Chapter 681 After hanging up the phone, James sent Jose's bank account number to Scarlett. Meanwhile, Jose was looking at James. He was jealous of the wealth James possessed. Although he was from Ishkabar, he had heard of the Black Dragon. Businessmen who wished to conduct business in the Southern Plains had to pay a hefty protection fee to the Black Dragon all these years.

All this while, the King of Sol turned a blind eye to this.

Although Jose was a lieutenant, he was hesitant to act too out of line. If the higher-ups investigated the matter, his military career would be over.

James flashed a smile to Jose who was sweating like a sinner in church. "Don't be nervous. Relax. This is only between you and me. I've ordered someone to make the transfer. You'll receive the money soon. Have some patience."

Jose wiped the sweat off his forehead

"Wh-What do you want me to do?"

James replied, "Nothing much. Just bring me into the military region of Southern Plains City safely."

James waited for approximately two hours.

Two hours later, Jose walked out.

James walked over to him. Scanning his surroundings, he whispered, “How did it go? What was the meeting about?”

“We’ll talk about it later.”

Jose did not say much. He brought James out of the city and returned to the barracks.

Immediately upon arrival, Jose logged into his overseas bank account. Seeing there was a hundred million in it, he was relieved. He could finally cooperate with James without fear. “The general wishes to select a few capable men to guard the military region in an attempt to prevent you from sneaking up on them. I have decided to recommend you.” “That’s good news.” James was pleased. Finally, the opportunity had presented itself. “James, please understand that I’m taking a huge risk by recommending you. If you’re exposed, I’ll die alongside you. So... I hope you’ll succeed in assassinating them.” Jose said while wearing a solemn expression. James assured him with a smile. “Don’t you worry. As long as I can get within the distance of the generals, I can kill them all.”

“Mhm.. Go get prepared. Apart from you, I’ll be choosing a few others I can trust. However, your current appearance...”

Chapter 682

James waved him off. “No need to worry. I can make human-skin masks. Just get me the necessary materials.” “Alright.”

Jose nodded. “Have a rest here. I’ll prepare the stuff.” Jose turned to leave. While preparing the necessary material, Jose also handpicked men he could trust for the mission.

Soon, he had completed his preparations.

James began making the human-skin mask. It didn’t take long for the mask to be completed. Wearing the mask, James was now a middle-aged man with tanned skin.

The night passed silently. The next morning, James headed toward Southern Plains City’s military region with a dozen soldiers.

identities checked.

He lifted the lockdown to create an opportunity for James to sneak in.

After disguising himself as a soldier in the military region, James had been looking for an opening. However, security was too tight, and cameras were everywhere. There was not a single blind spot in the city. However, he secretly left a mark. He had discussed this with his subordinates earlier. Anyone who managed to infiltrate the city would leave behind a mark to let the others know. As James was not in a hurry, he waited patiently. Three days passed. After three days, he saw the same mark. He knew that many of his men had managed to sneak in. Another day passed. All the assassins had managed to infiltrate the city. At the building where the generals of the twenty-eight nations lived... The generals had not taken a single step outside. James walked toward a corner and pulled out a cigarette. He lit it and crouched down while smoking. After smoking, he threw the cigarette bud on the ground and stomped on it. Then, he kicked it toward the wall. The cigarette bud briefly touched the wall and left a mark. It was a sign that the mission would commence at night time. After leaving the mark, James continued on his patrol. At the same time, he left those marks everywhere. The marks explained the process of the plan in detail.

Chapter 683 James left many of these marks all over the military region. These marks were meant for assassins. Ordinary people would not be able to understand the secret code.

James did not know how the others managed to sneak in.

However, he did know that everyone had managed to infiltrate the city. That was because they left inconspicuous marks in the corners of the military region. Everything was now in place. All they had to do was to wait until nighttime. The generals of the twenty-eight nations would soon meet their doom. If James and his assassins failed, however, this would be their final resting place.

