

My Wife is a beautiful Officer Chapter 271 - Chapter 271: Forget Me And Be Happy

Chapter 271: Chapter 271: Forget Me And Be Happy

Annie bit her bottom lip and took a few deep breaths. After a while, she finally made up her mind and leaned forward, replacing her fingers with her trembling lips. She shivered all over as their lips touched. Complicated feelings surged in her heart. She felt despicable for kissing Rain while he was drunk. Her heart was bleeding. She'd always wanted this to happen when he loved her, but it seemed it was never going to happen. She was deceiving herself back then, she could only have him this way. At least this would leave her with good memories.

Rain wasn't as drunk as Annie thought he was. He was sober when Annie loosened his tie, but he had a huge headache and he didn't want to open his eyes. He simply frowned and let himself drown in the endless darkness. But he didn't expect Annie to touch his lips and kiss him. He froze in astonishment and excitement.

Annie hesitantly explored his lips again with her tongue. She felt like crying. How could a proud woman like her beg for a man's love this way? How far had she fallen? Even though she knew it wasn't right, she really wanted this. This was her only chance to be with him, even just for one night. She had to be brave and continue what she started.

She kept teasing Rain with her inexperienced kiss. Although Rain had no idea why she kissed him, he was happy to play along. With eyes still closed, he clenched his fists and thought to himself, 'Annie, if you stop right now and leave, I'll let you go and pretend this never happened because I love you. But if you keep going, I'll take over and play by my rules.'

Annie's face turned completely red. She tried to undo the buttons of his shirt with her shaky hands, but she was too nervous. Annoyed by the situation, she accidentally bit Rain's lip. He suddenly opened his eyes and turned around to press her on the bed.

"Don't you know you're playing with fire?" Rain said in a low voice. An intense fire was burning inside him. He looked down into Annie's eyes. His head was pounding, partly because of the alcohol and partly because of Annie's teasing.

Startled, Annie froze underneath him. But she soon pulled herself together and bit her lip, reaching out her trembling hands to continue undoing his buttons. She didn't care if he was sober or not, she had to do it. All she wanted in this moment was for him to be her first man.

"Very well. Don't regret this, you're practically throwing yourself at me." As soon as Rain spoke, he lowered his head and pressed his lips to hers. He didn't know what Annie was up to, but he didn't care. She was going to pay for provoking him. He wasn't a gentleman, he wouldn't be gentle tonight. She'd better be ready for this.

His words bruised Annie's heart. He must have thought she was a slut who didn't care who she slept with. Now she had nowhere else to go. Annie held his neck and kissed him back. Rain's kiss was rough. Annie knew he was angry with her. He didn't love her, but he couldn't resist her seduction.

Maybe Rain could've controlled himself if he was sober, but he wasn't. Because of the alcohol, he had no inhibitions.

Annie frowned at the sharp pain, but she kept her eyes wide open to commit every detail to memory. She didn't care what he thought about her, she just wanted to cherish this moment tonight.

"What? Annie, isn't this what you wanted? Why are you crying? Who do you cry for? That man you love? Then why did you crawl into my bed in the first place?" Rain sneered again at the sight of Annie crying silently beneath him. Every word coming out of his mouth was like a dagger piercing her heart over and over again. He was right, she couldn't face him after tonight. Since she seduced him, she couldn't push him away or stop it because she was the one who started it.

Rain was so furious that he didn't notice that Annie was a virgin. His mind went blank the moment she tried to seduce him. He thought that Annie was a sweet and innocent girl, yet she was sleeping with him despite the fact that she was in love with someone else. Didn't she care about the man she loved? The thought of her sleeping with another man tore his heart. Rain could only let out his agony through his rough lovemaking.

The room was heavy with love and lust in the cold summer night. When it finally fell silent again, Annie curled up on the bed and gently caressed his face. He was like a beast when he thrust himself deep and hard into her body. But bathed in the pale moonlight, he was sound asleep, looking like an angel. If not for the soreness she felt, she would've thought that tonight was another one of her wet dreams.

Annie lovingly brushed a lock of hair off Rain's forehead with her fingers as she gazed at him. She didn't regret anything about this night. Even though he practically called her a slut, she couldn't stop loving him. She had no dignity when it came to him, the only thing that mattered was that she loved him. 'Maybe some day, you'll find out how much I love you. I wish you all the best in this world. I'll always love you, but you'll never see me again. Please forget me and be happy.'

