Chapter 551 "I'm waiting for you. I called Thea and told her we'd be having a meeting tonight, so there's no use going home so soon. Come to my place. I'm alone." Quincy deliberately crossed her long, slender legs, showing them off.

"I'm not interested."

James turned around and left. After taking a few steps, he turned back and said, "Remember to lock the door when you leave."

Quincy sat on the office chair and watched as James left. She pouted her lips and smiled.

Even that didn't work? As expected of the Black Dragon, he has the ability to resist the greatest of temptations."

"James."

As soon as James left the office, he saw Scarlett. James glanced at her and said, "Who gave you the permission to let Quincy enter? She's only the vice president and isn't allowed to enter the chairman's office. A company must follow its rules and regulations if it wants to succeed. Do I need to teach you every simple, little thing?" Scarlett was not expecting James to scold her. "J— James, she said she was your ex-girlfriend, and I... I didn't dare to stop her," Scarlett explained. "Don't let her overstep her boundaries again."

James turned and left.

Quincy had gone too far. What she had done had exceeded her authority.

"Understood," Scarlett replied.

"Young lady, let me tell you, Henry is a really decent person. He's loyal and honest and has never been in a relationship in all of his life. He doesn't know how to please women, so you have to be more straightforward with him if you want to date him."

Whitney helped Henry sit down.

Henry said embarrassedly, "James, stop making fun of me. It's not what you think."

"By the way..."

James chewed on the apple and turned to Whitney to ask, "What's the relationship between you and the Centurian, Walker?"

James had long suspected Whitney's identity.

However, he had never asked,

Whitney was surprised,

James glanced at her and said, "There are five commanders in Sol, the Black Dragon of the Southern Plains, the Centurion of the North, the Blithe King of the West, the Barbarian King of the East, and the Emperor of the Capital. You can't tell me you're unrelated to the Centurion of the North."

"Hmm?"

Henry also looked at Whitney.

Whitney fixed her long hair and smiled. "James, how did you know I was related to the Centurian of the North? James nibbled on the apple and replied, "The Blithe King asked for a document to let Henry become an instructor. You immediately recognized that the document was from the military. Plus, you're highly skilled in martial arts. Although I've never seen you in action, you mentioned knowing martial arts the last time we went to Purity Pharmaceuticals. I also recognized a few techniques from your attacks." "That's all?" Whitney was surprised. "I've gone against the Centurian before. I know his martial arts techniques. Plus, your surname is Walker. Did you think I'd let someone with an unknown background get so close to Henry, not to mention how I've let you in on so many things?"

Chapter 552 Whitney did not expect James to be so capable. He had already seen through her identity.

"Tell us about it." James looked at her.

Although he suspected Whitney's identity, he kept it a secret for a while and observed her because he was unsure of her motives for approaching Henry or himself.

Now, it seemed that this woman did not have ill intentions toward Henry but rather seemed interested in him. Thus, he simply poked through her identity.

"He's my father."

Whitney did not hide it. She smiled mischievously and replied, "To be honest, I secretly snuck out from home. The Northern Border is too boring, so I came to Cansington." Henry was stunned to learn of her identity.

This woman was the daughter of one of the Five Commanders.

"Not bad."

James smiled brightly and glanced at Henry. "Henry, you better seize your chances. The daughter of a commander must have countless wealthy suitors wanting to marry her." "Cough, cough..." Henry smiled awkwardly "Fine. I won't tease you anymore. I'm heading off." James stood up and was about to leave. "James," Henry called out and glanced at him pleadingly. James immediately understood and threw him a cigarette. After thinking for a moment, he felt that one was not enough. He knew that Henry had a cigarette addiction and would have at least two packs daily. He threw all the cigarettes he had and a lighter to Henry. Whitney took it and said sternly, "No smoking."

Thea had a weak personality and had always remained silent when her family members scolded her.

"Thea, it's not that I want to scold you. However, the Callahans are in a dire situation right now. James borrowed several million dollars. How is he going to repay the money? The money isn't linked to us. Divorce him before the debt collectors come looking for us. You're still young and beautiful. You can always marry another wealthy man, and the Callahans will be able to start over again."

Thea was dispirited

It was not something new for Gladys to look down on James.

"Mom, James is working hard, Can't you give him some more time?"

