

Almighty DG 511

Chapter 511 Thea had difficulty speaking.

Looking at Thea's expression, Gladys knew something must have happened last night. Immediately, she ordered, "Spit it out."

Thea came clean.

She told them everything that happened at dinner last night.

However, after the Watsons and Xenoses appeared, Xara led her away. She did not know what happened after that.

Everyone turned to look at James again after that.

Was he telling the truth? Did he actually beat the Watsons and Xenoses into submission?

Looking at how confused everyone was, James decided to make things easier for them. They would never believe him anyway. "Alright, here's what happened. A person named Zane Dawn helped." "Zane Dawn?"

Everyone was confused. Who was he? "What?"

Lex seemed to come to a realization. "Zane Dawn? Zane from the north, the one everyone calls the Mining King?" "Yes, yes, yes," James said. "That's the one."

glanced at James. "Zane is very important in the north. The Dawns are very influential. Even the Five Provinces Business Alliance are back to me. I saved Zane's daughter Cynthia yesterday by coincidence, so he helped me out Everyone's confusion cleared.

get through this. You're part Thea that we got into trouble in the first place. Why should it were not for them, we would not have the Callahans

James just smiled.

or approval. He did not care what they thought about Thea approved of him, it was enough. James was tired of talking to the Callahans. After going through so now. At the conference, I'll put my best foot forward. The title of 'The Best Doctor' will be "Yeah." Thea nodded.

and headed out. –

drove toward was it really Zane who cleared up our

“Yes.”

Why did the police arrest you?” James explained, “I hit Francis and Sean. They were from important families, so they made a police report. However, once Zane was there, they let it go.”

the whole thing about the sword yesterday?”

“Uh...”

James was in a dilemma.

What was he going to tell Thea?

Only a handful of people knew about the Blade of Justice.

“It was nothing. It’s just a sword that Henry made.” James did not know what to say, so he made something up half-heartedly. Thea was still suspicious, but she let it slide. As long as James was safe, nothing else mattered.

James continued to drive.

Suddenly, he had a bad feeling. “Darling, sit tight.” Thea was about to ask why, but James floored it and the car shot forward.

Thea almost fell out of her seat.

After James sped up, more than 10 cars behind him did the same.

A man in a black jacket and black cap stood up through the sunroof in one of them. There was a rocket launcher on his shoulder.

James saw all of it in the mirror. He swore. “B*stards. We’re in the city. How dare they!”

Chapter 512 Whoever they were, James was surprised at how blatant they were. This was not the border of the Southern Plains. This was a developed, peaceful city. Looking in the mirror, he studied the situation. The rocket launcher was aimed straight at his car.

He was slightly worried.

If they fired, he could probably avoid the shot, but there would still be several injuries and fatalities since there were so many cars on the road. However, his concern was for naught.

They never fired. “What are they doing?” He was confused.

He weaved in and out of traffic, turning onto the highway. Then, he started to head toward the suburbs.

1

He was driving a Volkswagen that cost only above twenty thousand dollars. The car was already going at 200 kilometers per hour while the engine was going at seven thousand revolutions.

“James, what are you doing? You’re driving too fast! Stop!” Thea was pale as she was thrown from left to right. She was jostled so much she was feeling nauseous.

again, he discovered that the cars were still did they not? He finally reached the suburbs and stopped at an abandoned place. Once he stopped, Thea opened the door and fell out in a heap, throwing up stopped as well. James noticed of his car, looking at them with confusion.

did not attack

“James...”

man strode

and shades, he was about fifty years old and

him. “And threw a small vial at him.

looking blue liquid. He frowned.

to launch a sneak know what James was thinking. “You can try. Everyone here will looked at the blue liquid in the vial. “At least

The man said, “Don’t worry. It won’t kill you. You’ll lose your sense of smell, and your limbs will stiffen slightly. That’s all. It’ll last the day. Once the medical conference is over, you’ll be back to normal.”

