

Astral Pet Store

Chapter 26: Not For Sale

Translator: Henyee Translations Editor: Henyee Translations

“Hmm. Interesting.”

There were some things Su Ping was eager to blurt out.

At the same time, he noticed the reward for this quest. He asked in his mind, “What is this ‘Force Pellet’?”

“A kind of elementary pellet that battle pet warriors should take. They are only effective to battle pet warriors of the third rank and below and can help cultivate astral power,” the system stated.

3Su Ping raised his eyebrows. The cultivation of astral power was a nice bonus.

Anyways, he had accepted the mission so he had to finish it.

He turned his attention to the matter at hand. Su Ping looked at the two girls and remembered something from their conversation. Su Ping asked, “Apart from the ‘training’ service, do you need boarding services? If your pets have suffered minor injuries, healing can be accelerated if you put them in our boarding service.”

This came as a surprise for Su Yanying. “Sir, you can cure wounds here?”

“Only minor wounds,” Su Ping stressed.

1“Why didn’t you say so? If the boarding service includes healing, then it is worthwhile.”

Su Yanying was interested. Although the healers she invited estimated that her pets would recover on the very first day of the second round of matches, their estimation might have been wrong. It would be troublesome if anything were to go amiss.

On the other hand, if she were to hire another healer, that would cost her a fortune ranging in the tens of thousands.

Su Ping smiled.

He didn't mention this because the small treatment effects that came with the nursing pen were not worth mentioning compared to the benefit of the constitution and power of understanding enhancement. He had not realized that this could be a selling point.

"But, I don't think I have so much money with me..." Su Yanying was about to place the order when she remembered she didn't have much money left after paying for the Lightning Rat's training fee.

"It's okay. I will lend you some." Lan Lele took out her purse. Might as well; she could never stop this good friend of hers. She decided to chip in this bet.

She believed that the store would not be bold enough to fleece them without providing any service in return. If such were the case, she wasn't a person to be messed with.

Su Ping rolled his eyes grumpily as he sensed the anger and hostility coming from this girl. He felt distressed since he had to pay one energy point every day for maintenance. Otherwise, he would not be in the mood to solicit business.

He was the only one who really knew about the excellent quality of the products and services provided by the system. He was still sustaining losses with those prices. People would have to wait in line for the pet boarding service after building up a name for the store!

"My good Lele, I will pay you back as soon as I save enough money!" Su Yanying offered a broad and sincere smile.

Lan Lele hurried her, "Alright now. Pick your pets. We have to go back early."

"Sure."

Su Yanying did not waste time. The astral power that was in light blue converged at her fingertips. She pointed her finger to a space on the side and a purple figure jumped out from the contract space and landed on the ground, looking over. It was none other than the Lightning Rat.

The Lightning Rat blinked as it found itself in this familiar place. It looked up and saw that smiling human face behind the counter.

At this moment, some clips of unforgettable memories surged over.

"Hiss!"

The Lightning Rat was showing its teeth, as though confronted by a formidable enemy. Electric arcs were flashing all over its body.

Su Yanjing was surprised by this fit of fear and the feeling of unrest coming from the Lightning Rat. Puzzled, she tried to comfort it at once.

Su Ping raised his eyebrows. The little thing was reacting very strongly; that time must have been unforgettable.

A moment later, the Lightning Rat finally calmed down with Su Yanying's comfort. That being said, the Lightning Rat was still curled up by her feet, on high alert.

1“Come on out, Fallen Phoenix,” Su Yanying called out another pet.

1A blazing flame emerged out of thin air. A firebird that was the size of half a human came into being, exuding heat without restraint as it was completely bathed in fire.

“Is this a Fallen Phoenix, a pet with an advanced bloodline?”

Su Ping found this interesting. This was a precious bird but presently, it was only at the upper position of the third rank, with an aptitude rated as poor and combat strength of 4.2. This bird could fight those at a higher rank if it exerted great efforts.

The other one was an Ugly Stone Beast which looked like an oddly shaped rock. This pet was also of an intermediate bloodline, currently at the lower position of the fourth rank with a combat strength of 4.3 and an aptitude rated as poor.

