The Alpha's throne Chapter 19

Chapter 19 : A wolf at the Ship

Clona's eyes turn bright red as she looks at the Sky. She's still pulling his hands while running towards the ship.

Ryga was full of questions on why her eyes turned red when she heard a large howl from the wolf. He stops for a while and pulls his hands and says "stop". Clona stop from running and turned her head at him and asked "what? "

He wanted to say something when, they heard a large howl again. Clona doesn't know why her eyes turned bright red and why her heart skipped a beat when she heard the unknown's howl.

It seems that something force pulled her into the unknown wolf.

She hurriedly turned her back again then pulled Ryga's hands and ran. She stopped from running when she saw an open door at the large ship.

She heard a voice from the distant, walking towards the ship. She hurriedly pulled his hands and pushed him to the open door.

Ryga stumbles and looks around the dark area. He flinched when he heard a voice coming from the door.

Clona pulls him again as she clears her eyes to adjust the dark place. Ryga has no choice but to follow and go along with her.

Since they already here, he will stand by and put his guard up if something happens to them. He knows it's a careless move but he has no choice because he was going along with Clona's stubbornness.

He took a long breath and widened his senses. He can't see in the dark but he can feel someone using his ability.

Unlike Clona, she was an Alpha wolf who manifested extraordinary abilities. He can't help but feel jealous to those Alpha wolf.

He stop from walking when he feel Clona's presence stopping at his front. Suddenly the light's turn on and he can see what's in front of them.

He can see a large door with a silver bullet at the side. He suddenly remembered what his father told him. A silver bullet – believed to be a repellent and weapon against vampires and it is also widely accepted, the only way to kill a werewolf. It's really not a silver bullet but anything that has silver was their weakness.

He flinched when they heard a large howl and it was inside the room. It seems that the person inside can't get out because of the door that was made of silver.

Both Clona and Ryga was looking each other, Just a touch from a silver can make them weakness. They have no idea what to do.

They heard a footsteps coming towards them. Ryga pulled her hands and hurriedly hide at the corner. Both of them sneak a peak and saw a woman holding a wand.

She cast a spell and the door suddenly opened. Both of them gasp. 'Ä witch' that was what they thought.

"Why is there a witch on here? " Ryga shrugs his head as he didn't know either.

The door opened wide and there they saw a werewolf with a big scar at his face. He was held captive and chained to a metal with a large metal ball on it.

Both of them look at each other and nod. Looking closely at the unknown wolf. Clona's guts tell her to save him and let him escape from this place.

She pulled Ryga's clothes and say "I want to save him" but he look at him and asked "how? ". They have no idea how to save that guy.□□□□□□□□