James finally understood.

Someone did not want him at the medical conference, but they did not want to kill him either Or maybe they knew that they could not kill him, or did not have the guts to.

That’s why they came up with this trick. To numb James’ senses and restrict his movements so that he will not be able to use his silver needles and make it to the medical conference.

“Once you drink it, we’ll leave at once. We won’t trouble you any further. Of course, you can choose not to drink it as well. We’ll all perish together.” James twisted the cap and swallowed the contents, tossing the vial to one side. Looking at them, he asked, “Are we good?” They turned to leave immediately.

James called out, “Hold on...”

They stopped. With a dark expression, James asked, “Who’s behind this? Who’s stopping me from attending the medical conference? Is there something going on at the medical conference?”

He was met with silence.

His pursuers got into their cars and drove off.

Thea was still vomiting. James had driven too fast, weaving in and out of traffic. It was too much for her. She knew that someone tailed them. She knew they were talking to James, but she was in no state to figure it out. James waited till all the cars had left before he spit the blue liquid out. Even though he spit most of it out, a small amount had entered his body and bloodstream. Quickly, he took out some silver needles and inserted them into his body, using them to expel the blue liquid out of his body, Once Thea had finished vomiting, she felt much better. She wiped her mouth with a piece of tissue and walked toward James.

Chapter 513 James had discarded his shirt. His body was full of silver needles. Some of them had blue droplets on them.

“James, what’s going on?”

James removed the needles on his chest and arms, smiling at Thea. “D–don’t worry. I’m fine.”

Thea’s expression was stony. “Do you take me for a fool? Who were those people? What did they give you?”

“I have no idea.”

James looked serious.

He did not know who they were,

He did not know what they had given him either.

He had spit most of it out and used the needles to draw the remains out, but a small amount had entered his bloodstream. He started to feel his body seizing up a little.

“Really?” Thea did not believe him.

“Darling, I really don’t know.”

“T–then, how are you feeling? You don’t look so good. Should we go to the hospital?” Thea noticed James looking worse than usual. She was worried, so she went to him and helped him up James waved his hand. “Don’t worry. I’ll lose my sense of smell and my movements might be restricted, that’s all. I’ve expelled most of it, but there’s still some of it. I don’t think I can drive, so you have to do it.”

James tried walking.

still

a little

went to help waved a hand again. “Don’t worry. I can still walk by myself. I have to figure out what this he got into the passenger into the

the city once

sure you're okay?"

are we going to Medical Street?" "To Medical Street, of course. This medical conference is unlike any other." James had a wondering going One could only imagine all the he your body?" Thea was worried. It was crashed a few

"Don't worry. I'll be well enough. It focused took his phone out.

like it was made of stone. It took a monumental effort to hold his phone. It could no longer bend. If

He called Jay.

information I

Yesterday, Jay had used all the resources of his underground intelligence network to launch an investigation. They could not get any information on Doctor King yet, only some surface-level information.

"I only managed to gather some surface-level information, James."

"Send it to me."

"Got it."

Jay hung up and sent the information to James.

James received an email.

He opened it.

There were some pictures attached.

The man in the picture looked to be about 60 years old. He was wearing a suit and was slightly pudgy. He had a beard.

"Jonathan Harris, Real name: Miles Cash. Ancestry: Cloud City of Sol. Migrated to Goryeo when he was thirty and changed his name to Jonathan Harris. Currently the chairman of the National Doctor's Association of Goryeo..."

James read the message Jay sent.

The contents were simple.

The information was basic.

James looked at it and got lost in his thoughts. Was Jonathan Harris the Doctor King that Willy mentioned at Mount Thunder Pass? Was he the one behind the battle there?

Chapter 514

James found it unlikely.

Jonathan Harris was just a doctor. Goryeo was one of the twenty-eight countries, but it was a small country. It was impossible that he could mastermind the battle at Mount Thunder Pass. Or maybe it was not Jonathan at all.