“These are the three.” Su Yanying didn't summon any more pets.

The three pets stood inside the store and made the already small storefront feel even more crowded.

Su Ping told himself that once he made enough money, the first thing would be to upgrade the size of the store. In the future, when people came to leave their advanced pets, every single one of them would be large; some would be a dozen meters tall, others even dozens of meters tall. He was afraid that this store would not be big enough to hold them.

“Three pets. A three-day stay for them would be 21,600.” Su Ping did the calculation quickly.

“Sir, can you round it up and forget about the small change?” Lan Lele said before she paid.

3Su Ping answered coldly, “No discounts.”

3“I knew it.” Lan Lele pouted and snorted. She wired the money quickly.

After the money entered his account, Su Ping gave them the receipt and asked, "Do you need anything else?"

"No, nothing else." Su Yanying had no more money and she couldn't ask her friend to pay more for her.

Lan Lele looked around and asked, baffled, "Isn't this a pet store? Why don't I see any pets for sale?"

"There aren't any pets for sale at the moment," Su Ping said.

"A pet store that doesn't sell pets?" Lan Lele's face wore a funny look.

Su Yanying found this answer intriguing as well. This entire store reeked of mystery.

"Alright. We have concluded our business. Let's go." Lan Lele did not linger. She was ready to leave at once.

Su Yanying comforted her pets for a bit, unwilling to be parted from them. Before she left, she stressed, "Sir, please take good care of them for me."

"Don't worry," Su Ping's reply was in such a mild tone that it didn't seem convincing at all.

Su Yanying opened her mouth, trying to say something else. Yet, after thinking that three days would zip right by, she held down that urge. She turned around and stepped away.

After they left, Su Ping took the pets to the pet room in the back. Lucky for him, the pet room door was wide enough; it was a sliding door with a 4 meter clearance, large enough for the large Fanged Tiger to go through.

"System, I need to buy another elementary nursing pen," Su Ping said to the system.

"Sure," The system agreed.

-10 energy points.

Space twisted for a while in an empty place in the pet room; a moment after, an elementary nursing pen came out from nowhere.

Su Ping had become inured to the unusual powers of the system. Taking a look at the size of the nursing pen, he suddenly began to wonder if the large Stone Beast could fit in such a small space.

4“The host doesn’t have to worry. The space inside the nursing pens are independent from ours. Pets of all sizes can fit in,” the system explained.

1Su Ping was relieved. Fortunately, the system was freakishly outstanding.

He carried out the little skeleton and the Managarm that were sleeping in the two old nursing pens and made the three pets walk into the vacant ones. The three pets shrank down as they stepped into the nursing pens. The half-a-human sized Fallen Phoenix looked like a fiery red canary.

As for that Fanged Tiger with a length of six to seven meters long, it shrank down to the size of a regular dog, only the tiger spots were still visible.

2

Chapter 27: Second Rank Breeding

Translator: Henyee Translations Editor: Henyee Translations

The Little Skeleton and the Managarm had woken up. Both were bewildered after noticing that their spots had been taken.

Su Ping looked at the Managarm. This was a pet left in the boarding service that would end the next day. By then, its master would come to pick it up.

Since that customer paid for the regular boarding service, the Managarm would have to step away from the nursing pen.

The system suddenly commented with a severe tone, “All the pets left in your care must stay in nursing pens and cannot be left outside. The host must purchase another nursing pen for the Managarm at once.”

Su Ping was taken aback. “But that person only paid for the regular service back then.”

“How can an owner of a pet store have zero compassion for pets?”

5“...If you’re so compassionate, why don’t you give me some for free?”

“...Warning! Profanity alert.”

5“When did I swear, I #¥...”

“...Warning! Second profanity alert.”

5“...”

Su Ping cooled himself down in an instant.

Inhale, and exhale...

Su Ping had gotten over the fact that he was going to spend money. It was merely 10 energy points. Given his savings, he could afford it. Besides, the Managarm was going to be picked up the next day. He would have to add more nursing pens sooner or later.

"I'll just pretend that I paid the one energy point maintenance fee out of my pocket today."

