Chapter 748

A few maps covered with numerous lines and circle markings were scattered on the table.

After careful analysis, James took out a brand new map, picked up a pen, and drew a red circle on the map.

“Have you found it?” asked Quincy.

James replied uncertainly, “Ten years ago, I remember just finishing my dinner before my family villa was set in flames. After I was rescued, I jumped into a river and lost consciousness. When I woke up, I was already in the underground cavern. It took some time before I felt hungry, so I can conclude that the underground cavern isn't far from my family's villa.”

James pointed to a river on the map.

“I jumped into this river. According to the speed of the water, the underground cavern is most likely to be in this area.”

Then, he pointed to a mountain

Quincy asked again, “Then, when will you be going?”

James waved his hand and replied, “I'm not in a rush. Plus, I'm not certain if it's even here or not. I'll need someone to find out for me. I'll give the Blithe King a call."

After speaking, James took out his phone and called the Blithe King

"I'm sorry, James. I'm swamped today and don't have the time to pick you up." The Blithe King's voice transmitted through the phone. "It's alright. By the way, could you lend me some men?" James replied.

"What's wrong?" The Blithe King inquired. "I need some skilled men to help me find a place." "Okay. I'll get Daniel to help you.

Just give him a call if you need anything." "Thank you."

"We're old friends. Why are you being so polite? Alright, I'm hanging up. Got to get back to work."

The Blithe King ended the call.

Afterward, James called Daniel.

He instructed Daniel to arrange dozens of nimble soldiers to assist him in finding the underground cavern.

After making arrangements, James leaned back on the sofa.

While he rested, Quincy observed the area marked on the map by James. Suddenly, her phone vibrated on the table. She glanced at the screen and saw that it was 'Thea calling.

Her brows furrowed as she murmured, “Why is she calling now?” Quincy looked at James, who had already dozed off, and walked to the door to answer the call

“Thea, what’s the matter? Do you need something?”

“Is James with you!” “Thea’s questioning voice sounded from the phone. Quincy hesitated, contemplating if she should tell Thea the truth.

“Answer me, Quincy.” Quincy took a deep breath and answered, “Yes, he’s with me.”

“Are you guys a thing now?” Thea raised her voice in anger. “You could say so,” Quincy replied honestly. It was going to be made known sooner or later. James and Thea were divorced, so she was not destroying anyone’s family.

“I treated you as my best friend, Quincy, but you stole my man?! I never expected you to be such a person,” Thea berated her.

“You’ve divorced James, and he’s no longer your husband. What do you mean I’ve stolen your man? I like him, and I’m in love with him. He’s single now, so why can’t I be with him?”

“Quincy, you scheming b*tch. You knew that James was the Black Dragon but didn’t tell me. Instead, you kept encouraging me to divorce him. I see now. You've been waiting for this to happen. I'm telling you, you and James will never happen. He's mine, and no one else can take him from me."

Hearing Thea's words, Quincy was rendered speechless. He did not understand James at all. The person she liked was the Black Dragon, the War God of Sol.
