REID

I've always believed in destiny. While this current situation may not be ideal, fate doesn't make mistakes when bringing people together as mates. I don't know much about Serena yet, but I do know that I'm insanely attracted to her. I've never been like this around another she-wolf, not even hot-as-fuck Arabella who was basically a nympho and made a hobby out of throwing herself at me. I turned her down more times than I took her up on it, too busy to bother with getting invested in a woman. Yet here I am, not even twenty-four hours in, and I'm already obsessed with Serena Harper.

When I'm not around her, she's all I can think about. When I am around her, it's hard not to imagine what it'd be like to rip her clothes off and claim her as my own. Given what she's likely been through, I know I need to be respectful and handle her with care... but fuck, I've never had such a difficult time remaining in control of my own faculties.