Su Ping heaved a sigh. He could only make about a hundred coins with the boarding of this Managarm. At the moment, it would practically be as if he were taking care of it for free for another person.

Fortunately, this would never happen again.

He chose to buy the nursing pen; soon enough, another one appeared out of thin air.

"Go on." Su Ping let the drooling Managarm enter the pen.

The Little Skeleton: "??"

Su Ping crouched down and patted the Little Skeleton's head who was standing on the side, baffled. He accidentally used too much strength and snapped its head off.

Su Ping blushed with embarrassment as he quickly placed its little head back on.

He was relieved after seeing that the bones were set properly. The Little Skeleton was his pet and it didn't have to stay in a nursing pen. On this front, the system did not have any requirements.

"I will buy one for you later, when I get extra energy points," Su Ping said to the Little Skeleton.

Since the Little Skeleton was his, he could not let it suffer. It also had to enjoy comfort.

The Little Skeleton seemed to be able to understand him. It nodded clumsily.

10Su Ping smiled at it and went back to the lounge. He took a look at his energy points; he made over 300 that day, and adding the hundred and something left from before, he had a bit over 400 energy points, quite the wealth.

3"Upgrade the Chaos Spirit Pool," Su Ping said.

A hundred points were deducted at once.

At the same time, the Spirit Pool that used to look like a dried well began to give out a radiating glow around its edge. Some strange lines appeared on the edge by the time the glow vanished. They looked like ancient runes.

“Pool upgraded to the second rank.”

Su Ping was pleased. One part per ten million of chaos aura could be imported into the second rank Spirit Pool; there was a chance that a pet of advanced Bloodline could be bred!

After all, every pet with an advanced bloodline could be sold on the market for hundreds of thousands at the very least, and the best ones would be worth tens of millions and even hundreds of millions!

Even though the store could not sell pets at the moment, Su Ping thought he could breed one and rent it. That would be a large source of income as well!

“Initiate breeding?”

“Yes.”

“One hundred energy points for breeding. Please confirm.”

“...”

Su Ping didn't realize that the expense for breeding was ten times higher after the Spirit Pool was upgraded. Being the case, he only had enough energy points for three rounds of breeding!

After a moment of hesitation, Su Ping made up his mind and confirmed.

“Activating Chaos Spirit Pool...”

The dry-looking Spirit Pool gleamed slightly, and there seemed to be starlight gathering at the bottom.

A moment later, the Spirit Pool returned to its original state. Nothing happened.

A message appeared above the Spirit Pool. “Breeding failed.”

3Su Ping was dumbfounded.

“Failed?”

“The breeding failed?”

“When chaos aura forms life, there is a small chance that the process will fail,” the system explained.

Su Ping received a nasty shock. That was to say, he had wasted one hundred energy points for nothing, right?

Words popped out above the Spirit Pool again. “Continue Breeding?”

Su Ping came back to his senses. His eyes reddened. Those were one hundred energy points, converted from ten thousand coins, and all of it was gone in a puff!

“Try again!” Su Ping bit his teeth, making a determined effort.

2After the energy was injected, the Chaos Spirit Pool once again began to gleam. Su Ping kept his eyes wide open and checked when the light was about to dim down.

All he saw was an egg in milk-white color floating above the Spirit Pool quietly.

“!!”

Su Ping was shocked. An egg? The pool could generate an egg?

1His identification spell failed in the egg as well. He could not tell what was in it.

“Please collect.”

While still confused, Su Ping picked up this large egg which felt warm. All of a sudden, he thought of fried eggs. He was getting hungry.

“What kind of egg is this? How do I hatch it?” Su Ping asked the system.

1“The host has to deal with it in person,” the system passed the buck.

5Su Ping curled his lips. He could identify pets but to identify an egg... Was he supposed to pay himself and ask an expert from the Pet Identification Institution to tell him?

On second thought, Su Ping dismissed the idea. He didn't have that much money to spare. To ask an expert to identify it would cost a fortune. He thought he might just as well search the internet for eggs of different pets. Maybe he could solve the mystery.