Maybe the true mastermind was someone else.

James shook his head to clear his thoughts.

He closed his eyes and got some rest.

Thea drove carefully

Soon, they reached the city and arrived at Medical Street. The medical conference was just starting. As Medical Street was full of pedestrians, no cars were allowed.

The parking lots nearby were full, so Thea could only park at a parking lot further away. They took a cab to Medical Street.

full of

He walked slowly, as if sure you're alright? Should we started to go stiff and expressionless. She was extremely Eternality Hospital since it's open again now? I know how to expel

"Okay."

Thea toward Eternality Hospital. However, James was too don't I carry you on my back?" "I-I don't think so. There are many

"It'll be fine."

to get onto her back. James thought about it. It would take too long to get to Eternality Hospital with his difficulty with James on her back.

street was full of citizens and witnessed this scene. Some pointed at them, while some recorded it finally arrived at Eternality Hospital. The hospital had been shut down, but the Callahans were there. However, all the doctors gulped in deep breaths. Her face beaded with sweat. Jokingly, she glared at James. "You're so heavy. I'm so tired." James leaned against the threshold of the hospital and slowly scene.

answered,

the rest

the medical conference last year. Looks like we won't make a single penny this year." James tried to

The first three days were for seeking treatment. The fourth day was when the competition began.

However, there were just too many medical institutions on Medical Street.

There were more than ten thousand of them in total.

There were even more doctors.

Millions of them.

Not all of them would qualify for the competition.

This was where the performance of the first three days came in.

Each patient treated was recorded in the system.

To qualify for the final competition, one had to be among the top 100, selected based on the treatments they administered on the first three days and a voting system by the public.

The treatment took up 50%, while the voting took up another 50%. To determine the ranking, both the above would be taken into account. Hearing Weston's complaint, Jannes said slowly, "D—don't worry. I'm here now. I'll make sure Eternality gets its moment. Take me inside. I need to craft an antidote."

Thea was still catching her breath, but she went to James at once and helped him into the hospital.

The Callahans watched James, who was stiff and slow. They were confused. What was going on?

Chapter 515 Inside the hospital, James sat down.

"Thra, take my shirt off,"

"Okay."

Thea obeyed

"And my pants."

"What?"

Thea was stunned, and she blushed. "Honey, what are you doing?"

"Just do it."

"Alright then."

Thea removed James' pants. He was only in his underwear.

"Get the silver needles ready."

"Okay."

prepared the silver

in, looking with mocked him. "James, you piece of trash. What are you with the silver needles. "Here are the silver needles, honey." James asked, "Thea, do you remember the book I showed you on meridians and acupuncture points? Do you still remember

James ignored Tommy.

)

"No, not really."

please get the Eternality Hospital had plenty of books like that. Quickly, she tried to locate one of that, she brought it to James.

a silver needle and follow my instructions. Stick it where I too deep. Just for the tip to go through the book to determine the accurate location. She held the needle in her hand, not daring to worry. Just do and carefully

1 –

here,

instructing

locations on James. She only put the needles in after she was sure. Time ticked by strange sight with wonky needles sticking out of him everywhere.

wrist. Pinch

followed his instructions.

Slowly, the needles drew out some blue liquid.

It was the poison he ingested earlier on. Using the needles, he blocked the acupuncture points to expel the poison.

"All done. Take the needles out."

"Okay."

Thea removed the needles quickly. Once all the needles were removed, James stood up and moved his body. He was still a little stiff, but he was feeling much better.

He picked up a pen and paper and scribbled down a prescription hastily. Passing it to Thea, he said, "Please help get these ingredients for me and prepare a concoction. I'll be fine by tomorrow."

"Okay." Thea nodded. Then, she frowned. "All the doctors have left. I don't know how to do

"I'll do it."

Lex, who had been observing, approached.

Lex was once a doctor. Even though he was not an expert, he still knew his way around medicine

Everyone else looked at James.

