

The Amazing Son In Law (Charlie Wade)

Chapter 2935-2936

“Of course it is true.” Ziva Hank said earnestly: “I am not an old feudal, you are too old, you must have a companion in the future, if you can really catch Aunt Matilda, I will agree with 100 people, don't worry. Go after it, if you need my help, just speak up.”

In fact, Ziva Hank was somewhat resistant to his father's renewal.

She always angered her father because of her mother's death, thinking that he was responsible for her mother's death.

However, because of her experience in Syria this time, she has a lot more tolerance and understanding of her father.

My father has been running around for so many years to give his family a better economic foundation and living environment. Even with an annual salary of tens of millions of US dollars, he has never had an affair or derailed. Overall, he is very family-friendly.

Sometimes, it is difficult to take care of both career and family. Most fathers spend most of their time working outside, and it is indeed not easy.

Moreover, now that my father is single and older, he not only lacks the warmth of his partner in life, but also lacks the care of his partner.

People say that wives and wives are always companions, and when people are old without a companion, there are indeed great shortcomings in these days.

As a daughter, she naturally does not want her father to be alone. Even if she returns to him as a daughter, the lack of a partner will still make his life imperfect.

Hank was really touched and gratified in his heart when he heard what his daughter said.

But with so many people around him, he had to say vaguely: "If you have this heart, Dad will be very satisfied. As for my affairs with your Aunt Matilda, let it go."

Ziva Hank blurted out: "Then how do you go with the flow? Let's go with the flow? Such an excellent aunt, you still go with the flow? Aunt Matilda doesn't know how many suitors are behind. You must work hard to succeed!"

Hank said awkwardly: "This...this...talk home again, and talk home again!"

Charlie listened in the sidelines, feeling a little bit in his heart.

"Looking at it this way, what is the chance of success for Jacob, the old man?"

"Uncle Hank has been crushed on all sides so that there are no root hairs left. The only advantage may be the first love with Aunt Matilda."

"However, this old man was as timid as a mouse, he didn't dare to pursue Auntie Han with integrity, and he didn't dare to divorce Elaine directly. Later, even when he met Aunt Matilda, he was afraid of wolves and tigers. Cowardly and afraid of things, she hasn't had enough responsibility yet.

During the time when Aunt Matilda returned to China, she wanted to be disappointed in him too, right?”

Thinking of this, Charlie couldn't help but look at Hank beside him.

“I have to say that Uncle Hank is indeed a rare good man. I won't say it with high education, high self-cultivation, and high income. The key is that he is more energetic than his old husband, and Uncle Hank is also widowed, so he can be upright at any time. He's with Aunt Matilda, and he can even register for marriage directly. These are far beyond comparison with the old man...”

For Charlie, let him stand in an absolutely objective position, and he is also more optimistic about Matilda and Hank, two high-level intellectuals who have broken away from the low-level tastes, coming together can be said to be a perfect match.

As for Jacob...

To be honest, Charlie felt that Jacob was not worthy of Matilda at all.

Perhaps, when the two were in their first love, they stood at the same starting point.

However, over the past two to three decades, Matilda has been going up, but Jacob has been going down.

Up to now, the two of them have been separated by a thousand miles.

In this case, even if we are really together, I am afraid it will not last long.