3He placed the egg on the single bed he had put here for napping at noon when he was at the store. He set the egg by the pillow and covered it with the quilt to keep it warm.

Having done this, Su Ping took a look at the Chaos Spirit Pool. He decided to stop trying after hesitating for a moment.

He only had a bit over a hundred energy points left.

Coming up next, he had to finish the main quest, to open up cultivation planes and buy deaths. Those were all places that he had to invest energy points. He had to reach a sort of balance in the savings.

2Speaking of the training quest, Su Ping remembered that the system had granted him free access to any cultivation plane for once and unlimited times of deaths when he was defending the name of the store!

“I can use this chance to finish my main quest and the training quest.”

Su Ping was gloating as he left the lounge. The Lightning Rat was hiding behind the counter. He waved to the Lightning Rat while wearing an ear-to-ear grin. “Here, come on. Come over here.”

The Lightning Rat was frizzly from fear. It was even using the “Thunder Cloak” skill. Its fur was like steel needles with electric charges. The Lightning Rat gave Su Ping a fierce look, turning quite hostile.

Somehow the Little Skeleton had sensed the hostile intention from the Lightning Rat. All of a sudden, the Little Skeleton stumbled over to Su Ping’s front.

The Little Skeleton clenched its fist like a fighter in defense. It looked at the Lightning Rat with its hollow eyes; there was a thickening blood-red color in those dark, empty spaces.

Su Ping was surprised. He never thought the little thing would come forward to protect him.

1He froze when he felt the tension, anxiety, and a bit of fierceness in the Little Skeleton’s consciousness.

5After falling into silence for a while, Su Ping slowly picked up the Little Skeleton, then he walked to the door and pulled the shutter door down.

The light in the store dimmed instantly.

Su Ping went back to the counter and pulled up the window of the cultivation plane.

“System, can I bring both pets into the same cultivation plane?” Su Ping asked.

“The host can only bring pets with contracts built into the cultivation plane. If the host wants to take the customer’s pets for training, please buy a temporary contract,” the system replied.

“Temporary contract?”

The interface of the shop popped out immediately. The slot for the “Awakening Potion” was gone and in its place was a golden scroll that had the words “Temporary Contract” written on it, with a price of ten energy points.

3

Chapter 28: Chaotic Realm of the Undead

1

“...”

This price caught Su Ping by surprise.

This was to say that, in the future, every time he went to train a pet, he would have to pay 10 energy points first?

“I have to buy a temporary contract, chances to die, and opening up a cultivation plane also needs money. At this rate...” Su Ping’s mouth twitched. Was he being exploited?

4He felt lucky that he didn’t go on with the breeding and kept the last hundred or so energy points. Otherwise, he would be unable to afford this trip.

“Will the temporary contract exert an influence on the pet’s real master when I use it?” While he could anticipate the answer to his question, Su Ping thought he’d better ask just to be safe.

“The temporary contract will be overlaid on the astral power contract, and will not affect the pet master’s contract, nor will it be noticed,” the system answered indifferently.

“Good.”

Su Ping chose to buy it when all concerns were cleared up.

When the energy was deducted, Su Ping saw a golden scroll appearing out of nowhere in the storage space floating on his sea of awareness.

After focusing his mind, the golden scroll fell into his hand.

The scroll used for the temporary contract was very soft, and Su Ping felt as if he were holding a cloud of mist. There was nothing rough on the paper.

“How does this thing work?” Su Ping tossed and turned it.

“Add a drop of blood from the person who will establish the contract and then stick it to the pet that is going to enter the contract,” the system answered.

Su Ping understood. He turned around and looked at the Lightning Rat who was hiding in the shades; he smiled, presumably in a way that would make him look harmless. “Come on, good boy.”

The Lightning Rat freaked out at once. That smile was so strange that it had to be from a nightmare.

1Whoosh!

The Lightning Rat dashed away instantly into the pet room in the back.

Su Ping froze for a moment and immediately chased after the Lightning Rat.

The pet room had been cleaned and cleared out by the system, so the Lightning Rat’s hiding place was visible. The Lightning Rat was hiding next to the nursing pen of the Fanged Tiger. The former’s fur was covered with electricity as it menacingly showed its teeth at Su Ping.