What was he trying to do?

"James, what..." John could not help but ask.

James smiled. "Someone tried to stop me from attending the medical conference and forced me to ingest poison. I lost my sense of smell and my movements were restricted temporarily."

Chapter 516 Hearing what James said, the Callahans mocked him.

Howard's wife, Jolie, said sarcastically, "James, aren't you overestimating yourself? Did you think you're a genius doctor just because you have some medical knowledge? There are millions of doctors in Cansington. Any one of them is better than you." "Exactly," Tommy agreed. "You're good for nothing except boasting." James did not argue with them.

The Callahans had never seen eye to eye with him. They mocked him at every opportunity. He had gotten used to it, so there was no point in arguing. Thea asked, "Honey, could you help Eternality rise from the ashes?"

"What has Eternality got to do with me?" James said carelessly. "I want Pacific, no, Century, to make its mark at the medical conference this time." "Bullsh*t."

"James, let's see how you manage to help Century." "The factory lots and offices have been shut down. What else can you do?" The Callahans started their sarcastic remarks again. "Thea, let's take a look at Century." "Okay." Thea nodded.

The two of them left Eternality.

Soon, they arrived at a hospital that was of average size. Located on a quieter part of Medical Street, it only had one entrance. Thea had changed its name from Pacific to Century, but it temporarily shut down on the same day.

In front of Century Hospital.

There were a few wooden benches. A bored-looking doctor sat on one of them. Trevor and his family were busy distributing flyers on the street.

“Come check out Century Hospital! Headed by an expert doctor with 30 years of experience! Consultation fees are free while medical fees are 50% off.”

Trevor, his sons Larry and Quinlan, and his grandson Quinton were distributing flyers in front of Century Hospital, Passers-by took and threw them in the trash without even looking. James and Thea approached.

“Ma’am...”

The whole family came up to them. Thea asked, “Granduncle, how are things going?”

Trevor looked resigned and sad. “Ah, there are too many hospitals and doctors on Medical Streyt. A small hospital like ours is definitely on the losing end. Everyone has gone to the larger hospitals to see well-known doctors.” “Grandfather...” A voice said. Quinton held his phone out. “More than two hundred thousand people have made appointments at Herbal Biotech. Since Dr. Fallon isn’t around, they’ve all, flocked to Christine. She has more than eighty thousand appointments.”

Quinton was looking at the app specially created for the medical conference. Everyone could download the app and choose their preferred doctor. They could also access the appointment statistics for each hospital and doctor. “Ay.”

Hearing what Quinton said, Trevor sighed. “How could we compare to Herbal Biotech? Dr. Fallon’s there, and his granddaughter is even better than he is. Even the other doctors there are phenomenally well-known.” Just then, Howard and his family arrived. Looking at how empty Century Hospital was, they laughed. “I see there’s no one here either.” “It’s so quiet here. How would you get any customers?” “Even if I were sick, I wouldn’t come here. Look, there’s only one entrance. It’s way too small. What a disgrace.”

The Callahans started gloating. Quinton shot back, “I don’t see anyone at Eternality either. Even your doctors have left.” “How dare you...” Tommy flew into a rage, ready to punch him. “What are you doing?” Lex approached, shouting at Tommy.

Tommy stopped. Trevor looked at Lex, feeling all sorts of complicated feelings rise. It had been years, yet Lex had never set foot in his hospital before. Chapter 517 This was the first time in twenty years. “Trevor.”