"What's the use of working? What's the use of a few thousand dollars salary monthly? Is it enough to support you? It's not even enough for you to buy a new set of cosmetics." James opened the door and entered just in time to hear her belittling him.

He rubbed his nose and walked over with a bright smile. "Dad, Mom, Thea." "Hmph! "Don't call me mom! I don't have a son-in-law like you!" Gladys shouted. "James, this is just the way my mom is. Don't take it to heart." Thea looked apologetic. James smiled and said nothing. Thea was worried that Gladys would scold James again, so she quickly dragged him back into the room.

"I'm so pissed! You've no conscience at all! All my efforts to raise you for more than twenty years were for nothing!" Gladys scolded.

In the room.

Chapter 554 After James was carried away, Jonathan asked, "Mr. Hamilton, let me into your plans."

Jonathan was from abroad and not Cansington.

His power and influence were present abroad. He came to Cansington as a visitor and did not participate in the planning of these schemes. Thus, the plans were all formulated by Lucas.

He did not know anything about Lucas' plans.

Lucas caressed his white beard and said with a smile, "James has been affected by the drugs I've formulated. As soon as he wakes up, his desires will be heightened. No matter how great his endurance is, he won't be able to control himself. I've prepared a woman in advance. As soon as news of him sleeping with her gets out, he'll be detained for the crime of adultery. Even if he gets released, our plane will have already succeeded by the time he's out." Hearing this, Jonathan frowned. The plane was good but not perfect! He would have killed James if given the power.

He had been well prepared at Mt. Thunder Pass but still failed to kill James. This was the best chance he had to kill him, but Lucas refused to do so.

"Mr. Hamilton, are you sure this will work? Who is this woman? What if she stands on James' side and speaks for him after the incident? The police won't be able to do anything if that happens."

"Don't worry. This woman comes from a very conservative and traditional family with a certain influence. After her father learns that a man has tainted his daughter, he would definitely be furious and send James to prison. This would be enough to bring James down for

The room was a mess.

The drugs in James' body slowly subsided over time.

He gradually regained his senses.

"Sobs..."

The woman shrank into a ball and sobbed.

James had regained his senses. He saw everything in the room and immediately understood what had happened. He was flustered.

He frowned and wore a serious expression.

He slapped his forehead, "James, James! Why were you so careless?" At this moment, the hotel door was kicked open, and a group of policemen rushed into the room

"Raise your hands above your heads and don't move!" Facing the police's stern shouts and the muzzles pointed at him, James raised his hands over his head and did not move.

"No, it's not true. I don't believe it. This can't be true. How could James do such a thing?"

Thea believed James

James had never forced himself on her ever since their marriage.

Even when the two of them slept together, James never touched her without her consent.

How could someone who did not even touch his wife mess around outside?

"Thea, don't be naive. It was reported on the news. Look how clear the video is. Who else could this be if not James? Look at the woman on the bed. How can this be fake? I told you James wasn't a good person and to divorce him a long time ago, but you wouldn't listen to me."

Although something had happened to James, Gladys was not worried about their family becoming a laughing stock.

Instead, she was rather happy. Such a big thing happened to James, and he would spend the rest of his life in prison. Finally, Thea could divorce him. "There must be a misunderstanding here. I have to go to the police station." Thea stood up and left.

"Thea..."

Gladys shouted but did not stop Thea. "It's best for her to go and see for herself. Only then will she completely give up on him," Gladys murmured.

She watched the video as she walked around. She hoped it was not real, but the video captured the scene.

The incident caused an uproar in Cansington. Netizens had identified James, and the comments online ridiculed him. Seeing Quincy approaching, Thea hurriedly walked to her with tears on her pretty face.

"Quincy, what should I do? There must be some misunderstanding here. How could James do such a thing?"

"Don't worry. Let's go in to ask about the situation."

Quincy took Thea to the police station.

Quincy reported her identity as the vice president of the Transgenerational Group, and the police explained the matter in detail to her.

After learning what had happened, Quincy frowned. Thea seemed to have lost all energy and slumped on a chair with a darkened expression,

She completely trusted James. However, judging by the current situation, James was indeed guilty. Soon, the lawyer met up with James and learned about the details.

Outside the police station

Quincy glanced at the lawyer.

The lawyer was a woman in her thirties and looked incredibly sexy.