Su Ping thought that the Lightning Rat was getting serious as he saw the hostility in its eyes.

This little thing was not an average Lightning Rat and Su Ping had no powerful battle pets to deal with it.

“Was that experience so horrifying...?” Su Ping mumbled to himself. He frowned and looked at the Lightning Rat for a while. The latter didn’t seem to loosen up for one bit. Maybe his presence would only make the Lightning Rat more nervous because he would be a reminder of that bitter memory.

After some thought, Su Ping closed the door and went back to the counter to have a look.

He saw a bottle of pet food: Thunder Particles.

They were taken from a plant that was like an ear of wheat, and there were dozens of them, each sold at more than fifty coins.

“The Thunder Particles are rich in thunder force and will explode in fire. Thunder Particles are food loved by pets of the thunder family...” Su Ping smiled a light smile and took out one Thunder Particle. Then, he bit his finger and smeared the blood on a corner of the contract.

2Then, he went back to the betting room and opened the door slowly, only to see the Lightning Rat who was sprawled on the ground. It stood up at once and glared at him, highly alerted.

Su Ping didn't go and disturb the Lightning Rat. He just placed the contract down on the ground by the door slowly and also placed the Thunder Particle in the middle of the contract.

1Having done this, he closed the door. After that, he would have to wait.

While he waited, he didn't plan on idling away. He opened the shutter door open and went back to business.

However, maybe because his store was too out of place, not a single customer came.

Bored, Su Ping began to search for the egg on the internet. He browsed through some major websites of pets but failed to find an egg that was the same. He did find a couple of similar ones, though.

5“Sh*t, I cannot look at this section of advanced pets without signing up for a membership?”

“I'm supposed to pay?”

Su Ping closed the page in indignation.

He then switched to other smaller websites. However, not long afterward, the computer froze and crashed.

“Was I hit by a virus?” Su Ping was speechless. He unplugged the cable quickly, with the intent to restart the computer.

At the moment, he felt that outside of his consciousness came a line that was connected to him. At the same time, another consciousness carried over some happy emotions.

“Did it eat the food?”

Su Ping was surprised for a moment. The second consciousness came from the Lightning Rat in the pet room. From the line of consciousness, Su Ping could sense the Lightning Rat's current location. If they were too far away from each other, the line would be cut off and he would no longer sense the Lightning Rat's presence.

Su Ping forgot about the computer's glitch and went to the pet room. He opened the door and saw the Lightning Rat eating the Thunder Particle it held with both front paws.

The sudden appearance of Su Ping shocked the Lightning Rat who went back to its meal only after throwing a look at him.

With the power of contract, while the Lightning Rat still remembered that mean human being, the familiar feeling that came from the person made it impossible for the Lightning Rat to turn hostile.

"Little guy, time to go."

Su Ping grinned. He picked up this little guy by its neck and went back to the counter. He placed the Lightning Rat on the counter along with the little skeleton and then went to close the shutter door.

"Cultivation window," Su Ping summoned the function with a thought after he returned to the counter.

The cultivation planes window emerged in front of him with ghost-like glows, displaying many cultivation planes listed out for him to choose from.

"The best, the most expensive!" Su Ping moved to the column of "top" cultivation planes directly. The number of cultivation planes in this column was small in number but all of them were the best!

The lowest entry charge was 1000 energy points and the most expensive one would cost 10,000 energy points!

"Compared to this, the Thunder Cloud Realm would appear insignificant..."

Su Ping browsed the cultivation planes. There was a certain "Archean Divinity" that would cost 9000 energy points.

A certain "Realm of Asura" would cost 3000 energy points.

There was another "Medieval Land" that needed 5000 energy points.

"Tut-tut..."

Just by looking at the names of the cultivation planes, Su Ping could tell that those were amazing places. In particular, there was this Archean Divinity. It was the Divinity! Was it the place where deities lived?

Su Ping's mind had been opened after he witnessed the marvels of the Thunder Cloud Realm. He would believe it if someone were to tell him that there were deities in the world.

