mine, Thea."

Chapter 396 Thea had no other options. The only one who could save her and her family was Xavier. The two waited at a restaurant. Xavier came as quickly as he could. He arrived at the room of the restaurant in just half an hour. He looked handsome and charming. He was wearing a designer suit and a luxury watch. Walking in, he greeted the two women, "Hello, Thea. Hey, Quincy." Thea stood up immediately, "M-Mr. Watson."

Quincy remained seated. She sat by the side and gave him a small smile. She pointed to an empty seat beside Thea and said, "Have a seat, Xavier."

Thea took her seat.

So did Xavier.

The two were seated side-by-side. Thea adjusted her position to maintain a distance from Xavier.

Xavier glanced at Thea and asked with a charming smile, "By the way, where's your husband, James?"

"H-He's on a business trip."

"Is that so?"

He walked out and left.

"Sigh..." Quincy sighed, "Thea, I gave you a way out of your miserable situation. Why didn't you seize the opportunity? There's nothing else I can do now. I don't understand what's so good about James. If I were you, I'd have dumped him a long time ago."

She then stood up.

"At least consider it, will you?" She stood up and went back to work.

"Sob..."

After they left, tears began to well in Thea's eyes again. Must she resort to divorce and run into the arms of another man just to resolve this? She didn't want to sell her body in exchange for her family's safety. Her heart twisted with hate and bile. She hated David.

Chapter 397 Why did he have to steal from her? Why did he have to gamble? Why did he have to borrow so much? If not for David, none of this would have happened. After Zavier left, he immediately went to look for the Xenoses. The Watsons and the Xenoses were all part of the Five Provinces Business Alliance. Although they were from Cansington and North Cansington respectively, they maintained a close relationship. At the Watsons' villa at Goodview Villa District, Zavier personally welcomed Zack, "Welcome, Mr. Xenos." "It's been a while, Zavier." They hugged each other. At the foyer of the first floor of the villa, Zack grinned, "So what can I do for you today, Mr. Watson?"

Zavier decided to get into the heart of the matter. "I heard that the Xenoses gave 2 billion dollars to Thea. I also heard you've taken back 1.5 billion and need 500 million more to be returned."

Zack's face clouded over.

All three generations of his family suffered because of James.

His father had even knelt before Thea. How humiliating!

The Black Dragon was now a disgraced figure, and there were even rumors that he had died on the battlefield at Mt. Thunder Pass in the Southern Plains. This was the perfect opportunity for the Xenoses to exact their revenge.

It was Zavier.

Maximus sat on the sofa and crossed in legs. With a gorgeous woman in his arms, he looked at Zavier as he approached and remarked sarcastically, “What a rare treat to cross paths with the Watsons today. To what do I owe the pleasure?”

The atmosphere in the room was tense. The Watsons were a representative of Cansington in the Five Provinces Business Alliance. They were a powerful and influential family with assets totaling hundreds of billions.

As they were all involved in shady dealings, Maximus could not help but be nervous.

Zavier walked in and took a seat. Smiling, he said, “Your reputation precedes you, Maximus. I'm here today to do business with you. I'll help you rise to the top and become the new underworld king in Cansington.”

“Oh?”

Maximus looked at Zavier quizzically. Zavier said, “From today onwards, the Five Provinces Business Alliance will be your sponsor. No one in Cansington or the five provinces will dare touch you.” Hearing this, Maximus was delighted. He instantly pointed at a few surrounding women and ordered, “You, you, and you! What’re you standing there for? Hurry up and serve Mr. Watson.”

Chapter 398 The Watsons had long planned for this. All these years, they had only conducted legal businesses and had never involved themselves with shady dealings.

This was the perfect opportunity.

The Watsons wanted a puppet, and Maximus was the perfect candidate.

As it’d be inappropriate for the rest of the Watsons to show themselves, Zavier was the right man for the job.

Zavier waved dismissively, declining to entertain the women in revealing clothes. He looked at Maximus and said, “I heard that Thea’s brother, David, borrowed 800 million dollars worth of loans from you.”

“Yes, Mr. Watson. Do the Callahans have something to do with you?”

Zavier waved his hands casually. “No, I’d like you to apply pressure on them. It’s best if you could capture David so that the Callahans are sent into a further panic. Feel free to do anything you want. As long as things don’t get out of control, the Watsons will cover it up for you.”

“Oh?”

James cocked his eyebrows.

He had been conducting an operation on Henry the moment he got back. He had only woken up just now. As such, he was unaware of the rumors being spread.

After a moment’s silence, he said, “Since the news has gotten out, order the Black Dragon army to officially announce that the Black Dragon had died a heroic death on the battlefield at Mt. Thunder Pass in the Southern Plains after being pursued by an army of a hundred thousand men.”

