

The Amazing Son In Law (Charlie Wade)

Chapter 3354-3355

"That's true."

After hearing Charlie's words, Hunter (Hamid) calmed down a bit and said awkwardly:
"Brother, I'm not afraid of your jokes.

Since I joined the revolution, I haven't seen such a big battle. I am really a little nervous..."

"It doesn't matter." Charlie comforted: "With this kind of thing, anyone's turn will be nervous. What you have to do now is not to get confused."

Talking. Charlie said again: "I guess the other party's strategic intentions are very simple. They know the location of your base, and they know that your base will definitely not be able to run. So they must come up to carry out all-round bombardment on your base, and you are here. All you have to do for a while is to be patient!"

"If the other party fires artillery at you, you must never fight back with artillery fire, let alone send your armed helicopters, or your elite troops to try to fight back or make a sneak attack!"

"Ah? Why?" Hunter (Hamid) blurted out: "I was about to tell you that I plan to send an elite force of three to five hundred people to sneak over and lie in wait.

Waiting to be caught off guard! "

"How could the other party let you succeed so easily?" Charlie blurted out: "Don't even think about it, the other party must be guarding you! Don't forget, they have 8,000 people, and you can just separate 2,000 people in the artillery. Put in an ambush all around the position, you send three to five hundred people over, and the other party can easily make your dumplings! People like you will surely have gone by then!"

Hunter (Hamid) was taken aback and blurted out: "My brother, you are right...I was sloppy..."

At this time, Charlie continued to exhort: "You have to remember one thing. Since the opponent's commander can command an army of 8,000 people, he is absolutely impossible to be a fool. At most, he will only make mistakes of underestimating the enemy, but not a principled error, protecting the artillery and protecting the luggage is a basic principle that all commanders understand, and he will never leave you a chance to attack."

"Yes!" Hunter (Hamid) said seriously: "If I have dozens of artillery, I will also focus on the defense of the artillery. It is impossible to just focus on the frontline warfare and leave it alone to the rear. After all, this is the key to suppressing firepower."

Charlie snorted and said, "If he wants to explode, you can let him explode, whatever he wants!"

After a pause, Charlie continued: "Didn't he drive fifty or sixty trucks? These trucks can't be all ammunition, but also food, medicine, fuel, and other materials, even if he has thirty. Truck shells, even if his 30 trucks of shells are finished, it is impossible to blow your stone mountain down by tens of centimeters. So you don't have to be afraid."

"If he was just shelling, you would all hide in the tunnels on the reverse slope, so basically there would be no attrition due to shelling. After all the shells were shot, they would only be left with infantry. When the time comes, 8,000 infantry will attack your hill. Eight hundred people will be able to defend to the death, and then you will win without losing!"

"Okay!" Hunter (Hamid) replied and said: "I know! I must follow my brother's suggestion!"

Charlie said again: "In addition. You must pay attention to when his armored vehicles begin to cover the infantry, charge towards your base, and approach your base, you will let your elite troops leave the reverse slope tunnel, Go to the frontal fortifications to fight back."

"And counterattack at this time. You must also remember that you must not fire in advance, and you must wait for the opponent to enter your effective range!"

"Fire at close range can not only effectively kill the enemy, but also prevent the opponent's artillery from arbitrarily providing artillery support, because your soldiers can resist most of the artillery attacks in the permanent fortifications, and their soldiers There is nothing on top of the
