

Alpha Ace and his Undercover Mate Chapter 31

~Chapter Contains Mature Content~

Ace's lips caught mine in the most majestic kiss, that it already had my body calling out for him in pure bliss.

At first it was soft and slow as we relished in the wonderful feeling of being together once again. But just like any other kiss, it ignited a flame of desire that I knew and loved too well. In no time, the kiss transformed completely –It was rough and filled with want.

'Oh how I've missed this.'

"I missed you Ace" I told him after I broke the kiss for a quick second. He groaned lowly in response as he turned around and dumped me on the bed, before crawling over me with lust filled eyes.

"I missed you too Roxy. So fking much"

And with that, he started kissing me again. His lips moved roughly against mine, as if he hasn't seen me in years. My hands went to his hair where I slightly pulled on it now and then, since I've learnt how much he liked it.

My body grew hotter by the second, as he buried his head in my neck, kissing, sucking and nipping the flesh all over it. I tugged on the hem of his shirt, and he stopped for a moment and pulled it off swiftly, then he was back at harassing my neck. I glided my hands up and down his toned chest, loving the way each dip of his abs and curve of his muscles felt.

His lips trailed kisses all the way back to my lips, and I felt my shirt being torn from my chest as our lips made one. Luckily, I didn't wear a bra today, so his hands immediately found my plump breast, as his fingers kneaded and flicked my swollen buds. My moans were muffled in the kisses as I felt my nether regions frolic in want.

His hands found the waist of my sweats where he pushed it off my body, getting rid of it and my panties in one swift movement. He kissed down my neck again as I fumbled with the button of his pants, trying to get rid of them too.

Full skin to skin contact. That's all I wanted.

Ace finished the job for me and got rid of the rest of his clothes, and I could feel his projection thick and hard against my leg, ready to fill me up with all its exotic want.

He kissed every inch of my body, leaving my brain dazed and clouded with nothing but desire for my extraordinary mate. My hips bucked slightly when one of his thumbs traced over the silky wetness of my sensitive spot.

“Ace” I gasped as his index filled me with an urgency, causing ripples of sensation to rock my body, quiver after quiver of need. He worked greatly and skillfully, throwing me over the edge with sensational glee.

I felt empty when his finger left my body, but the disappointment vanished when he entered me, hard and full just as always.

I forgot about everything wrong that happened before. I forgot the reason why I cried myself to sleep every night for the past week. I forgot all the hurt and pain we both felt. I just focused on this moment, relishing in the pleasure that rushed through me with each and every hard, filling stroke.

He tilted my head back, crashing his lips to mine again without slowing his pace once. There was a wildness in him that I recognized as new. This time wasn't sweet and steady like the other times. Instead it was fast and hard, filled with longing desire and built up frustration. He released himself with each movement, closing the door on this tragic week and situation we were in.

And I loved it.

It was after a while when we both recovered from our high. And we just laid tangled and sweaty together, breathing heavily and reliving the moment. I knew that all the time we spent away from each other only made the moment better.

“I really did miss you” He whispered as he stroked my hair with his fingers in a soothing manner.

I didn't reply; I just hummed in response and snuggled closer into him, appreciating his presence so close.

“Do you think you would be ready to meet the pack now?” He asked when I didn't say anything.

Panic flooded my veins when I remembered that they knew who I was. Will they even accept me? Surely I'll have to prove myself.

“They'll love you Roxy” He answered my unspoken question. It soothed my nerves slightly, but I still felt anxious.

I knew I had to meet them sooner or later. Maybe it's best if it was sooner. I guess I didn't need to feel worried. From what I saw so far, they didn't resent me for my actions.

“Can Jane be introduced on that same day? Since she's now the new Gamma female?” I asked, which made him ogle me in shock.

I giggled slightly at his reaction as I watched it change from shock to happiness. His eyes then glazed over, as if he was asking Scott if it was true, then his face only grew happier.

“That’s great!” He exclaimed, which made me laugh again. He then met my eyes again as his expression softened.

“Anything you’d like ma cherie”

I smiled brightly as I pecked his lips and snuggled into his chest again.

Everything felt right and I felt happy.

Even before the whole revelation and I was happy, I always had the big secret hanging over my head. But now it felt different. I felt free and open and all warm inside. Things will be great now. Ace has forgiven me, we can move forward, raise our baby and be a normal happy couple.

I’ll have my best friend here with me, and we’ll all live happily. Aiden will do a great job with the pack, mom and dad will be okay, Jenna will be out of the clinic soon from what I’ve heard and there’s no more conflict.

No more war. It felt right.

I yelped in surprise as Ace lifted me up and carried me towards the bathroom. He rested me in the shower then stepped in after me. I winced slightly when I moved, feeling the soreness between my legs. Ace gave me an apologetic look, but I quickly kissed it away as the water streamed down our bodies, washing the sweat and the ugly past away.

I pulled away to watch the water run down the drain and smiled at it. ‘There goes all the pain, betrayal, secrets and heartbreak.’

Ace watched me strangely, not understanding my metaphoric thoughts, but I just kissed him again and I couldn’t contain my smile, even in the kiss.

He pulled away and looked me deep in the eyes with a radiant smile on his face.

“Marry me” He announced, which completely knocked the breath from my body.

“Wh-what?”

“Marry me Roxy” He repeated confidently, not a hint of reluctance in his voice. For a minute, only the splashing of the water on the tile could be heard as I just gazed at him.

“But-but wolves don’t get married”

“Some do. And I want to. I want you to be mine in every way. I want to see you walk down that aisle and become mine both legally and by fate. I want the three of us to have the same name, as a family. I want you Roxanna Isabella Gilbert, for the rest of my life. So please, will you marry me?”

My tears kept washing away with the water as I beamed brightly and threw myself in his arms. “Yes yes yes yes Ace! I’ll marry you”

He laughed in joy as he lifted me and spun me around. He then placed me back on my feet, and he didn’t hesitate to kiss me again.

I suddenly felt excited. A matebond was enough to bond two wolves together for life. And so, some wolves never saw the need for such a mundane union, since the bond was greater than any wedding vow.

But if I was being honest, I always wanted to be one of the wolves who did. My mom and my dad got married, and though I wasn’t born, the pictures always made me want to get married someday.

Even if he didn’t know it, Ace just made one of my dreams come true. Do you believe in perfect mates?

“Will you move into my room with me? You know officially?” He asked and I nodded in response. We would sleep in each other’s rooms now and then, but I think it would be great to share a room now.

“Good. Cause I already asked Lilly to pack your things” He beamed innocently. I simply laughed at his confession as I squeezed some soap on his back.

Yup. Perfect mate.