1

Annie reached for her phone and took a photo of his sleeping face. She smiled bitterly as she stared at her phone. From now on, Annie would no longer be a part of his life. Rain would remain in her heart and she would always love him no matter what.

Tears streamed down Annie's face as she kissed him one last time. From this moment, she could only cherish him in her heart. She cast a long look at him before leaving his house with her luggage. Sleeping with him was not a part of her original plan. Although he was drunk and she took advantage of him, she didn't regret it.

The morning air was fresh and exhilarating. Rain opened his eyes while rubbing his sore temples. He paused at the sight of the rumpled sheets, trying to recall what happened last night. His heart stopped when Annie's tearful face came to mind. What on earth had he done to her? Rain sat up abruptly. The bite marks and scratches all over his body confirmed that last night wasn't just a dream.

But where's Annie? Did she go make breakfast? She always cooked him breakfast every morning. Today should be no exception. Rain felt a bit at ease. He went into the bathroom and took a long hot bath before coming out with a towel around his waist. He didn't remember much about last night, except being rough with Annie due to the alcohol. He remembered saying something horrible, but he couldn't recall what it was. He must've hurt her, or she wouldn't be crying like that. But she was the one who seduced him. Why was she crying as if he was forcing himself on her?

Rain smiled bitterly. The heavy scent of their lovemaking still wafted around the bedroom. He glanced around the room aimlessly, and froze in shock when he saw the blood on the sheet. Was Annie a virgin? Rain suddenly felt overwhelmed with guilt for being so rough with her. He search for her in a panic, he needed to apologize to her. But he couldn't find Annie anywhere in the house. He dashed back to the bedroom and opened the closet, only to find that all her things were gone.

Rain grabbed his phone and dial her number. But no matter how many times he called, the only response he got was a cold rigid sentence, The number you have dialed is switched off. Did Annie really just leave like that? Did Annie spent her first time with me because she loves me? Then why did she ran away?

Rain was at a loss. He couldn't figure out Annie's reasons, but he came to a decision that morning. Since Annie was bold enough to initiate things, he wouldn't let her go easily. He would find Annie even if it would take him long. But Rain didn't know that he wouldn't be seeing Annie for a few years.

Chapter 272: Chapter 272: Jessica's Confrontation (part one)

On the H City military field base, Daisy took her phone back excitedly. All she wanted to do was to call Edward. She looked forward to hearing his deep voice and telling him how much she missed him.

Daisy pressed the power button and eagerly waited for the screen to light up. Her heart began to race uncontrollably as she thought about seeing the man she loved so much tonight.

But not everything in life goes along well. A call came even before she could dial Edward's number. Daisy looked at the familiar number. She remembered it was Jessica's number. Why was Jessica calling her?

"Hello, This is Daisy speaking. Who's that?" Even though she'd already known who the caller was, Daisy offered her name due to force of habit.

"It seems that you've already forgotten who I am. Come on, Daisy Ouyang. You've been avoiding me these past few days. Why do you pick my call up this time?" Jessica said sharply. She had been trying to reach Daisy for a few days but never succeeded. She didn't expect things to be different today.

"Sorry, I have no idea what you're talking about. Tell me who you are or I'm disconnecting this call." Daisy hated rude people the most. She thought that everyone should have the courtesy to introduce themselves during a call. But Jessica didn't do what's expected of her and instead accused Daisy of something she didn't do. No one could remain calm with this treatment.

"Stop playing the fool. You know who I am. Or are you afraid of me?" Jessica talked down to Daisy. She felt superior when it came to Daisy. She was from the well-known Lin clan and Daisy was poor and pedantic. Jessica thought Daisy kept avoiding her because Daisy herself knew that she couldn't take her on.

"Okay, let me get this straight. Miss, you call me first without introducing yourself. Then you accuse me of something I didn't do. Don't you think you're pushing it?" Daisy's forehead knotted in a frown. 'Edward should've been picky about choosing his girlfriend.' Daisy thought to herself. She couldn't believe that he'd been with such an ill-bred woman for so many years.

"I'm pushing it? Then what about you? Do you have any idea how much in love Edward and I were with each other before you came into the picture? Why do you have to ruin everything? You still think you're innocent?" Jessica said through gritted teeth. How could this woman come out of nowhere and take her beloved Edward away from her? On top of that, she almost lost the entire Lin Company. She needed to pay for everything.