"The length of stay in all of the top-level cultivation planes is for one day. If the length of stay surpasses a day, then either the host will be forcefully logged out, or he would have double the energy points deducted. If the length of stay is over two days, then three times the energy points will be deducted..."

2Su Ping read the introductions. He had an idea. "You gave me a chance to visit any cultivation plane for five days. That can be used in those top-level cultivation planes, right?" He asked the system.

A moment of silence later, he heard the system's gloomy voice, "Yes."

3Su Ping couldn't help but snap his finger. He was about to jump up in excitement.

If he were to enter a cultivation plane like the "Archean Divinity," he would have to spend forty to fifty thousand energy points for five days!

But thanks to his reward, it would be free!

"It is incredible to be able to stay in any top-level cultivation plane for five days with no strings attached!"

6Su Ping was rejoicing with wild excitement. This reward was awesome!

It took him a long while to calm down but he was still worked up.

Wasn't it a sure thing that he could finish the main quest if he stayed in any top-level cultivation plane for five days?

2If he couldn't finish the quest with such favorable conditions, then he would have to say that the main quest was not reasonable!

2"It is a pity that given my current abilities, the harvest is limited when I go to such a top-level cultivation plane. The ticket's value cannot be put into full play."

1Su Ping felt sorry. He could only walk along the edge in such a top-level cultivation plane. Any being from such a plane could easily give him a bashing.

"That being said, this is a chance that comes once in a blue moon. I must enjoy my days there, while I pick up some pet food along the way!"

Su Ping was quite satisfied with the reward this time. He wondered if he should call more people over to make trouble, so that more ad hoc quests like this could be triggered. On the other hand, he believed that the system would not let him exploit an advantage. Of course, that was part of a story to be told later.

Su Ping scrolled down the list several times. Taking the little skeleton into consideration, he soon selected a cultivation plane—Chaotic Realm of the Undead!

5The energy points required to enter this cultivation plane were the same as with the “Archean Divinity,” at 9000 points!

2

Chapter 29: Training Killing Intent

1

“Confirm?”

The system had to verify since Su Ping had selected one of the first-tier cultivation planes of the top level.

“Of course.” Su Ping grinned.

“As you wish.”

The system had barely finished its reply when Su Ping found himself spinning into a pitch-dark swirl. He felt his body and his soul separate.

When he regained consciousness, he heard the familiar voice of the system.

“Host has established connection with the ‘Chaotic Realm of the Undead’.”

“Length of connection, five days...”

“Unlimited number of deaths are granted during this connection...”

“Please head out on your own...”

Su Ping came back to his senses. As he opened his eyes, a crimson view leaped into his sight.

Three massive scarlet moons were hanging in the sky, turning the dark cosmic vault into a brilliant red. Looking from where he was standing, he could faintly see the surface of the crimson moons. There seemed to be streaks of darkness that appeared to be tiny flying insects.

Yet, considering the actual distance between him and the moons, he could only imagine how horribly large the actual size of those tiny dark streaks were!

“Woo...”

He sensed some fear and heard a plaintive whine. Su Ping looked down. The Lightning Rat was curled up by his foot, shivering in fear and looking around nervously.

Su Ping began to check the surroundings as well. His heart almost stopped with just a quick look.

What a hellish view this was!

The strange trees were like human limbs, twisted strangely. The grey withered grass that could be found across the land were wiggling willfully as if they contained a strong vitality!

He was standing at the edge of a desolate, dead wood, where it seemed to have rained, and in front of him were puddles of water with strange worms, like maggots, swimming in them, and a lot of remains and bones lay scattered in the grass by the side of the road.

4As far as his sight could reach, this was a world where no life could be seen.

The red sky and the dark world both reeked of death and desperation.

While Su Ping was still in a daze, all of a sudden, he felt both the Little Skeleton and the Lightning Rat become alerted. Compared to the Little Skeleton, there was an addition of fear in the consciousness of the Lightning Rat.

Su Ping looked over. He saw that two human-shaped figures were loafing over from the sparse woods.

