

The Amazing Son In Law (Charlie Wade)

Chapter 3356-3357

head except the helmet, if it also enters the damage range of the artillery, there will definitely be a lot of casualties.”

After speaking, Charlie continued to analyze: “In fact, if the opponent’s 8,000 ground troops all launch a strong attack, it’s not a big deal to you. Your place is high and dangerous, and the standard is easy to defend and difficult to attack. It’s one man who is in charge, and you don’t want to open.

In addition, you have built a permanent fortification, your defense strength will be greatly enhanced, and even if the opponent invades you don’t have to be afraid, when they have just attacked in, your anti-slant tunnel It becomes the position where you make dumplings for the other side.

By then, you will still have the advantage of the high ground and tunnels, and the enemies who come in will be miserable. They will be surrounded inside, and there will be no place to retreat!”

“f*ck me!” Hunter (Hamid) became excited and blurted out: “Brother! Wonderful! It’s amazing! I was a little nervous at first, but after listening to you say that, I f*cking wished them rushed in. !”

Charlie said, “It’s best if you can have this mentality. Hurry up, line up your troops and prepare for the final battle. Please remember my words, don’t be anxious. Be sure to shrink. Head tortoise! In addition, prepare for the worst. If the situation is really unstoppable, it is better to go for it.”

“Understood!” Hunter (Hamid) said excitedly: “I’ll make arrangements now! Brother, I will communicate with you in time when the time comes. You must make sure that the phone is open. Can you survive this wave? It’s all up to you!”

Charlie solemnly said: “Don’t worry, my mobile phone must be turned on 24 hours a day, as long as you call, I will answer it within seconds!”

“Good brother, I’m relieved if I have you! You wait for good news!”

“Well, I wish you victory!”

After Charlie finished speaking, he hung up the phone.

As soon as he hung up the phone, Claire, who was in the co-pilot, asked with shocked expression: “Husband, who is calling you? Why are you still involved in the war?”

Charlie hurriedly said: "Hurt, wife, you misunderstood, it's not a war, it's a game! A buddy of mine has recently become obsessed with a military game. No one wants to take troops to attack his base. He didn't know how to line up his troops, so he called and asked me."

Claire heard Charlie's explanation without any doubt.

After all, she has lived in peaceful times since she was a child, and fighting such things is too far away from her.

If Charlie really told her the truth, telling her that he was actually helping a Syrian friend at war, she would think that Charlie was making fun.

So, she smiled and said, "Then your friend is really engaged in playing games, so I just call you for advice."

Charlie nodded and said, "My wife, don't you know that this game setting is particularly cruel. No matter how long you spent in the game before, you will lose everything if you fail, so every war must try to win as much as possible, otherwise you have to start all over again."

Claire smiled and said: "I understand! No one wants to put in their energy and get into the water, just like playing a little jump game before, no matter how far you jump, you can only do it again after a failure..."

"Yes." Charlie checked the time, drove the car onto the main road, and said: "My wife, I will take you to the company first."

Claire responded and said with a smile: "Okay!"

At this moment, Hunter (Hamid)'s base in the depths of the Syrian mountains is full of tension.

Under the rising sun, all soldiers greeted the upcoming war with the fastest speed.

Hunter (Hamid)'s only few armed helicopters have all taken off, and some of the more important equipment and materials inside the base have been urgently transferred to the reverse slope tunnel halfway up the mountain.