

My wife is an Aloof Beauty Novel Alternative My Wife is a beautiful Officer

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 24 - Chapter 24: We Will See

Chapter 23: Chapter 23: You Are A Miracle

"No way! You got married six years ago. Why didn't I ever meet your wife?" It turned out that one of the best bachelors was not single already at an earlier time. Beauties who came for him like moths to a flame were worthless! However, it was not their fault for being ignorant. People close to him like Rain only knew it today.

"I have just met her twice. It's normal for you not to meet her." It was unsure if he could recognize her on the street.

"Er! Man, you are a miracle. You two only met each other twice but have a big boy already." It seemed that he would not be surprised again if Edward told him more astonishing stories after a series of blows. Edward gave him a stare when Aaron hurriedly walked in. His face was covered with thin sweat.

"Mr. Mu, what's wrong with Justin?" He rushed over when he heard from Anna that Justin was ill.

"Nothing serious, just a fever caused by the cold." It might be that the temperature of the air conditioner was a bit low and he was not covered with a quilt. And that's why he caught a cold.

"Sorry, he said he was back to your office so I didn't stop him. It's my fault for forgetting to take a look at him." Aaron was very annoyed. Why didn't he think about it? Things went worse now.

"It's not your fault. I have an appointment tonight. You two stay here and help me look at my little boy! I will come back as soon as I finish it." Edward had planned to ask Anna to appoint another time with Leo because Justin was still with fever and he worried about him. But Leo was his nominal father-in-law and it was not "It's not your fault. I have an appointment tonight. You two stay here and help me look at my little boy! I will come back as soon as I finish it." Edward had planned to ask Anna to appoint another time with Leo because Justin was still with fever and he worried about him. But Leo was his nominal father-in-law and it was not good to postpone it. So he asked them to take care of Justin. He was also curious about what Leo Ouyang was going to talk with him about.

"You may rest assured we will look after him." Aaron was still feeling guilty now! He felt that it was his fault to make Justin suffer.

"Mommy, it hurts! Mommy..." A small voice softly cried, grabbing the attention of everybody. They looked at the small figure on the bed and Edward held his delicate hand again.

"Justin, daddy is here. Where does it hurt, Justin?" Edward said in an anxious voice.

"Mommy, I miss you. Mommy, my head hurts." Justin muttered these words deliriously, making Edward panic.

"Rain, call the doctor. Hurry up!" What kind of hospital was this! Why didn't Justin get better after the injection! Alas! Edward, it was not a miracle cure! It wouldn't take effect immediately.

Rain quickly pulled the doctor over. It was not difficult to see how worried Rain was from the doctor's messy clothes.

"Doctor. Why does he still feel hurt? Is there any other problem not checked out?" Edward's voice was shaking. How he wished he could take the pain for him!

The doctor quickly checked Justin and soon got the result. "Mr. Mu, your boy has no other problems. The pain is caused by high fever. I'll ask the nurse to send two ice packs over. Put the ice packs on his head and it will make him feel better." The doctor said cautiously because the man in front of him commanded a powerful presence.

"Why didn't you just say it just now if this was a good method?" Rain spit out in a cold voice, his eyes smouldering with anger. The doctor was so scared that he wanted to run away. How he wished he was not on duty today! "Go get it!" Edward was more gentle compared to him.

"Okay! I'll do it right away." Speaking of it, he quickly turned away, afraid that he would be killed by the eyes of the beautiful guy the next second. If Rain knew the doctor's thoughts, the doctor would never get out of the room, because he hated to hear people say he was beautiful.

The ice packs were quickly sent over. The nurse told them how to use it, blushing. She sneaked at the men who looked distinguished in front of her from time to time, and two of them were so beautiful.

"Mommy, mommy." The sudden coldness of the ice pack on his forehead made Justin frown slightly, and his unconscious words spilled out again from his red lips caused by fever.

"Edward, Justin has been calling his mommy all the time. Why don't you ask her to come over?" Seeing Justin, Rain couldn't help but feel the same. He used to miss his mother every time he was sick, but she never appeared at all, so he hoped that Justin can see his mommy.

"His mommy isn't in S City," Edward said flatly. According to the text message last night, that woman would be back in a few days!

"What! Where is she? Abroad?" Rain was surprised.

"I don't know where she is either!" He really had no idea. He had asked Justin, but he said that he didn't know cuz Mommy never told him about her work. Sometimes her work needed to be kept confidential.

"What? No way! You don't know where your wife is, how can you be a husband?" Rain really didn't understand this couple. They had just met twice in their six-year marriage, but they had such a big boy. And now he didn't know where the other person was.