As they came closer, Su Ping could distinguish that the two figures were two skeletons that were about three meters tall. Stooping, they walked with difficulty. It was more like that they were wiggling.

Su Ping's heart pumped faster. Remembering that he had the benefit of unlimited deaths, his confidence was boosted. He gave out the attack command to the two little guys at once.

Crack, crack.

Upon receiving the order, the Little Skeleton staggered over, as if death was of no consequence.

On the other hand, the Lightning Rat was resisting. It was still crouching by Su Ping's feet. The Lightning Rat knew that this person was despicable but in this strange environment, the human was the only being that it could rely on.

"This timid?"

3Su Ping was surprised. He was not afraid because he knew he would not die but this little thing had no such knowledge. It was only natural that the Lightning Rat would be scared.

This was a problem.

Soon, Su Ping remembered the battle pet warrior skill book he had picked up. He clapped his hands. Why did he forget about that?

He thought of it and that skill book fell into his hands from his storage space.

Killing intent!

Two sharply drawn words were on the cover of this skill book.

Su Ping opened the book to study it without hesitation.

When he opened the book, the skill book transformed into golden sparkles that merged into his body. The next second, Su Ping felt a large amount of information swarming out. When he sorted out the information, he realized that he had mastered the skill.

"Killing intent!"

1Su Ping cast the skill on the Lightning Rat at once.

4It was as if some faint substance flowed into the Lightning Rat through the bonds of the contract.

The next moment, the previously jittery Lightning Rat was suddenly filled with a thirst for blood and violence. Its eyes were red and it showed its sharp teeth. With tremendous force, the Lightning Rat dashed toward the two human-shaped skeletons.

4When the Lightning Rat dashed out, Su Ping felt mentally exhausted, as if his mind had expended vast amounts of energy.

At the moment, the Lightning Rat had run past the Little Skeleton and arrived near the two human-shaped skeletons at the speed of lightning. The first move Lightning Rat resorted to was the strongest of all, Thunder Slash!

Lightning hovered above its head violently and in an instant, it was compressed into a sword of lightning. The sword moved toward one of the human-shaped skeletons.

The two human-shaped skeletons were wiggling slowly but the moment that the Lightning Rat hopped up to attack, the two skeletons came to their senses. Two streaks of red light shot out from their hollowed eye sockets. The next second, they swung their bodies violently and their sickle-like hands landed heavily on the thunder blade above the Lightning Rat's head.

With a bang, the Lightning Rat was repelled.

That human-shaped skeleton's arm was smoking and burning but the injury was minor. It was as if the skeleton could feel pain. The skeleton howled and ran to the Lightning Rat wildly.

Whoosh!

The human-shaped skeleton was running at an incredible speed, which was utterly different from when it was wiggling about. In an instant, the skeleton had caught up with the Lightning Rat and along the way, the skeleton stamped on the Little Skeleton that had dashed over.

Crack!

The sound of the broken bones was extremely crisp.

The connection of consciousness with the Little Skeleton in Su Ping's mind was cut off.

"Revive pet on the spot?"

"Yes!" Su Ping said at once.

The Little Skeleton was too weak and was merely at the first rank. The Severed Limb Reassemble skill could enable the Little Skeleton to set a broken bone. But the Little Skeleton could not recover if it was crushed into pieces.

After Su Ping gave his answer, the Little Skeleton reassembled on the spot soon and came back to life. But one second later, the Little Skeleton was stamped into pieces by the second human-shaped skeleton.

"..."

Su Ping chose to revive the Little Skeleton on the spot again.

The Little Skeleton stood up on the spot at once. It took a look around and saw where the two human-shaped skeletons were headed to. Instantly, the Little Skeleton went after them, staggering along.

2At the same time, the moment the human-shaped skeleton reached it, the Lightning Rat released Thunder Cloak. Its hair was standing on its root since the electric arcs crackled around its body. In the meantime, another Lightning Rat split out and it ran toward the other side of the human-shaped skeleton.

1Thunder Shadow Image!

That human-shaped skeleton did not understand what was going on and was still hacking toward the first Lightning Rat with its arm.

Bang!