"If this is all you're calling about, then I have to go. I'm busy and have no time to talk about these things with you. Please call Edward. He's the one who dumped you." Daisy glanced at Mark, who was gesticulating at her and the rest of the army officers who were already ready to leave. Edward kept causing her so much trouble. She would teach him a lesson when they met again.

"Daisy Ouyang, I think we should meet. I dare you to go." Jessica smirked. She wouldn't tell Daisy the news over the phone. If she did, she wouldn't be able to enjoy the pained look of her opponent. She was determined to humiliate Daisy to her face.

"That's interesting. I'll certainly come if you want to meet. How about tonight? I'm currently not in S city." Daisy wasn't a coward. Besides, Jessica was the one who started the whole thing. Now Daisy was determined to see what Jessica had up in her sleeve.

"Okay, I hope you don't get cold feet." Jessica said with a smirk. She had been working hard to save the Lin Company. Even though it was still teetering on the brink of bankruptcy, she was able to bring the situation under control because the FX International Group stopped going against them. Jessica was also able to calm the shareholders down.

"See you at the Jueshi Cafe at 6 p.m." Daisy didn't respond and hung up. Then she strode to her Humvee. Actually, Daisy didn't want to bother herself with Jessica. But since Jessica kept pestering her, she wanted to settle things with her once and for all. Since Jessica had been with Edward for so many years, Daisy was looking forward to seeing what she was like. She wouldn't let Jessica think she's a coward.

The first thing Kevin did after getting his phone back was to call Leena. But he couldn't get through to her. No one answered and after a while, her phone was turned off. Kevin began to worry. What was she doing now? Was she too busy to pick up the phone?

Leena didn't answer his call because she forgot to bring her phone along. It was probably switched off because it ran out of battery. Kevin shook his head. There was no way he could know what she was doing since she didn't answer his call. 'Maybe she's still sleeping. She's such a night owl.' Kevin thought to himself. Thinking his guess made sense, Kevin felt relieved and started to handle other matters.

As the Humvee whizzed along the motorway, Daisy focused on sorting out the military exercise documents. She didn't let herself get distracted by Jessica's call. Daisy was sure that Edward didn't have anything to do with Jessica. Otherwise, Jessica wouldn't come to her. A brilliant woman would confront her man instead of her rival in love competitions. Only a silly woman would talk with her rival and let her rival know how miserable she was. Obviously, Jessica was the latter and not brilliant enough to take Daisy on.

Chapter 273: Chapter 273: Jessica's Confrontation (part two)

Because Jessica interrupted, she wasn't able to call Edward. Daisy sorted the papers on her way back. She didn't expect all her preparations to be ruined by a last-minute change. Things didn't always turn out as planned. But Kevin was good at dealing with emergencies. Although she was tied with Kevin in the military exercises, Daisy didn't feel she could compare to Kevin in improvisation. Daisy wasn't upset about it because she also learned a lot from Kevin.

It was afternoon when Daisy arrived back at the military base. She still had some work to do after the military exercises. By the time she was done, it was dark. Her forehead knotted in a frown when she remembered that she had to meet up with Jessica. Daisy was exhausted. All she wanted to do was take a hot bath instead of meeting up with Jessica. Although she wanted to go home, Daisy didn't even consider it. She took a quick shower in her office and changed into a dress. Because she had no idea what Jessica was going to do, Daisy didn't wear her military uniform in case things got messy and she had to use her fists.

"Colonel, are we going back to the villa?" Mark asked as Daisy got into the car. Mark was confused to see that she had changed her clothes. Daisy usually went back home after work.

"No, we're going somewhere else before going back home. It won't take long." Daisy didn't think she had anything to say to Jessica. But she had to get this mess fixed as soon as possible to prevent Jessica from pestering her further.

Jessica was all dressed up for the appointment. Her goal was to beat Daisy in appearance. When she saw Daisy's picture in Edward's phone, she found out that her opponent was good-looking. Jessica always prided herself in being beautiful and had to show off her strengths everywhere.

The cafe was far from the military base, so Daisy was a bit late when she arrived. Daisy got off the car quickly and strode into the cafe. Her gaze swept around the room and focused on a dressed up woman. Frowning, Daisy walked towards her.