That was because the armed forces garrisoned here were too powerful. They were against elite troops of at least a hundred-thousand men. To put it simply, the odds were stacked against them.

Not only that, but a three-million-strong army was also stationed in Southern Plains City.

They needed to succeed.

Failure would mean death.

Floyd headed toward the surveillance room.

In it were ninety-eight monitors.

Every monitor showed surveillance camera footage of an area.

And each monitor was manned by a person.

Floyd walked over to the team. The men who were staring at their screens stood up and said in unison, "General." Floyd acknowledged them and asked, "Any unusual activities?"

"Everything's normal, sir." Hearing this, Floyd frowned. Was the security too tight? Was James unable to sneak in?

Chapter 684 His objective was to lure James here and kill him.

He was sure that James must have infiltrated Southern Plains City. He must be looking for an opportunity to sneak into the military region and assassinate the generals of the twenty-eight nations.

Floyd left feeling puzzled. He headed to the building in the military region and called for another meeting with the generals. He wanted to think of a way to lure James here. At the same time, in the kitchen of the military region... After the driver delivered the vegetables, the others began unloading them. The men from the kitchen walked over to them to help. "Take a break. Just leave everything to us." The one unloading the goods hurriedly interrupted to prevent the men in the kitchen from helping them unload. With a lighter workload, the men from the kitchen were more than willing to leave it to them. The driver and the person in the passenger seat began unloading the vegetables. The driver was none other than Midnight Wind in disguise. The real driver had been taken care of long ago. Meanwhile, the one in the passenger seat was May all along. They were both wearing human-skin masks. They conversed silently while unloading the goods. "I saw James' mark. We'll act tonight. Before the mission commences, we need to cut the electricity supply of the military region. James said that there are many generators here. Electricity will return in a minute in the event of a blackout."

"So, we have only a minute to act."

"In that minute, we'll have to head to the surveillance room and central command and seize control of them."

They whispered silently.

I don't want to die yet." They were heated in a discussion. Meanwhile, James and a few other guards arrived on the eighth floor. James walked over to the guard on the eighth floor and said, "It's our turn now. You should patrol downstairs. Just leave this place to us." A soldier frowned, "Isn't this our turn? Why are we switching places again?" James said with a smile. "Desperate times call for desperate measures. What? Do you need the orders from the general himself?" The

"Nice one, Santiago."

As they knew that James, a.k.a Santiago, was a relative of the lieutenant, the rest began buttering James up.

Tames lightly waved and handed them a few cigarettes. "You've done well. Here, have some."

At that moment, there was a blackout.

The alarm rang

Chapter 685 This was the Southern Plains City's military region. This was where the Black Dragon army was garrisoned. James was the commander-in-chief of the Black Dragon army. Therefore, he knew the geographical landscape and the condition of the equipment here inside out. :

He knew that the generator would take a minute to activate in the event of a blackout.

As such, he only had a minute to assassinate the generals of the twenty-eight nations. However, it was nearly impossible to barge into the conference room and finish them off in just a minute. In the conference room, Floyd was in a discussion with the generals. All of a sudden, the room turned pitch black

The alarm rang urgently. Although the backup lights were activated almost immediately, the generals still panicked upon hearing the alarm.

They grabbed their weapons and watched the entrance intently. Some even found a place to hide. "Don't panic!"

Floyd yelled, "Security is tight here. There's no way that the Black Dragon would be here. He's dead meat if he steps foot in here. This couldn't be his doing. There must be something wrong with the equipment that caused this blackout. In just another minute, the backup generator will activate."

At that moment, a knock came on the door. "What's wrong?" James was watching the stairs just outside the conference room. The moment the blackout occurred, he swiftly led his men there and knocked on the conference room's door. "Is it the Black Dragon? Can we come in?" "Q-Quick! Come in!"

He knew there was a surveillance camera in the conference room too.

This is the highest conference room where he discussed battle plans with his generals.

Not only did it have a surveillance camera, it only had a defense system. Once activated, the soundproofing system and bulletproof system would be automatically activated too. James stood by the door and glanced at the surveillance camera. Then, he stealthily made a gesture.

