Skylar had built a high tolerance toward criticisms because of Tobias—almost everything he said was insufferable.

Hence, she was able to stay calm. “Of course you can. Just let me know beforehand so I can prepare myself mentally.”

Tobias wanted Skylar to find security within herself, to grow stronger, so he played along.

“How long in advance then? Does a minute before count?”

“Hmm. At least three days, I reckon. Three days should be enough for me to pack up and move out. I can’t be staying there after getting dumped, right? I’m not the type that would drag things out.”

“Alright then. Deal!”

Tobias’ response made Skylar grit her teeth. Everything he said gave him the necessary leeway in case something went wrong.

Suddenly, someone knocked on the door. Skylar threw the blanket over Tobias’ head right away and asked him to stay there.

But instead, Tobias took off the blanket and went inside the washroom.

Kate stood at the door without going in and scanned the room. “Did you asked for room service? I’m not used to seeing your room so tidy. It was such a mess. I have told you many times to always keep things tidy. A messy room can affect your good fortune.”

Skylar responded with a nod.

Truth be told, Kate was there to rush Skylar as she was almost late for the shoot.

So, Skylar forwent doing makeup and immediately left, wearing a mask. The scene that day was going to be intense as it involved stunt wires.

The last time she did that, the wire snapped halfway through the shoot and she was traumatized. Skylar would still be in the hospital, or even dead, if she had not asked the crew to add more cushions as a safety precaution.

While she was doing her makeup, Skylar kept yawning, causing the makeup artist’s hand to shiver and almost stuck the eyeliner right on her eyeball.

That day, Largo and Avery appeared on set together, not bothered with what others might say.

Look at her happy face. She must feel like she's officially Largo's girlfriend right now. Skylar approached them and greeted Largo with a warm smile on her face.

"Good morning, Mr. Zeller. The food must have gone cold when it reached you. So sorry about that."

Largo gave Skylar a profound look, remembering what Avery said about her. He felt pity for her as she was a newcomer but was already involved in those unsightly affairs.

"Let's have a private moment. I need to run through the script with you," Largo said. Skylar did not think much of it and followed Largo to the bamboo forest set. Even though they weren't in their costumes, Largo's facial features still very much resembled that of a swordsman's.

"I have something to ask you, but I don't know whether you're okay with answering them."

Largo's smile was gentle and irresistible.

"Fire away, Mr. Zeller. I'll tell you as long as I know about it." Skylar smiled.

"Please don't get mad when you hear what I have to say."

Skylar raised an eyebrow after hearing that. What's going on?

"I know you've gone through a lot to snatch Avery's role from her... "

"Mr. Zeller," Skylar interrupted. "What are you talking about?"

Largo cleared his throat in embarrassment, then said mildly, "You should be aware of this.

Why don't you let me introduce you to someone? If he takes a liking to you, your success in the entertainment industry is guaranteed. Cassidy's a prime example. She owes her opportunities entirely to this sponsor. We can settle our scores this way too."

Skylar gaped at Largo. Is this bas*ard moonlighting as a pimp?

A look of disdain flitted across Skylar's face. Scornfully, she said, "Should I be thanking you for the favor you've bestowed on me then, Mr. Zeller? What an opportunity you're giving me!"

Unable to detect Skylar's sarcasm, Largo gleefully accepted what he misinterpreted as Skylar's ready consent. Enthusiastically he replied, "You don't have to thank me. This sponsor has been experiencing a dry spell lately and hasn't seen a pretty face in a while. I told him about you yesterday and he seemed very interested."

Skylar crossed her arms, looking defensively at Largo. Enraged, she said coldly, "What right did you have to give away my contact details to a stranger without my permission?

What
made you assume that I would agree?"
The sudden iciness in Skylar's tone confounded Largo. A transactional man, Largo assumed that Skylar was merely bargaining, thus he eagerly advised Skylar, "This man definitely has the wealth to support you. In fact, money isn't even an issue for him. You're free to buy any Hermes products you want, or even the brand itself if you really fancy it. Many women live their whole lives dreaming of being in your position! Besides, I'm only telling you all this because I see you as a friend and don't want to see you squander this opportunity."

A cool breeze blew through the trees, rustling the leaves and stirring Skylar's spirits.
Skylar
took a deep breath of the crisp, clear air, and decided that this business was not worth losing her temper over.
Skylar thus replied frankly, "I'm already living my best life. After this show airs, my career will almost certainly get a boost if all goes well. Hence, your offer doesn't interest me at all."
"Don't be so stubborn, Skylar. How much do you get paid for your acting? Where can that take you, anyway? I've never met an actress who's had the courage to demand more for herself. All I'm trying to do is get you the reward you deserve," Largo wheedled.
Who knew that Largo's kind face was all just a facade? Skylar thought ruefully. It must have taken an incredible amount of dedication and care for Largo to have successfully operated his side business without being exposed all these years while maintaining his honorable reputation.
"Don't worry about me, Mr. Zeller. If you really need help, I'd recommend Avery. We look rather alike and you've even personally put her to the test before. I'm sure you're familiar with her with her ability to perform," Skylar retorted.
Largo sensed that Skylar was quickly slipping out of his grasp. Frantically, he coaxed, "These opportunities don't come by often. Think about how famous Cassidy was at the peak of her stardom! This sponsor has the power and influence to dictate the trajectory of your career. Besides, it's not as if you haven't done this before. There's no need to put on a pretense of modesty." Skylar refused to dignify Largo with a response. I must have been blind to take him as a friend. Skylar reflected that it was her fault to believe that Largo was a sympathetic and gallant gentleman. When Skylar got injured, Largo even brought first-aid supplies to the set. It was both maddening and upsetting to Skylar to think that all of Largo's previous acts of kindness had been performed with ulterior motives. It was no wonder that Largo and Avery got on like a house on fire. Both of them were equally despicable characters.

Skylar's curiosity, however, was thoroughly piqued by this encounter. Who exactly does Largo work for? Skylar wondered. He evidently possessed a considerable amount of wealth and influence, enough to inspire such confidence and desperation in Largo. Skylar and Largo's disappearance from the set had alarmed both their assistants, who were by now whipping themselves up in a frenzy trying to contact both of them. The coincidence immediately roused suspicions of a secret affair between the two. Hearing the giggles and whispers flying around her, Avery could hardly contain herself. She dialed Largo's number incessantly but to no avail. Skylar almost sprinted her way back to the set, fervently trying to set as much of a distance between herself and Largo as possible. Skylar and Largo had only been gone for a mere half-hour, but rumors were already spreading like wildfire on Instagram. At that moment, Tobias was reading the scandal with a leer on his face. Skylar really doesn't let up, does she? Tobias thought to himself grimly. However, he could not blame Skylar after having firsthand experience of how irresistible she was. Tobias ultimately found himself sympathetic. Men were naturally helpless in the face of beauty. Apparently, Skylar's allure was far more formidable than Tobias had assumed.