"Excuse me, I'm Daisy Ouyang. Are you the one who called me today?" Actually, Daisy knew that woman in front of her was Jessica. But she feigned ignorance because she didn't want Jessica to know that she knew who she was.

"Have a seat. I'm Jessica Lin. I called you today." Jessica narrowed her eyes at Daisy with a sneer. She was dressed so crudely. Didn't Edward love her a lot? It turned out that Jessica had overestimated her. Even though she's good-looking, she looked plain and dull. No matter how noble and refined Daisy pretended to be, coming from poverty couldn't be changed.

"Miss Lin, what's this meeting for?" Daisy said coldly. She didn't want to say much to Jessica. Although she noticed Jessica's disdainful look, she chose to ignore it in favor of settling things quickly so she could leave.

"Aren't you interested in my relationship with Edward?" Even though she hated to admit it, Daisy looked elegant in her cold indifference. Jessica's resentment for her grew.

"I don't have to. But it seems Miss Lin wants me to be interested." Daisy said expressionlessly. Edward had already ended things with Jessica. There was no need for Daisy to worry about it. Besides, Daisy was too busy to care about something so trivial.

Daisy Ouyang, don't you think you're beneath Edward?" Jessica hated how little her words affected Daisy. She didn't seem provoked in any way and her face was devoid of emotion. How could Daisy remain so calm while Jessica was seething with rage? Jessica had to find a way to wipe the superiority off her face.

"Does Miss Lin always feel superior to others because of her rich parents? I'm sorry to disappoint you, but I don't think I'm beneath him. We love each other very much." Although Daisy was getting angry at Jessica's behavior, she didn't show any of it. She had to remain calm, because the person who lost their temper first would lose. Jessica had no chance with her. Daisy never lost, even in military simulations.

"Daisy Ouyang, Edward is rich and powerful. Don't you think you don't deserve him?" Jessica raised her voice as it started to tremble with emotion. She hated how inferior she felt in the face of Daisy's calmness.

Miss Lin, please watch your language. Whether my parents are rich or not is none of your business. On the other hand, you seem to be the uncouth one. You should learn to be polite. Your beautiful clothes can't mask your dirty soul." Daisy stared at Jessica with cold eyes. She had the authoritative presence of a colonel.

Jessica was at a loss for words, startled by Daisy's retort. Because she came from an ordinary family, Jessica thought that Daisy was soft-spoken. Jessica didn't expect that dealing with Daisy would be so difficult. Jessica panicked for a moment, but she snapped back in response.

"Interesting. Are you saying I'm uncouth?" What about you? Do you think you're better than me? How could a polished woman be a single mother? If I tell that I'm pregnant with Edward's child, would you still think I'm uncouth? Jessica finally used her trump card. How could this bitch accuse her of being uncouth? Jessica looked forward to enjoying the pained expression on Daisy's face.

Chapter 274: Chapter 274: If You Dare To Say One More Word

"It's not your place to judge me. If you are really pregnant with his child, then I'll reiterate one last time; go to Edward directly instead of confronting me like this." Although her voice was calm and steady, Daisy clenched her fists tightly in rage. She wasn't sure whether Jessica was telling the truth or just putting on an act. But she couldn't let Jessica notice her dilemma.

"Don't you know it, Daisy? I won't come to you if you stop bothering him. Edward said that he would marry me. So you'd better leave before he gets rid of you." Jessica sneered coldly with her eyes fixed on Daisy. If she couldn't have Edward, she would make sure Daisy didn't end up with him either. She would do anything to break them up. She felt she might have a shot if Edward was single again.

Miss Jessica, I'll leave if Edward agrees to marry you. But as of now, I'm his wife, so you better forget it! I don't give a damn whether you are pregnant or not. Stay the hell away from my husband. You don't want to mess with a Colonel, do you?" Daisy curled her lips. 'Jessica, you think I'm stupid? I won't get deceived so easily. I might have believed your nonsense a few days ago. But I won't bother listening to you, especially after Edward has declared his love for me.'

"Haha! How shameless of you, Daisy. How dare you call yourself his wife? This is just your wishful thinking! Did he even say that he wants to marry you?" Jessica was so pissed off upon hearing Daisy say 'I'm his wife' that she ignored the last words said by Daisy. Her face twitched hysterically.