In the surveillance room... May had already seized control of the room. Soldiers lay on the floor. The person in charge had a gun pressed against the back of his head. He did not dare to move a single muscle.

Through the camera, May saw James' discreet signal.

Chapter 686 James had relayed all information about the military region to them before coming.

This allowed May to know the place inside out. She immediately ordered, "Cut off all connections of the conference room to the outside world and activate the defense system." With a gun pressed against the back of his head, the person in charge obeyed her demands. James stood by the door of the conference room. After a while, he walked over to Floyd and asked, "Since everything's fine now, do we keep watch outside or do we stay here?" Floyd was sitting on a chair wiping off the sweat from his forehead. He dismissed the soldier addressing him. "Keep watch outside. Stay vigilant!" "Understood."

James nodded and turned. The moment he turned, he opened fire. The soldiers guarding the door immediately collapsed into a pool of blood. At the same time, James immediately pulled out a gun and pressed it against Floyd's head. The generals were all stunned by this unexpected situation.

Their minds went blank.

By the time they recollected themselves, Floyd was already being threatened with death.

"B-Black Dragon... Are you the Black Dragon?"

Someone asked. His voice was quivering in fear.

James grinned. "That's right. It's me."

Floyd lifted his head and looked James in the eye.

He knew Floyd was the Emperor's subordinate. He wanted to speak directly to the Emperor.

Floyd swiftly pulled a phone out and called an encrypted number. Soon, the call connected. "What is it?"

A hoarse voice came from the phone.

It did not belong to the Emperor.

Or at least, it did not sound like him.

James took the phone and put it on the loudspeaker. Then, he put it on the table.

Seeing that some among the generals were shifting around suspiciously, he lifted the heavy machine gun to warn them off.

James looked at the phone. "You've really gone to great lengths to kill me, Emperor."

Chapter 687 James was not convinced that Floyd had actually called the Emperor. However, he knew that even if the receiver of the call was not the Emperor, the real person must have been listening from somewhere else. No voice came from the phone. James continued despite the lack of response. "I don't care what you're after. I'll definitely stop you."

"Beep!"

The other party hung up the phone. "You're not leaving here alive, Black Dragon." Floyd looked at James and threatened him." There's a hundred thousand soldiers stationed outside, not to mention the three-million strong army garrisoned in Southern Plains City. You made it all the way here, but don't think you're getting out of this alive." "Is that so?"

James gave him a smirk. "If I was able to get all the way here, then it stands to reason that there's definitely a way out too. Oh, and by the way, this was the conference room of the Black Dragon army. I know it like the back of my hand. At the moment, I've cut off all connections between this room with the outside world. No one would know even if I went on a rampage here."

When he said this, the color drained from the faces of all the generals sitting in the room.

"Black Dragon, I-I was being forced to come." "Spare me, please. I'll retreat at once."

They started to beg James for mercy. "Bang!" James let out a shot. Floyd collapsed in a pool of blood. He was no longer breathing.

James offered heartlessly.

Then, he opened fire. The generals dropped to the floor like flies. They had wanted to kill James before dying. However, they were no match for his speed. In just a few short seconds, corpses lay strewn about the conference room. Only one man was still alive. It was Pablo, the commander-in-chief of the allied forces.

Pablo's legs gave way and he collapsed into a chair. He could not exert even a single ounce of strength.

He began sweating bullets when he saw James approach him. Soon, his entire military uniform was soaked. James asked in an intimidating tone, "Do you know why I spared you?"

“N-No.”

Pablo was sweating profusely; he could not stop his teeth from chattering. James sat down and lit a cigarette. Then, he took a deep breath. “That’s because you’re the commander-in-chief of the allied forces. I need you to give the order to retreat. Of course, you can choose to disobey my order. In that case, the Black Dragon army will immediately go on the offensive. Southern Plains City will descend into chaos, and your three-million-strong army will lay dead on the streets. Besides...”