"Should I know?" Edward never bothered to think about those who he didn't care. This time, because of his son, his curiosity about that woman was a little beyond his consideration.

"Er! Shouldn't you know?" Rain was confused.

"Aren't you too curious?" Edward was on the edge of anger. How could he hold on to this topic? Compared with Aaron who was quiet, Rain was too noisy.

Actually, Aaron also wanted to know the reason. He was carefully listening to their conversation. He was a little disappointed when his boss stopped talking about his wife.

Seeing Edward like this, Rain knew he didn't want to continue this topic, therefore he stopped speaking, but looking at Edward with a sad expression.

Edward took away the ice pack on Justin's forehead and touched it with his hand. He gently breathed a sigh of relief. Finally, it was not so hot. Maybe the medicine also worked! At this moment, Justin's eyelashes quivered, and then his eyes opened slightly. Seeing this, Edward smiled, with his deep eyes full of tenderness.

"My boy, how do you feel now? Do you still have a headache?" He touched Justin's forehead with his hand again. The fever was relieved.

"Daddy, what happened to me? Why am I here? And why do I ache all over?" Justin's voice was soft and hoarse.

"You have a fever and you are in the hospital. You freaked me out, my son." He hoped that his little boy would never get sick and always be healthy.

"Sorry daddy. I didn't mean to scare you. I used to have a fever, and mommy would give me medicine. It's alright." Justin said in a soft voice. He was too sensible for a child at his age.

Hearing his words, Edward spaced out a little. If Justin used to have a fever, how did that woman get through this? Was she as scared as he was?

"Hi! Boy, you are awake finally." Rain, not willing to be neglected, stepped up, but in return, Justin gave him a small sigh.

"Alas! I must be dazed with fever. Why do I see a ladyboy?" Saying that, he winked his eyes with uncertainty.

Aaron burst out laughing. He felt joyful now. His mouth was wide open. Everyone could tell how happy he was. 'Rain Xia, now do you believe that you look like a ladyboy?' he thought.

Rain stunned. He opened his mouth but didn't say anything. Even Edward also twitched his mouth slightly. He looked at Justin lovingly. Justin was right. Rain did look like a ladyboy.

"Justin, my cute boy! How did I offend you that you diss me like this?" Rain felt like weeping but had no tears. Why did he always hurt!

"Sorry. I don't like ladyboys so it's not only for you." Although Justin was still weak, he would like to tease him when it came to the topic of his interest.

Edward was speechless. He was included too according to Justin's words. Why was he aimed at? Rain felt happy this time because he was not the only ladyboy! Edward was one of them too!

"Justin, you are so cute." He kissed Justin on the cheek. Rain deserved a good spanking! Justin looked at his daddy with a grimace, hoping that he could help him wipe the saliva of this ladyboy left on his face. But Edward pretended not to see it. He knew Justin was afraid of being kissed by others. To put it blankly, he was a neat freak, ha!

Who made you tease me! I wont help you this time.

Edward you were an adult, no need to fuss with him. Besides he was your child! Didn't you feel ashamed?

Chapter 24: Chapter 24: We Will See

Edward was a man of wealth and status. He was supposed to meet Leo Ouyang at Mochan Restaurant at 7, but he arrived at 7:15. He never felt the need to arrive early, and no one ever challenged him over his penchant for tardiness.

The waiter ushered Edward to the room booked by Leo Ouyang and knocked on the door.

A deep voice came from within. "Come in." Edward entered the room, and his eyes were drawn to Leo Ouyang's smile.

"Boss Mu! Nice to meet you." Leo said. "Please...come in." Leo stood up as Edward approached. His behavior confused Edward. Why did his father-in-law call him "Boss Mu?" Why so formal?

Edward decided to play along, also adopting a formal tone. "Mr. Ouyang. It's been too long. Sorry, I'm late."

"It's alright. I know you are very busy. I'm so glad you could find the time to be here." Leo's voice was unctuous, his smile too big by half. Edward regarded his father-in-law. Leo's daughter, Daisy, was truly a beautiful woman, and Edward could see where she got her looks.

"Nothing is more important than our relationship, sir," Edward replied. He could be tactful too, though his suspicion was raised. Something was definitely not right.

"Edward! Glad to see you." a sweet voice rang out. Edward looked around for the source of the voice. He found it: a pretty woman, sitting at a table.

"Mr. Ouyang, who is she?" She seemed familiar, and she knew who he was. But who was she? Edward was at a loss.