"Jessica, you won't quit this nonsense, huh? What if I tell you that we got married six years ago? Do you still believe you stand a chance? If it is really Edward's child as you keep saying, have it for all I care. Raising another child won't be a problem for the Mu family. As for you... I'm sorry but I'm no saint, and I have no interest in sharing my husband with another woman. So stop bothering me and my husband."

It tore Daisy apart to know that Jessica bore Edward's child. But she hid her feelings behind her poker face and acted as calmly as she could. She was seething in agony inside, but she couldn't let Jessica see through her pain.

What? That's impossible! I don't believe anything that comes out of your mouth, you shameless bitch! Haha... Six years ago? I have been by his side for the past few years, not you! Where were you all these years if you are married?" Jessica snapped at Daisy while shaking her head in disbelief. She didn't believe her. 'Edward had never mentioned that he has a wife and he was never seen with Daisy during those years. It must be a false pretext by Daisy to keep Edward to herself. That's it! She must be lying!' Jessica thought to herself, deliberating if there was any truth in Daisy's words.

"You can ask him if you don't believe me. I don't have to explain anything to you since it's our personal life. Is there anything else that you want to say to me, if not then I'd like to bid you goodbye." Daisy stood up and coldly gazed at Jessica, a glint of sadness flashing through her eyes. 'What do you have to say for yourself this time, Edward? Should I believe you?' Daisy was frustrated.

Jessica bit her lip and remained silent. She planned to insult Daisy in public. Instead, she was the one being insulted. Jessica gloomily fixed her eyes on Daisy, who was walking out of the cafe. She couldn't let Daisy walk away after shattering her pride into pieces. She had to set the score even. Thinking of that, Jessica gripped on the table to stand up. Legs still feeble and slightly trembling, Jessica tottered behind Daisy.

"Colonel, are you finished?" Mark jumped out of the driver's seat to open the door for Daisy as soon as he saw her. However, he frowned when he saw Daisy's pale face. He wondered what had happened to Daisy.

"Yes. Let's get out of here." Daisy was in a state of trance as her face turned white. She would be lying if she said that she wasn't affected by Jessica's words. She had tried hard to play cool, but the truth was that she was breaking down inside. She just didn't want Jessica to see her weakness.

"Stop right there! Daisy Ouyang!" Panting heavily, Jessica shouted out as Daisy was about to step into the car. She looked like an insane woman rather than a noble lady. Mark frowned and stepped forward to stand between her and Daisy.

"Anything else, Miss Jessica?" Daisy pulled Mark aside and glared at Jessica with obvious disgust in her eyes; her voice was as cold as ice.

"Nothing, I just hate your face." Jessica then raised her arm, ready to launch her palm on Daisy's face. But Mark didn't let her. He grabbed her hand and growled, "How dare you raise a hand on our Colonel Daisy? Are you insane?" Mark gripped Jessica's slim wrist, his eyes protruded in rage. He looked extremely sharp in his uniform. His guard was up when he saw Jessica follow Daisy to the car, and he was mentally prepared beforehand; otherwise, that insane woman would have hit Daisy before he realized.

"What colonel? Let go of me, or I'll scream! Is this what you learn in the army? Bullying an innocent citizen?" Jessica was so focused on teaching Daisy a lesson, that she didn't notice the man standing beside her. Now that this stout man had gripped her and she couldn't even move, Jessica panicked. She was afraid of what he would do to her.

"Mark, let her go. Just ignore her. We can't stoop to her level." Daisy didn't expect that Jessica would try to hit her. Luckily, Mark responded quickly, or her face would be red and swollen by now.

"Yes, colonel." Mark shook Jessica's hand off. Jessica staggered a few steps behind and almost fell to the ground. However, the pain from her wrist was nothing compared to the surprise she felt when she heard how Mark addressed Daisy.

"Wait.. Wait a second. You mean she really is a colonel?" Jessica asked hesitantly. Although she was not quite familiar with military ranks, she obviously knew what the word 'colonel' meant.

"Yes. Is anything wrong?" replied Mark arrogantly. Mark had no patience or compassion for her. Anyone who tried to hurt Daisy was deemed inexcusable to him, including Jessica.

"I... Daisy, how can a military officer be so lewd and disgraceful! Having a child before marriage? Do your supervisors know how shameless you are?" Jessica was surprised that Daisy was a military officer, but the shock didn't last long.