Lex leaned on his cane as he approached. He looked resigned. “We fought over our family assets all those years ago. It’s been so long, and we are both at the end of our lives. Could we let this go?” Trevor and his family looked at Lex. What was he trying to play at? “Hey, what’s the expression all about?” Tommy asked arrogantly. He pointed at Trevor and his family, shouting, “Didn’t you hear what my grandfather said?” “Tommy, shut your mouth,” Lex ordered. “Yes, grandfather.” Tommy did as he said. Lex looked at a dejected Trevor and sighed. “After all this, I’ve finally come to my senses. Why don’t we let bygones be bygones? We’re family. We don’t have to keep doing this.” As she heard Lex say that, Thea was overjoyed. Happily, she said, “Grandfather, I’m so happy you could let things go. Now we can live together in harmony as a family once more!”. “What family?” Larry’s son Quinton said unhappily. When the Callahans were rich, did they ever cross their minds? Now that they were in trouble, they reached out.

Trevor’s face brightened considerably. “The past is in the past. I have forgotten all about it.” The two old men finally agreed on something.

However, they had been out of touch for more than twenty years. Both families were not familiar with each other as well. Things got slightly awkward. After Lex bid Thea goodbye, he led everyone back to Eternality.

Thea looked at James.

“What now, honey?”

James was sitting at the entrance of Century Hospital, looking at the people passing by. This morning, he had been force-fed poison.

The person behind it had so many people at his beck and call. He even dared to use a rocket launcher in the city. Whoever it was must be powerful.

However, they did not kill him.

All they wanted was for him not to participate in the medical conference.

Why?

“Honey...” “Yes?” James came to his senses, looking at Thea. “What’s up?” “What are you thinking about? You look lost.” “Nothing.” James waved his hand. “Thea, why don’t you log into the app and register as a doctor under Century?”

“But I don’t know the first thing about being a doctor.” Thea looked troubled. “Leave that to me.” James smiled. If the other party wanted to play games, he was in. However, he could not reveal his hand just yet, so all he could do was help Thea from the shadows. As long as Thea could get into the top 100 and make it to the final competition, he would naturally be able to find out what the enemy wanted. His instinct told him that trouble was brewing at the medical conference. “Alright.”

Thea did not argue any further. She opened the app and registered as a doctor under Century Hospital. After that, she read the rules to make the top 100. To be in the top 100, she had to treat patients and gather votes.

Each patient did not equal a vote.

After treatment, each patient would have the choice to vote for the doctor who treated them, depending on whether or not they were satisfied. There was also a popularity vote on the app. All one had to do was vote for his or her favorite doctor. Everyone could vote once a day. Three days later, the popularity and treatment votes would be combined. The top 100 doctors with the most votes would qualify for the competition.

“Honey, this is too difficult. I don’t even know the first thing about being a doctor. How am I supposed to treat patients and make them happy?” Thea looked conflicted. James smiled, “Well, you can count on me. Furthermore, you’re the most beautiful woman in Cansington. People love you. As long as your message makes it to the app’s homepage, people will vote for you. Making the top 100 would not be a problem at all.”

Chapter 518 Thea rolled her eyes. She wondered what other tricks James had.

Who knew that he was going to use her beauty as a reason to get votes? “Even if I manage to get enough popular votes, they’re only worth 50%. I don’t have any medical knowledge. How would I gather votes from the patients? I would never make the top 100.”

James smiled mysteriously. “Leave that to me. Why don’t you take a walk outside? I’ll take care of the rest.”

Thea nodded, resigned. “Alright then.” It was exceptionally busy on Medical Street today. She wanted to see it for herself.

She left after she bid James goodbye. James continued to sit at the entrance of Century Hospital. He took his phone out and called Jay. As the helmsman of Herbal Biotech, Jay was rarely available for consultation. Just then, he was sequestered with other experts in the medical world, discussing content for the competition. His personal phone rang. He took a look at it. Noticing that it was James, he got up immediately and went to a corner. Softly, he said, "What's up, James?" James had a cigarette in his mouth. Carelessly, he said, "This morning, someone hunted me down, but they didn't kill me. All they did was threaten me with my wife and forced me to ingest some poison. It restricted my movements and I lost my sense of smell." "Are you alright?" "Of course I am."

"Why are you calling me then?"

