

The Amazing Son In Law (The Charismatic Charlie Wade Chapter 3994)

...

Jacob often leaves early and returns late in recent days.

Although the Aurous Hill Calligraphy and Painting Association is a professional non-governmental organization in name, it is actually half of the official nature.

Generally speaking, it is a semi-official and semi-civilian people's organization.

If there is no need for official business, it is a small group of hobbyists.

But if there is an official event, it will represent the official attendance.

In this cultural exchange between Aurous Hill and South Korea's sister cities, the Calligraphy and Painting Association has naturally become the official friendship representative and exchange messenger.

Therefore, in order to ensure the success of the exchange activities, Jacob has been following President Pei of the Calligraphy and Painting Association these days to participate in various seminars in the city.

Although very busy, Jacob has been very energetic recently.

He has been mediocre in his life. He hasn't done anything deceptive in 50 years. Now, as the second-in-chief of the Calligraphy and Painting Association, he attends various formal meetings and meets with various leaders and elites every day, which gives him a sense of what he is. The illusion of the elite.

This afternoon, representatives of the Calligraphy and Painting Association went to the city for a meeting again, this time to communicate the details of the Korean exchange with colleagues from the Folk Arts Association, the Writers Association, and the University for the Elderly.

Not only Jacob, who represents the Calligraphy and Painting Association, but also Matilda, Jacob's first love, who represented the senior university, and Hank, the old classmate of Charlie's mother and Ziva Hank's father, attended the meeting.

Both Matilda and Hank are PhDs who have returned to China from the United States. Matilda has been engaged in the law industry in the United States for many years and has extremely rich experience. Soon, with his outstanding ability, he became the two most prestigious visiting professors in senior universities.

In contrast, Jacob is not so eye-catching.

Although he is the vice president of the Calligraphy and Painting Association, he knows nothing about the field of calligraphy and painting.

If you really give him a brush, he will not be able to write much good words or paint, it is nothing more than the level of an amateur fancier.

He had a lot of water when he joined the Calligraphy and Painting Association as an ordinary member, and now he can climb into the second-in-command position of the executive vice president, and it is all dependent on the leadership of President Pei along the way.

Since President Pei saw Don Albert's humility and respect for Jacob in Tianxiang Mansion that time, he has attached great importance to Jacob.

Now on some big public occasions, he will take the initiative to bring Jacob to see the world.

However, Jacob has no real facts, he really wants to make some comments in the field of painting and calligraphy. Professionals will know that he is half-hearted when he hears it.

In order to prevent him from showing his timidity and laughing generously on the spot, Chairman Pei took him out to participate in the event and would ask him to listen more and talk less, so as not to make more mistakes.

Jacob naturally knew that he was not good at it, so he basically didn't express his opinions on such occasions.

However, at this exchange meeting, both Matilda and Hank shined brightly.

In order to demonstrate the positive self-improvement style of Aurous Hill senior citizens in the university for the elderly in this exchange activity in South Korea, the two made a set of very professional presentation courseware together. The same general resume amazed everyone present.

The vast majority of domestic colleges for the elderly are actually entertainment centers for the elderly. Retired elderly people go to learn calligraphy, painting, dance and even Tai Chi, or engage in recreational activities together. This is basically the entire content of the elderly colleges.

However, both Matilda and Hank felt that since it is an elderly university, they still have to sort out some in-depth teaching courses. Therefore, both of them have invested a lot of energy in the elderly university and organized a group of relatively high-level education. Old people, make a few subjects vivid.

Except for um, ah, Jacob, who nodded his head again and again, he felt a little bit savory in his heart.

On the one hand, he feels low self-esteem because of the huge gap between his own level and Matilda and Hank;

On the other hand, I also felt that the cooperation between Matilda and Hank was too close, and the cooperation was perfect, which overturned the jealousy in his heart.

The meeting was about to end. Someone suggested that everyone gather for a dinner at night. Jacob also wanted to take the opportunity to have more contact with Matilda. Unexpectedly, Matilda said: "I will not participate in the dinner with Professor He. We will pay for it later. Going back to the university for the elderly, there will be an internal learning experience sharing session tonight."

President Pei couldn't help but praised: "Professor Han is so responsible! I will organize a sharing session in the evening. Compared with your senior university, our Calligraphy and Painting Association is really not enterprising!"

Matilda said humbly: "Chairman Pei, don't say that. The senior university is different from the Calligraphy and Painting Society. The Calligraphy and Painting Association is a professional group composed of professionals, like a regular army. We are all retired and don't know what to do. What a good idle person, so I can only learn more, and when we become professionals, we will be able to follow you!"

Jacob was also a little bit upset. If Matilda didn't go to the dinner party, he didn't have much interest in having dinner with these elders, so he said, "Matilda, or I'll send you to the university for the elderly. It's just right to walk from here to my house. On the way."

Matilda smiled and said politely: "No need I came with Professor Hank today. Professor Hank drove, and we just happened to go back together."

"Oh..." Jacob felt even more disappointed, and he didn't know how to continue the topic for a while.

At this time, President Pei's cell phone rang, he went out to answer the phone, and soon rushed over happily, and said to Jacob excitedly: "Go! Go back to the association! There is a great thing!"

The Amazing Son In Law Chapter 3994