"Don't push your luck, Jessica. You don't have the right to judge my personal life. If you dare to say one more word, I swear I'll..." Daisy gazed at Jessica coldly. She utterly detested this woman. Jessica was mean and rude. How could she ever envy her? She must be out of her mind. She was jealous because Jessica could stay with Edward, but she didn't notice what kind of person Jessica really was.

"What will you do? Put me behind bars? I'm not a criminal!" The last thing Jessica wanted to hear was that Daisy had a more prominent status than she did. Now she had nothing to compete with Daisy. So Jessica changed her strategy and tried to provoke Daisy.

Daisy was about to fight back when she suddenly heard a cold voice coming from behind, "Jessica, if you're desperately seeking for death, I've already added your name in the list." Edward stared at Jessica in fury; his look was as cold as his voice. Then he turned to Daisy with a gentle smile, as if his evil twin was talking to Jessica.

"Honey, you're here." Edward's face lit up when he saw Daisy. He couldn't take his eyes away from her; he loved her a lot. Edward had started paying special attention to everything related to the military, probably because his wife was a military officer. He was thrilled when he saw a car with the military license. He thought it might be Daisy and drove over. It was her, but she was not alone. It seemed that she had an argument with Jessica. Edward was puzzled, 'Do they know each other? Or Jessica ignores my words and comes to see Daisy?'

"Edward, handle this yourself. I have no interest in clearing your mess. Make sure that she leaves me alone. I don't have the time to play games with her. Mark, let's get out of here." Daisy was delighted to see Edward. But when she thought of what Jessica had told her, she felt annoyed.

"Where are you going? Huh?" Edward reached out and pulled Daisy into his arms. Before Daisy could push him away, he lowered his head and kissed her. He had no idea what had been going on, but he perceived Daisy was angry.

Not expecting that Edward would kiss her in public, Daisy blushed. She caught a glimpse of Jessica staring at them. Daisy suddenly kicked Edward's left calf and pushed him off. Watching Edward gasping for pain, Daisy glared at him in fury. The military exercises worn her out; she didn't have the energy to deal with his dolls. All Daisy wanted to do at this moment was to shoot him through his head.

Edward knew that Daisy was mad at him, but he didn't expect that she would actually attack him. However, he was not mad because Daisy didn't hit him that hard. And it wouldn't be that easy if they were alone. Edward knew she would definitely beat him up.

Jessica was startled by Edward's sudden arrival. Edward warned her about leaving Daisy alone, yet she caught red handed provoking Daisy. Edward had been cruel to Jessica lately, she was worried about what he would do to her this time. To Jessica's surprise, Edward passionately kissed Daisy in public. She was jealous to death. In all these years she had spent with him, Edward never had touch her lips. She couldn't hold her feelings back and she offended him by kissing him last time, which led to the almost bankruptcy of the Lin Group. He had once told her that only the woman he loved could kiss him on the lips, and now he was kissing Daisy in front of her... Did it mean that he loved Daisy?

Chapter 275: Chapter 275: Not To Provoke Daisy (part one)

"I'm going back to the military base and I won't come home till the time this is solved, " said Daisy in a cold voice. She looked at Edward, with raised eyebrows. Daisy had waited to be with him for years. She tried hard to make Edward fall in love with her. But things seldom went her way, and something always seemed to come in their way.

"No. I won't let you go. No matter what she has told you, I can explain it to you. Please come home with me." Edward was adamant not to let her go back to the military base. He remembered how he missed Daisy with every passing minute when she was away on the mission of military exercises. He couldn't fall asleep at night. All he wanted now was to hold her in his arms and feel the tenderness of her warm body and enjoy the sweet aroma that only belonged to her. She was standing in front of him, how could he possibly let her go?

Jessica's face grew pale. She was stunned to see that the arrogant Edward was behaving so humbly and was begging Daisy. She felt envious that he wasn't doing this for her. 'I want to chop that bitch off. Edward, you are so cruel to me. Even if you don't love me anymore, please don't display your love and care for another woman in my presence. Do you realize what you're doing to me? You're driving me nuts!' Jessica thought.

"Edward, do you really love her that much? And are you willing to give up your dignity and self-esteem just to please this woman? What about me and our child? Do you really want to abandon us?" Jessica muttered. She believed that Edward still loved her. No matter how bad Edward treated her, she kept telling herself that it was fake. He still had a place for her in his heart, although now he was bewitched by another woman. He had lost his senses and that was why he ignored her. One day he would come back to her. But this time, she felt that she was totally invisible to him. Did this mean that she should face the reality now? Jessica wondered.