Chapter 688 James continued, “Once the real battle begins, it won’t end that easily. The Black Dragon army will simply cross Mt. Thunder Pass and annihilate the twenty-eight nations.”

James’ every word struck fear in Pablo’s heart. Hearing that the twenty-eight nations could be annihilated in the blink of an eye, he could not help but tremble. “I-I will give the order to retreat.” Pablo knew that their mission to kill the Black Dragon had failed. He also knew that the Black Dragon would not hesitate to kill him if he chose not to obey his order. Besides, once large-scale combat between the three-million-strong army and the Black Dragon army commenced, it would be bloody and hard-fought. In the surveillance room...

Upon seeing this, a smile broke out on the faces of May and the other assassins. “We’ve done it!” “Yes. We can now leave this place alive.” “Huh... Sneaking into Southern Plains City where a three-million-strong army is garrisoned and assassinating the generals of the twenty-eight nations? That’s definitely something worth bragging about. What a shame I won’t be an assassin anymore. This would have done wonders for my reputation.”

The assassins all wore smiling faces. In the conference room on the eighth floor... James looked at Pablo and said, “Alright now, wipe off the sweat on your forehead. Follow me to central command.” “Alright.” Pablo stood up and followed James to central command.

Many soldiers were on patrol downstairs.

They were not aware of the situation in the conference room. “General.”

"Money?"

James chuckled. "Do you think money will solve the problem? Though you've been driven back time and time again, you continued to encroach on the territory of Sol. I'll have to teach you a lesson this time. Cede your territory to us. Every country will have to offer up five cities to Sol. Only then will we let you off the hook."

James face then became grim.

"Otherwise, the Black Dragon army will cross Mt, Thunder Pass. We'll attack the twenty nations and forcibly annex the territories into Sol."

Chapter 689 Pablo trembled uncontrollably. Then, he staggered and stumbled out of central command.

He hastily gave the order to retreat.

The allied forces of the twenty-eight nations withdrew as quickly as they could.

At the same time, James called Henry and instructed him to lead the Black Dragon army toward Southern Plains City and garrison it. Overnight, all armed forces of the twenty-eight nations had retreated. The Black Dragon army retook Southern Plains City. In the wee hours of the morning the next day... James, who was in his Black Dragon robe, was in the conference room of the Southern Plains military region. "Levi, lead the Black Dragon army and screen the perimeter in a 400-kilometer radius. If you find any remaining enemy forces, shoot on sight." "Understood."

Levi instantly stood up and gave the order. Since James had given the allied forces of the twenty-eight nations time to withdraw, he would have no mercy on those who remained.

The convoy arrived at its destination. "Sir, there's a crowd."

James squinted his eyes. He had dozed off.

He slowly opened his eyes and lifted his head. Seeing the reporters gathered in front of the Black Dragon Palace, he frowned and muttered, "They really are relentless."

"Should we order the army to clear them out?"

James shook his head and said, "Never mind, just make a U-turn. Just find me a place to sleep in peace."

The convoy turned back.

Chapter 690 However, the reporters gathered in front of the Black Dragon Palace had spotted the convoy. "A convoy." "It must be the Black Dragon." "Hurry!" They made a mad dash toward the convoy and surrounded it before it could leave. "What should we do now?" The driver asked.

James knew there was no way they'd let him leave without getting a few words out of him.

He opened the car door and got out of the convoy. He was wearing the titular Black Dragon robe that had embroidery of a life-like black dragon on it.

A five-star badge adorned his robe. "Dragon General!" Besides the reporters, there were many citizens of Sol. The moment James stepped out of the car, he was greeted with cheers and praises. A group of reporters surrounded James. Their cheeks were red, and they had a look of excitement on their faces.

Finally, they got to lay their eyes upon the guardian of Sol. "Dragon General, could you tell us what happened last night?"

A reporter began questioning him.

James yawned, "This is classified information. I have nothing to say about this. Can you guys make way? I haven't slept for three days."
