

ARMIPOTENT Chapter 644

Tang Shaoyang glanced at the Elven Prince as his forehead creased. He was not expecting to hear this, but he thought about it again. The reason The Elven King abdicated his throne at this time. It was easy to read because Elven lost its freedom under his era, so he abdicated the throne.

Tang Shaoyang easily read that by how prideful The Elven was. He then observed the Crown Prince and activated [Basic Detection].

Name: Virion Zintoris

Race: High-Elf

Affiliation: The Elven Kingdom

Class: ???

Evolution: Myth Rank

Age: 213 Years

Level: 2,256

Skill: ???

'Wait, there's something weird here. Virion is level 2256, but he has reached Myth Rank. I am level 2157, but I am still Epic Rank. I should be at least Ancient Rank by now.' He was confused by the level system. 'On top of all that, Kalliyon is level 3119, yet she has reached Legend Rank. What is this? Does anyone know anything about this?'

'Is it because of the race difference? Or does class become the main factor for evolution? Is talent also a factor in evolution?' There were so many things that could be the factor of evolution if he had to guess, but there was no way to get a definitive answer from this. He needed more clues to get to the conclusion.

Of course, even the spirits did not know the answer. Through their experiences, they never encountered such a thing, including Zara. 'What about your previous Master, Zara? Did he evolve to Ancient Rank?'

—I served three Masters, and none of them reached Ancient Rank. My Master's highest level is 1489. You are the first Master to surpass level 2000.

That was The Angel of Death's answer. The confusion over evolution put him in silence for a while. The Crown Prince silently waited for his answer. It was until Ashley nudged his waist that Tang Shaoyang snapped out of his trance. He observed The Crown Prince Virion a little longer before giving his response.

"I see. I never heard about you before, and your worth has not been proven yet. While your father has rich experience to lead an army, you don't have any." Tang Shaoyang calculated the Great War against the demon that ended almost two hundred years ago. By that time, The Crown Prince was a little over ten years old.

"I have fought against the human kingdoms and led The Elven to a glorious victory." The Crown Prince Virion refuted immediately. He might not have rich experiences as his father did, but he had gone to war. He had defeated the three kingdoms' forces when they tried to take over their home.

"You have experienced the war, but your father is the one who leads the Elven, not you. I might not be from Gigante Forest, but I have a lot of people who know about the Gigante Forest's history. Don't try to trick me!" Tang Shaoyang squinted his eyes at Virion. The latter slowly lowered his head. He just did not like that The Emperor looked down on him, but the opposite party was right about that.

The Crown Prince Virion never led an army by himself because The Elven King Revalor was the one who led the army. He participated in the war but never led the army, and that was an irrefutable fact.

Tang Shaoyang glanced at Lusha. "What about you? Does Chief Moon also abdicate his position? Or is he willing to lead my army?" Instead of discussing Elven's position in his army, he changed the subject to The Moonlight Tribe.

Lusha was startled at; first, she panicked when The Emperor's attention was on her. But she quickly collected herself and replied. "The Moonlight Tribe is willing to obey The Tang Empire's command as long as The Tang Empire agrees with our one condition. There's no change in The Moonlight Tribe's Chief Moon."

Tang Shaoyang nodded his head. He was delighted that the Moonlight Tribe readily agreed to be his vassal. "We will talk about The Moonlight Tribe's condition after I listen to The Elven's last condition."

Tang Shaoyang then looked toward Crown Prince Virion. "I can appoint you as a Vice-Legion Commander, and you will be under Chief Moon's command. If The Elven and The Moonlight Tribe join The Empire, I will establish a new legion, and Chief Moon will lead that Legion. That is the best position I can give to you until you have proven your worth on the battlefield."

'Chief Moon as my superior, that's not the worst, I guess.' Crown Prince Virion thought to himself. He pretended to consider the offer for a bit longer before he responded with a positive reply. "That's fine. But can I ask you something else? Is there a higher position than Mar shal?"

The Crown Prince tried to find out the army structure of The Tang Empire. Elven was prideful in nature, so he tried to figure out how high this Vice-Legion Commander was.

"There is, Supreme Commander. That's the highest position you can achieve in The Tang Empire's military." Tang Shaoyang answered quickly. It was just a matter of time before The Crown Prince Virion figured it out. He did not mind telling The Elven Prince early, not like it was crucial information either.

The Elven Prince nodded his head. The Legion Commander might not be the highest position, but not too far off. A few years needed to reach Marshal, and he would maybe become The Supreme Commander in ten years. He was aware that strength was not the main issue to get the position, but also trust from The Emperor.

"Then the last condition, we want you to marry The Elven's Elder, Aleesa. She is the youngest sister of the current Elven Queen. By marrying one of us, we will entrust Elven's future in your hand, Great Lord." The Crown Prince bowed his head.

"Huh!?" Tang Shaoyang was not expecting this to come. He expected them to ask for the position in the military, but not this one... It took him a while to proceed with what The Elven Prince said to him.

"What!?"