"Jessica, I warned you not to provoke Daisy. It seems that you forgot that. Do you want me to help you remember it? En-huh!" Edward shifted his focus from Daisy to Jessica. His tender eyes immediately became stern and rigid. He hadn't expected that Jessica would contact Daisy, and more surprisingly, she came here even before he knew that Daisy was back from H City. She had gone all out to make it happen, Edward thought.

"But why? Why are you so cruel to me? Edward, you are such a ruthless man. Have you given any thought to me and your unborn child?" Jessica groaned with distress. Although she was terrified by Edward's cold look, she was feeling desperate and was about to break down when she realized that he had no feelings for her and her child.

Haha... As to the child, I have forgotten about it if you didn't bring it up. I maintain that it has nothing to do with me. So please don't impose the false allegations on me. I can't take the blame for something which is not my doing, " Edward said while shaking his index finger. There was a cunning smile on his face. 'Huh! How could she be so brazen to say that she has only had sex with me! If this is true, then how to explain the child in her womb? Don't rant about some unexpected surprise. This is impossible. I'm sure of it, " Edward thought.

"Edward, how can you be so sure that this child is not yours? Do you realize that when you say this, you are indicating that I had an affair with another man behind your back? Am I a tramp in your eyes? You know that I have only been with you all my life." Jessica was a little hesitant while uttering the last sentence. But she ground her teeth and decided to say it. She suddenly remembered what happened on that decadent night. She didn't expect it to happen. She was totally drunk and that was also because of Edward. If there was someone to be held responsible, it was definitely Edward. If he had not told her that he wanted to break up with her, she would not be so heartbroken and go to the bar to get herself drunk. Then she would not have had a one-night stand with a stranger in the hotel, Jessica thought.

"Do you want me to prove it? Okay. I will show you the evidence. Then we'll see how you prove that you didn't have flings with other men." Edward squinted at her with a sneer. 'You want to impose this false accusation on me, Jessica, you're extremely bold. Do you think that you can threaten me like this? You're dreaming! It's not that easy. You should know that not every woman deserves my love and care. No other women interests me now except for Daisy.' Edward thought.

"No, that's impossible. You can't insult me like this. Edward, even if you don't love me, you can't joke about the child, he's innocent." Jessica was tired of giving the same explanation to him over and over again. However every time he seemed absolutely sure that it was not his child. Was there something she didn't know about him? Jessica wondered.

"Jessica, I never play with someone's life. On the contrary, you are the one who is playing around. I won't talk nonsense with you. I will give you the evidence you want as soon as possible. I hope you can give up on this imprudence and stop pestering me with this matter. Period. I hope you can take care of yourself and stop causing trouble for me. You know what will happen to you if you try to offend me again." Edward said this while firmly holding Daisy's hand. His tone was cold and cruel. This was a deadly blow for Jessica whose heart was broken to pieces.

Daisy looked at Edward, stunned. 'It seems that Jessica's child is really not his. But how can he be so sure about it? Is there something I don't know about him?' Daisy wondered. But she was quite relieved when she heard him say that Jessica's child had nothing to do with him. She wasn't a saint who wouldn't mind if her husband had a child with another woman.

Mark, you can go back to the villa with Luke first. I have something to discuss with your Colonel, " Edward said to Mark, but his eyes were focused firmly on Daisy. 'She promised she would believe me under any circumstance. Has she forgotten that already? I will punish her when we go back home. Perhaps then she won't doubt me next time, ' Edward thought.

"Colonel, I..." Mark said hesitantly while looking at Daisy. He was her accompanying officer, although Edward asked him to go, he still wanted to hear Daisy's opinion. He wouldn't follow anyone else's orders except for Daisy's.

Okay! You may go!" Daisy wanted to hear Edward's explanation. She didn't like the hostility between her and Edward, because she knew it was not good for their relationship. If she left despite Edward's request and efforts, she would fall into the trap set up by others. Speaking of traps, Daisy knew very well how to avoid them. So if anyone was scheming to plant a strife between her and Edward, they wouldn't succeed. She wouldn't do anything that would benefit the enemy but harm her family. That wasn't Daisy's style.