Chapter 796

James asked. "What do you wanna ask?"

Tiaes blushed. Thanicfully, James could not see her face as she was pushing his wheelchair.

Lately. she had been hearing a lot of rumors. She heard that although James and Thea were married for quite some time, they had yet to have sexual Triar was curious about the topic, but she felt that it was embarrassing to bring up the subject

"Thea has a nice figure," she said in a roundabout manner, "If I was a man. I would have fallen in love with her."

"Cut to the chase, Tiara."

James did not know what Tiara was trying to say. To him, a woman's mind was perhaps the most complex thing of all.

Tiara whispered, "I heard that you haven't yet had sexual relations with her. ts that true?"

"Yes, it's true," James admitted.

"Oh." After remaining silent for some time, she continued, "Actually, -I'm fine with it."

"Huh?"

James froze.

"What is she trying to say?"

Tiara's cheeks were bright red. "Well, I heard that men have needs. Umm... if you don't mind, I can do it with you in Thea's stead.

"I'm already yours, after all."

Upon hearing this, James remained silent.

Panicking, Tiara hurriedly asked, "D—Did I say something wrong?"

James sighed. "No, you said nothing wrong. It's all my fault. I kept you by my side despite not being able to reciprocate your feelings."

"I-I was the one who insisted." Tiara hung her head.

At that moment, a man walked over to them from afar. He was wearing a black jacket and a black cap.

The man walked over to James and sat on a bench not too far away from him. Then, he lit a cigarette and murmured, "Living a comfortable life, I see. While I was out there working my ass off, you were having a stroll around here."

Although the man's voice was soft, James' sense of hearing had been greatly augmented. He lifted his head to look at the man.

Seeing his appearance, James said to Tiara, "Push me over to him."

"OK"

Tiara pushed James to the man's side. Looking at the man before him. James asked, "Any results yet?"

"This isn't the place to talk. I'll meet you in the underground parking lot."

The man stood up, adjusted his cap, and left.

Only after the man left did James say, "Let's head over to the underground parking lot."

"Alright."

In a black sedan in the underground parking lot...

The man removed his cap.

He was none other than Biake Davis.

Meanwhile, James was sitting beside him.

Blake glanced at him with a shocked expression on his face. "You look much better now. Did you manage to cultivate True Energy?"

James smiled and asked, "What business do you have with me? Did you find out something?"

Blake's face hardened. "Mhm." He nodded grimly.