Levi froze, “What do you mean?” James gestured casually at him, “Just do as I say.” “Understood.” Levi did not linger in the conference room for long. He quickly turned to leave. After leaving, he immediately gave the order, “Bring all enemy generals and lieutenants out of their cells and escort them to the consulate general at Pallet Town. At the same time, bring the Black Shadow General. Remember, his condition is currently unstable. So be mindful of that.” After giving the orders, Levi headed toward Pallet Town.

Chapter 399 Pallet Town was a big city near the border of the Southern Plains. Many reporters gathered in front of the consulate general of Pallet Town. “Ladies and gentlemen, this is the consulate general of Pallet Town. News about the developments at the Southern Plains border has been circulating for the past few days. There were also rumors that the commander-in-chief of the Black Dragon army, the Black Dragon himself, has died on the battlefield after a fierce battle against the hundred-thousand-strong army of the twenty-eight nations. The generals of the twenty-eight nations were rumored to have been taken captive.” “What’s the truth of the situation? Let’s wait patiently for the general’s arrival...” At that moment, a convoy stopped in front of the consulate general. Levi got off the convoy.

Following that, fully-armed soldiers escorting the generals of the twenty-eight nations appeared. The generals were forced to kneel with a gun pressed against the back of their heads. The reporters dashed forward and surrounded Levi. The fully-armed soldiers immediately pointed their guns at the reporters. The reporters retreated a few steps.

Levi dismissed them, “Stand down.” “Understood.” The soldiers went back to pointing their guns at the captives. Levi stepped forward and looked at the reporters, “You have exactly five minutes. Ask away.” A reporter immediately asked, “General Levi, could you clarify the information regarding the battle at Mt. Thunder Pass?”

“Yes.”

Levi nodded and said, “As you may know, before his resignation, the Black Dragon exterminated much of the enemy’s forces during his time the Southern Plains. To our enemies, he was nothing but a huge eyesore. I can say with certainty that this is definitely a plot against him.” “The Black Dragon fought against the twenty-eight fighters at the top of Mt. Thunder and exterminated them all.” “However, this was only the first phase of their plot.”

"The Black Dragon has fought countless battles for the past ten years. Perhaps it was for the best that he met his end on the battlefield at Mt. Thunder Pass."

All state news channels and tv stations were reporting on the demise of the God of War. Soon, it was ten past five in the afternoon. At that moment, everyone stopped what they were doing and gathered by the roads, on the streets, and on empty plots of land. They faced toward the south. They observed ten minutes of silence to honor the God of War. In all cities, cars stopped on the streets. Everyone stood up and faced the south. Helicopters circled the sky, blasting the national battle hymn for ten minutes. After ten minutes, their voices rang in unison, "Farewell, God of War. Your heroic deeds will forever remain in our hearts and minds."

Chapter 400 The nation observed ten minutes of silence to honor the Black Dragon, the God of War. After informing the press of the circumstances surrounding the Black Dragon's death, Levi chased the reporters away. After all, what he was about to do next was not suitable for television broadcasts.

Levi entered the consulate general.

Envoys of the twenty-eight nations were here for the negotiations. After Levi walked in, a few soldiers carried the still unconscious, badly injured Henry in.

Levi cut to the chase and spoke in a firm voice, "In accordance with international practices, you'll have to pay a ransom for every prisoner-of-war. A million for each common soldier, 10 billion for a general, and 5 billion for a lieutenant, and since you've killed our commander-in chief, we'll increase the price tenfold. We request that you pay up immediately. Otherwise, they will be executed this instant."

Levi revealed their demands.

Enraged, the envoys stood up. "No way." "Levi, you're taking it too far." "Hell no!"

Levi stared at them with ruthless eyes. "In that case, I'll give the order to execute all the captives immediately."

As he said that, he turned to leave.

"G-General Levi, let's talk it over."

"L-Let's discuss this."

“Tenfold is too much. We can’t accept this.”

The envoys wheedled.

Levi turned to leave.

James visited the military hospital.

He assessed Henry's condition and prescribed medicine for him. Then, he ordered his men to prepare the medicine. While they did that, he continued to treat Henry's injuries with his silver needles.

Today was a dark day for Sol.

News of the demise of the Black Dragon, the God of War of Sol, had spread across the nation. The God of War had left the world.

However, he left behind an immortal legend.

Especially the final combat leading up to his death. He exterminated all twenty-eight elite mercenaries and even wiped out tens of thousands of the enemy's army while being pursued the whole night. His heroism would go down in history and be forever remembered by all of Sol.
