

Carrying the Alpha's Heir Chapter 18 –

Chapter 18: Unexpectedly

The bed won't stop squeaking as I held on to the headboard. Vigor is pounding too hard this time, making me lost in pleasure again.

All that I can ever do is close my eyes and held on the sheets to suppress my moans and pleasure. We've been doing this the third time now and I don't think he's going to stop, at least!

"AH! Vigor!" I let out a soft cry and bit my lower lip.

He held my legs and put it on his shoulders. "Hmm.. you want me to stop?" He murmured.

He moved in and out again, he even leaned to cup my breast. I shook my head and opened my mouth for air. Gasping, like everything is taking away from me and I am thriving to reach for it. Closely.

"More..more.." I moaned again.

I thought he's going to just stay like that, but when he flipped me over and made me lay on my stomach, my eyes widen in excitement.

He then pulled my hips up, making me kneel under him. When he entered me again from behind, all I can ever do is moan.

"Oh! That's so good." I moaned and closed my eyes.

He continue moving in that pace, faster and faster until all I can see is white and black, I'm losing my sanity in that spasm.

My upper body dropped on the bed, he's still moving from behind me, slowly this time. I heard him groan as I felt his liquid inside me, and his dripping sweat on my back and legs.

Damn hot.

In the end, I fell asleep and woke up feeling sore all over. He's gone when I woke up so I went to the bathroom to clean myself before finally dressing up.

I tried finding my bag to get my phone and when I saw the time, I feel ashamed.

"So obvious, Pyress." I murmured.

It's already 4:00 pm, we did that almost whole day. It's embarrassing, I didn't even eat anything I feel starving.

When I opened the huge double door, I am amazed of how this house looks like. Very ancient- but well managed. You can't see a single thing which proves that this home is old. No old rotten wood, no dust, nothing.

As I step down the long stairs, I held on to the ancient golden banisters. Everything in this house amazes me. This is so good.

When I reached the end, I saw some people, but they were cleaning the whole area. When I walked to the kitchen, I then saw Liria- drinking coffee, I guess. She's holding her baby too.

"Hi," She greeted and smiled.

I smiled too.

I know I look obviously hungry because my eyes immediately targeted the bread on the table.

"Hi, sorry I'm starving." I said and sat with her and immediately ate.

"Haha, that's understandable. Lex never stopped until midnight when we got married after the ritual." She said.

I almost drop my bread from what she said. He's that active?

"Wow." I just said, trying to pull myself together.

"Vigor went outside, they're hunting." She said.

I nodded, "Bears? Deer's?" I asked while eating.

She chuckled, "No, something else."

I just nodded again and continue eating. I don't know if I'm just imagining things, but my tummy felt bigger again. I took a glance on it, but it's the same. I'm just 2 months pregnant though.

"How long have you been married with Lex?" I asked Liria.

She smiled to me, she's really gorgeous. "3 years now," She answered.

We talked more about herself and from the region she came from. Some information were bold to me- or maybe the fact that all are unfamiliar that I am feeling vague from everything.

...

THIRD PERSON'S

Vigor on the other hand was busy locating the elves. It wasn't hard for him because they know their territories. When they went to the place where the Elves are supposed to be, they can't just declare war in between, but a simple warning to the great leader is enough.

"We have no idea about the name of the elf that interfered with my moon blessing, but I swore to kill him if seen in my territory again."

That's what he said to the elf leader.

Since Vigor's parents died to the war years ago, he was the new leader of the clan. The youngest, and alone.

Sometimes he would ask the elder why it has to be him among the creatures of the world, why does he have to suffer it alone.

But everything happens for a reason. If these didn't happen all along, he would have never met Pyress in his life.

The idea of a wife waiting for him to come home gave him hope. He went home again to see her mate. But what's bothering him is the fact of losing her from what happened before.

Will she leave after she find out that the man she loves is the same monster that ruined her life?

He stopped in the middle of running in the woods. He can remember, the place that everything happened is close.

He don't know what pushed him to run to the camping place that was shut down after what happened, as he slowly went by, he stopped and changed his animal form into a standing beast.

It's dark already but still, the sun is up but soon to set.

He was preoccupied by the thought to that bad memory that a small gasp immediately alerted him.

He growled and tried to detect whoever that is but he can't caught the smell.

But when he looked up. He let out a curse on his head and run off so fast.

"WHAT THE FUCK IS MIHO DOING THERE!" he shouted inside his head.

Pyress's bestfriend's eyes was terrified upon looking at the beast running. She saw it all, she saw how the big animal changed shape into a standing beast. She can still feel the shaking of her body, especially her hands.

When it looked above, she thought it was going to kill her, but it runaway.

The golden color of its eyes was very familiar, the beast is huge and terrifying regardless of its color.

Miho was on the tree trying to investigate the place that's been haunting her for months. Every after the training, she's coming back here to investigate again and again. And what she saw today is beyond her own expectations. She never thought that her curiosity about the monster suddenly faded. She saw it, she saw it.

"Don't panic, don't panic," she said to herself and grabbed her camera and tried to shoot a photo to it.

But it didn't happen because the camera fell of the tree due to her trembling hands.

She's scared, she's scared to get off, she's scared. The memory of Pyress, bleeding and collapse came back to her head. Her tears fell, "That monster!"

She can't imagine how her best friend survive that dreadful beast. She can't imagine.

Before the sun finally set, Miho run away from that place. Now that she knows who her enemy is, she can do her best extra harder this time.

"I will kill it." She swore to the air she breaths.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-