James ordered, "Use the underground intelligence network to investigate who tried to kill me this morning, I need to know who's behind it, but I need them not to know either."

"James, the medical conference just started. I'm busy. Ronn has taken over the network completely. Could you call him directly if there's anything you want to know?"

"There's something else."

"Tell me." Jay sounded slightly impatient.

James said, "My wife Thea has registered as a doctor under Century Hospital. You were the genius doctor the last time. Herbal Biotech developed the app in collaboration with some other big organizations. Think of a way to place my wife's information on the homepage. I want my wife to get more votes."

"I'm on it."

After he hung up, Jay called the technical department. He told them to put Thea's information on the homepage for more exposure. James called Scarlett after that. Scarlett picked up and said, "James." James ordered, "Hire some people to make appointments with my wife on the Doctor App."

"What?"

Scarlett could not comprehend it. Was he asking her to spend money on appointments for medical consultations?

What was going on? "James, what are you up to?" James chuckled sheepishly. "Oh, it's nothing. I'm trying to build my wife a reputation at the medical conference. She has to make the top 100 to qualify for the competition." "Got it. How many people are we getting?" James said, "Check the app out. As long as we exceed whoever's in the first place by ten or twenty thousand appointments, we're good."

"I'm on it."

Scarlett hung up.

She sat in her office after that, a resigned expression on her face.

Buy votes, get into the top 100 at the medical conference, and qualify for the competition? She had heard of the medical conference.

The first three days of the medical conference were when all the hospitals on Medical Street fought for popularity and earned some money in the process. Instead, James was spending money to get popular and aid his wife in becoming the top 100. So what if she made it? How could she compare to the other doctors who had years of experience on her? "Ay."

She sighed.

However, she dared not disobey James.

She visited Quincy's office. Quincy was studying a proposal. When she saw Scarlett, she put down the documents and got to her feet. "Ma'am," Scarlett waved her hand. "Quincy, I have a mission for you." Chapter 519 "Yes, ma'am." Scarlett said, "Set up a temporary department immediately. I need you to get people online to make appointments with Thea on the Doctor App. Pay each person who makes an appointment ten dollars. If they could make it to Medical Street, see Thea in person for a consultation and give her their vote, pay them a hundred dollars each."

Quincy was stunned. She did not understand what Scarlett was trying to say. "Ma'am, what's all this about?" Scarlett coughed awkwardly. "James wants to ensure Thea gets into the top 100 at the medical conference."

"Oh."

Quincy came to a realization. "I get it now." Immediately, she put the plan into action.

She was great at executing plans. Quickly, she set up a temporary department, recruiting a few hundred people from different departments in the company. All of them created their own chat group, each consisting of more than a thousand people. "Good news! Download the Doctor App now and search for Century Hospital. Select Dr. Thea Callahan. Make an appointment and earn ten dollars! To earn a hundred dollars, visit Thea in person for a consultation and vote for her!"

All the chat groups had the same message.

Some of the participants signed up warily, selecting Thea for an appointment before taking a screenshot to send to their group leaders privately. In no time, they received a transfer. “Wow, it’s true!”

“Mom, mom, give me your phone! We’ll get some money by signing up for something.” After their success, they grabbed their relatives’ phones and downloaded the app. Once they made an appointment, they received a transfer from their group leaders.

Quincy downloaded the Doctor App as well.

Within the short time of an hour, three thousand people had made an appointment with Thea. However, three thousand appointments were not enough for ‘Thea to make it to the top 100. Jay’s granddaughter Christine was at the top of the list, who had more than two hundred thousand appointments. Her fees were exorbitant at three thousand dollars per patient.

As Thea was unknown, she did not even have a consultation fee.

“Maximize the exposure. Create more groups and get more people.”

Quincy issued an order.

Having gotten their orders, everyone continued to promote it the best they could.

Medical Street

Century Hospital.

James sat at the entrance, pretending to be stiff.

He was putting on an act for anyone who might be watching him.