Quincy asked, "Ms. Zinn, what's the situation? What did James tell you? What happened?" Thea was also anxious but still had a glimmer of hope. She sensed that there must be something behind the whole situation. She glanced at the lawyer and waited for an answer. "Ms. Xenos, the current situation is very unfavorable to James. Although James said he was drugged after getting into a car in the morning and claimed not to know what happened next, these are all his one-sided words. There isn't any evidence to support his words. On top of that, Tiara was covered with his fingerprints and lip marks. "The evidence is conclusive, and Mr. Youngblood has filed a charge against James. The police have submitted a series of criminal evidence to the court, which will be held in two days. Once the court is held, the probability of James being sentenced is a hundred percent."

Chapter 558 The Blithe King did not know James' plans, but he still decided to help.

"Okay, I'll take you away first." James waved his hands. "I told you to find me a stand-in for me. I can't leave so openly. Find someone who's about the same height and has a similar physique as me. After I sneak out, I'll make a human mask, and you have to secretly bring him back into the custody room."

The Blithe King asked with a frown, "What are you trying to do?"

"You don't need to know."

"Alright." The Blithe King nodded.

He quickly made arrangements.

He found someone of a similar height from the army and sneaked James out.

James started to make the human mask for the substitute to take his place and sneak into the police custody room.

James made another human mask for himself.

Quincy brought Thea back home. They had gone to Zigmund to convince him to drop the case against James. However, they failed to do so. After Quincy and Thea left, Zigmund's assistant walked in and reported respectfully, "Mr. Youngblood, Ms. Brooks, the chairman of the Transgenerational Group, is here to visit you."

"Hmm?"

Zigmund was slightly taken aback. The chairman of the Transgenerational Group, Scarlett? He had nothing to do with Scarlett nor the Transgenerational Group, so he was confused about why she would visit.

She was a prominent figure, and Zigmund dared not mistreat her. He immediately instructed, "Invite her in."

"Alright."

Scarlett was wearing a white dress. She was slender and exuded an outstanding aura. She walked in carrying some gifts. Zigmund quickly invited Scarlett to sit down. Then, he asked, "Ms. Brooks, is there a reason you came to see me?"

Scarlett put down the gifts and sat down on the sofa. "I heard something happened to Tiara, so I came to visit."

Zigmund was perplexed. He was not acquainted with Scarlett, but the dignified chairman of the Transgenerational Group with a net worth of billions had come to visit his daughter. After slightly being stunned, he replied gratefully, "Thank you for visiting Tiara, Ms. Brooks."

Chapter 560

In the past two days, the Callahans had become a hot topic online again. The first hot topic was Thea from the Callahans. She had no medical skills but became a doctor under Century Hospital and used millions to place number one during the medical conference.

Thea gained a bad reputation because of this.

She was called shameless and a fool with money.

Before this news subsided, a new hot topic came up.

It was the news of Thea's husband, James.

Every online forum discussed the incident. [Die, rapist!]

Moreover, the incident aroused a wave of public anger. James would have to spend the rest of his life in prison. Thea refused to wait for him forever. It was best to divorce him as soon as possible and remarry. Quincy frowned and asked, "Do you really believe James would do such a thing?"

"I don't believe it, but it's the truth. It's my fault. I'm his wife, but I didn't let him touch me. He's a man and has needs. In the end, he went down the wrong road." Thea sighed. "What?"

Quincy's eyes widened in shock. Although there were rumors outside, Quincy did not believe them. From her point of view, James and Thea were a very loving couple. She could not believe that such a loving couple had not done the deed before. Sigh. Thea sighed again. She blamed herself for what had happened.

“Now that things have come to this point, James will surely be imprisoned. His crime is serious, and he would be locked up for at least twenty years. I can’t waste twenty years waiting for him.” 1

“So, are you going to divorce him?” Quincy glanced at Thea. “Yeah.”

Thea nodded slightly.

Quincy opened her mouth and wanted to say something, but she swallowed her words. She changed her mind and said, “I support your decision.” Quincy supported Thea divorcing James because of her own selfish intentions.

After the two got divorced, she would finally get the chance to pursue James openly without feeling guilty. Gladys smiled. “That’s right, Thea. What kind of men are you interested in? I’ll set you up.”