"Oh, This is my daughter. Edward, meet Mary." Leo's hands moved, indicating who was who. "Mary...Edward. She just returned from abroad but she can't wait to see you. That's why I arranged this little soirée." Leo Ouyang said with a smile. That smile again. The I-want-something-from-you smile.

Edward was more than a little confused. And suspicious. There's more to this meeting than just a social occasion, he thought. And why didn't the old man invite Daisy? Surely Mary would like to see her sister.

"Oh. Please forgive me. I didn't know that she was your daughter." Remembering his manners, he looked at Mary and said, "Nice to meet you." Although questions were written on his face, he still remained polite.

"Boss Mu, that's very kind of you. Let's have dinner." Leo waited for his daughter to sit, and then took a chair. Leo Ouyang was a shrewd man. He worked many years in commercial circles, and was quite successful. 'He wants something.' Edward thought. 'But what?' "Edward, sit here please." Mary indicated the chair next to her.

Edward sat and said, "Thank you." He still thought formality might be wise. He smiled and said, "Far be it for me to refuse a beautiful woman."

"You're welcome." Mary blushed a little. Mary was infatuated with Edward, and had been since they first met. But Edward's grandfather insisted that only Leo Ouyang's flesh and blood daughter could marry Edward. Mary was his stepdaughter, and therefore not eligible. So he got Daisy. But Mary had heard that Edward wasn't in love with Daisy at all, so she returned from abroad. She was going to get as close to him as possible. 'Daisy, you lost!' she thought. 'He's mine.' And a sweetly mischievous smile crept across her face. She knew Daisy wouldn't take this lying down. 'We'll see, Daisy.' she thought to herself. 'We'll see...' Edward quietly took in his surroundings.

"Boss Mu. I know your business is thriving. I am hoping you could teach Mary some business skills in your spare time." Leo said humbly. 'Daisy would be incensed if she heard this.' Edward thought. Daisy's father loved his stepdaughter more than his own kin. He would do everything for Mary, including debasing himself.

"Mr. Ouyang, don't be humble. You're a successful businessman. I'm only a journeyman. There's a lot I could learn from you." Edward politely replied. It was crazy. Leo didn't come for business, but for his stepdaughter instead of his biological daughter.

"Boss Mu, I'm getting old. I can't keep up with young people anymore. You're still young, and might be able to talk to Mary more easily."

"Well, sir, how about a toast first?" Edward said. Leo Ouyang smiled brightly.

"Cheers, Edward!" Mary was getting annoyed. 'Doesn't he like me?' she thought. 'I am neither underdressed nor overdressed today. Why is he paying so much attention to Dad?'

Her reverie was broken by Edward's perfect pitch. "Ms. Ouyang...Cheers." Edward clinked his glass with hers and drank the wine with a gorgeous smile.

Mary seemed older than Daisy, more mature. She must be Daisy's elder sister. She made such strenuous efforts to get close to Edward, but why? Jealousy. She was jealous of Daisy. She wanted to replace her sister as Edward's wife.

Although people tagged him as a playboy, Edward would not stray. He was a man of principle. He knew it was not appropriate to be with his wife's sister. Edward grew up abroad, and knew nothing about Daisy's family. He didn't know Mary was not Leo Ouyang's biological daughter, nor how his wife had suffered growing up.

Mary was spellbound by the handsome man sitting next to her. She wanted him, so much. So much! But Edward showed little interest.

"Edward, Can I work at your company? I'm not real business-savvy, but Dad wants me to manage his company. I hope I can learn from you." said Mary in a timid whisper. She looked at Edward and imagined kissing his sexy lips. Edward noticed her blazing expression but he ignored it. His mouth became firm, his visage stern.

"Miss Ouyang, I'm sorry. I can't even come close to your profits. Not only that, we're in different industries. I don't think I can do this." Edward said. His finger tapped the table. His finger kept tapping the table. This movement indicated that he had grown impatient.

You'll find, I'm an eager student. Mary Ouyang insisted. Six years ago he had slipped through her fingers. She wouldn't let this happen again. This is my one chance to get close to him. 'she thought.

"Well in that case, how can I say no? Welcome to my company." Edward's words were careful, measured. But he complained silently, this won't be easy. This woman doesn't even know herself.

Chapter 25: Chapter 25: Who Is Justin

"Thank you for the opportunity, Edward. I'll study hard." Mary was beaming with pride. She could get anything she wanted.

"Well, then I'll go first. Justin is still in the hospital." Then he stood up.