“Is-is Dr. Thea Callahan in?”

A boy of 17 or 18 years of age approached. Seeing James, he asked cautiously, "I heard that if I see Thea for a consultation and vote for her, I'll get a hundred dollars. Is that true?"

James was overjoyed hearing this. "Of course it's true! You don't have to actually come in. Just click on the app that you've completed your consultation, give her a five-star rating and a short review, and you'll be able to vote for Thea."

"Alright."

The boy did as James said.

He managed it in no time. As soon as he received his vote, he gave it to Thea.

He sent a screenshot to his group leader.

A hundred dollars was transferred to him quickly.

He jumped up and down excitedly, spreading the news to everyone else in the group. He shared it with his family and friends as well. It was a way to earn some good income.

James opened up the Doctor App.

Thea's information was now on the homepage.

With hundreds of thousands of appointments, she was now in the top three.

Her information slot displayed that she had completed more than 30 consultations with 30 votes from her patients, which were increasing by the minute.

"Haha."

James laughed out loud seeing this. Thea would get into the top 100, no sweat. Chapter 520 Thea was enjoying her walk on Medical Street. All the big hospitals were full of people with queues snaking out of them. Herbal Biotech, Longevity Hospital, and Celestial Hospital were particularly full and extremely busy. "Thea, you're a sham." "How could you do something so horrible? Your appointments have far exceeded Christine's." "You've even left Yadriel Willows, Dr. Michael, and Cameron Grimborn among other expert doctors in the dust."

Thea was just walking, but all the passers-by were pointing at her.

W

Some of them insulted her.

She was confused.

Why was she a sham?

She took her phone out, checking the Doctor App:

Her eyes almost bugged out of her head.

Apparently, she had gotten two hundred thousand appointments and treated more than thirty thousand patients. She was in the lead.

What?

Her eyes widened.

Who was behind this?

Was it James?

Now she knew why James was so confident.

It had not even been half a day yet, but she had treated more than thirty thousand people. All the doctors at Herbal Biotech combined did not even reach this count. James was way too obvious. Did he not care that people would find out?

She turned pale after hearing the passers'- by insults, lowering her head and quickly walking away. Soon, she returned to Century Hospital. James was sitting at the entrance of Century Hospital. He looked just like a wooden carving, unmoving and expressionless,

“James...”

Thea approached him, gritting her teeth.

“Look at what you’ve done! Could you be more obvious?”

“Thea, what are you talking about? I have no idea what you’re saying.” James’ mouth moved slowly and woodenly, enunciating each word clearly. He sounded just like a robot. “You...”

Thea was so angry she turned pale. “How much money did you spend to buy me votes?”

They were no longer wealthy. They were about to lose their livelihood, and here was James, spending money on votes.

“Even if I get into the top 100 and qualify for the competition, so what? I don’t know anything about medicine! I’d be disqualified immediately at the competition and become a laughing stock.”

a

Thea was so angry she could not stop berating James. Just then, Tommy and his family showed up. They rushed over after seeing Thea's ranking on the app. All of them knew that Thea had bought the votes. Megan looked at Thea, laughing cruelly. "Thea, how interesting. What a joke." Wendy burst out laughing. "This is hilarious. I can't believe you're buying votes! What a fool. So what if you make it to the top 100? You'll still be a joke in the competition."

The Callahans were all here to gloat.

All of them called Thea a fool.

Thea just wanted to hide.

James had done a terrible thing. How could he cause so much trouble and make her the laughing stock of Cansington again?

Just then, a group of reporters showed up. They aimed cameras and camcorders at Thea. "Thea Callahan, how much did you spend to be in the lead?"

"Century Hospital is so quiet, yet you have more than two hundred thousand appointments and treated thirty thousand patients in less than half a day. How did you do it?"

Some of the reporters raised questions. Thea's face felt hot. She wanted to burrow into a hole. She did not say anything but left with her head hanging "Heh heh..."