"Who's Justin?" Leo asked curiously. 'Am I supposed to know Justin? Why does he mention that name?' he wondered.

"You don't remember Justin?" Edward couldn't believe his ears. It felt like he'd been slapped. Leo didn't remember Justin! How did the man not remember his own grandson? Leo's confusion stunned Edward.

"No, I don't. Is it someone I should know?" Leo was more confused. Mary looked at Edward with a puzzled expression as well. It was like he said something they couldn't understand.

Was there something wrong? Leo never mentioned Daisy at all. He thought it was because Leo knew Daisy was off at training, so he didn't mention it. But it seemed different now. Leo should at least know basic things. Edward felt like things were spiraling out of control.

Edward tried his best to recover. "Got you!" he said. "I was joking." Since the old man seemed genuinely confused, Edward had to figure out why. But now was not the time to get into it.

Initially caught off guard, Leo visibly relaxed. "I wondered if I'd forgotten. I'm not getting any younger, and my mind is not what it used to be. Just a joke, then?" Leo was fairly sure that Edward wasn't joking. But who was Justin? And why can't he remember him? He needed to figure that out.

Edward turned to leave. "Thank you for your hospitality, Mr. Ouyang. See you later." He paused. "It was a fantastic meal, really! And he even wanted to give his other daughter to me. he thought"

"I understand, Boss Mu. You are busy. Be seeing you." Leo said with a smile. "Goodbye, Mr. Ouyang." Edward didn't say a word to Mary, not even goodbye. Indeed, he didn't acknowledge her at all.

Mary was embarrassed. "Edward, ' she thought, 'I will make you fall in love with me. Just wait and see! You'll be begging for my love!"

But how could Mary be so confident? She was as beautiful as Edward was handsome. He was the dream lover of every woman, and there was no beauty that Edward had not seen. He wasn't interested in Mary at all!

Edward drove quietly, but there was a bee in his bonnet. The luxury car sped by and captivated everyone. The paint shone and chrome glittered. The driver must be an extraordinary man, since few people could afford such an expensive car.

Why did Leo not know Justin? Was it because Daisy didn't tell him, or some other reason? This whole thing was strange, almost as if Leo were rejecting him as a son-in-law. And what did that mean for him and Daisy? Why did he introduce Mary Ouyang to him?

As he pulled into the parking garage, he put all that out of his mind. The ward was quiet. When he saw the little figure asleep on the bed, he breathed a sigh of relief. He looked around. Where were Rain and Aaron? The flush of a toilet gave him his answer. Rain burst out of the bathroom.

"That was quick!" No one knew how long Edward would be. He was gone less than two hours.

"Rain, I came back as soon as I could." He walked over to the bed, and gently touched the forehead of Justin. Much better. His fever had broken.

"Don't worry. I talked to the doctors. They're keeping him overnight. If he feels better tomorrow, we can discharge him from the hospital." Rain was really good at dealing with these kinds of things.

"Great! Thanks, Rain." Rain strode quickly to his side and put his hand on Edward's forehead.

Edward took a step back, "What are you doing?" He looked at Rain as if he were a fool.

"Checking for a fever!" Edward never thanked him before! But he suddenly thanked him today. That was unlike the proud man that he knew.

"Very funny," said Edward. Edward knew exactly what he was thinking. They knew each other too well.

"Aaron went back to the office. The YS group is giving us fits. She's demanding new terms." Rain smiled. That gal was tough. She could make Edward so angry, and Rain never failed to find it amusing.

"Again?" Edward's brow wrinkled. 'Why is this woman so difficult to get along with?'

"I don't know. When Aaron comes back, we'll know more. Are you sure she's not one of your exes?" Rain got that look in his eyes. He wanted Edward to dish.

"Her? She's way too crazy for me." Edward had suffered a lot because of that woman. He tried to push the hurt down inside him.

"Edward, could it be that she's mad at you for dumping her?" It was entirely possible.

"Come on. Do you think I'm you? Do you have to work at not thinking, Rain, or does it come naturally?" Edward glared at him coldly.

"Alright, Edward! You made your point!" Edward made him look like a fool again! He'd never won when they argued. Why couldn't he be shameless as Edward?

Its possible, I guess. You can't remember everyone you've been with.

"Rain added, he hoped tha Edward could suddenly recall something.

Don't you go home now.? Edward ignored him and change the subject.

" I need to prepare something for Justin to eat. He didn't eat much just now. He'll probably hungry when he wakes up. Edward had called Mrs. Wu before he met with Leo. She agreed to prepare food, so he left worried about one less thing.