The first Lightning Rat was smashed into pieces but it formed a ball of the residual thunderbolt that exploded on the human-shaped skeleton's arm, inflicting considerable harm. That thunder power defused much of the dark, foul air surrounding the human-shaped skeleton as well.

The moment the shadow image collapsed, the real Lightning Rat came out and aimed at the human-shaped skeleton's neck with Thunder Slash!

However.

The human-shaped skeleton reacted even faster.

At this critical time, the skeleton twisted around with a huge boost in its speed and swung its other arm at the Lightning Rat.

Thunder Flash!

The moment the Lightning Rat was hit, it disappeared. It hopped over the human-shaped skeleton's arm and the Thunder Slash landed on the human-shaped skeleton's face.

Bang!

The human-shaped skeleton's head was smashed to the side with its neck almost cut off. Its head was about to fall.

However, before the Lightning Rat could initiate the second attack, another human-shaped skeleton followed through. It reached out its withered, sharp claw and tore the Lightning Rat into pieces!

Blood spurted out when the Lightning Rat's body fell to the ground.

Such an intense moment happened in the split of a second.

Su Ping's heart pounded as he saw this view in the distance. When he saw that the Lightning Rat was killed, he chose to bring it back to life at once.

In less than a second after the body touched the ground, it came into being again amid sparkles.

The instinct kicked in when the Lightning Rat sensed danger after it was brought back to life. The Lightning Rat hopped away at once, distancing itself from the human-shaped skeleton.

When the Lightning Rat had a clear visual of the surroundings, the Lightning Rat's hair stood up and it turned around and began to run at once.

Su Ping pulled a long face and initiated the "killing intent" immediately.

The Lightning Rat, who was halfway through its escape, stopped at once. It turned around, grimacing, and dashed toward the human-shaped skeleton again.

6

"Focus on one skeleton first!"

Su Ping passed along his intention through the contract. Most of the time, battle pet warriors were the brains of the team and they had to make clear judgments during combat.

At this cultivation site, not only the pets were trained, Su Ping himself was benefiting from the experience.

Whoosh!

The Lightning Rat released a Thunder Shadow Image at once. The two Lightning Rats were running toward the injured human-shaped skeleton.

While the "killing intent" could induce a crazed state in the Lightning Rat, it could still receive its master's intention with precision.

The human-shaped skeleton was a bit surprised as it looked at the Lightning Rat coming over again, wondering how this prey could come back to life so quickly. Yet, given its simple mind, the human-shaped skeleton did not probe further into the matter. When the Lightning Rats were close, the human-shaped skeleton dashed toward one of them.

Whoosh!

The skeleton waved its sickle-like arm.

Thunder Flash!

In that fatal moment, the Lightning Rat used the Thunder Flash, which was rare, and dodged away from this strike.

After landing, the Lightning Rat jumped up again and used the Thunder Slash to hack the skeleton.

Bang!

The second human-shaped skeleton charged toward the Lightning Rat from the side. With a wave of its arm, the skeleton smashed the Lightning Rat into the ground and the latter died on the spot.

“Revive.”

Su Ping decided in no time.

The Lightning Rat was brought back to life at once. Yet, the “killing intent” had been dismissed automatically. After a second with its mind unfocused, the first instinct that kicked in was to run away.

The two human-shaped skeletons could kill the Lightning Rat with any random attack, which made the Lightning Rat sense danger and horror.

Su Ping had to use “killing intent” again in this case.

3This time, he had a clear feeling that something was being pulled out from him. The moment he used the skill, his sight was blurred and his consciousness was also foggy. He could not help but fall on his face.

“Are three skill releases the maximum I can handle? Do I have to recover by killing myself?”

3Su Ping’s mind was functioning with difficulty. In his sight, several figures were mixed. He could no longer tell if they were the human-shaped skeletons or the strange trees around. Everything was shaking and he was seeing double.

Su Ping clenched his teeth. Relying on the last piece of willpower, he crawled up from the ground and dragged himself forward.

He only had one goal, to die.

6He did not know how many steps he took or how long he had walked before a strong force landed on his head. He was assaulted by the sharp pain instantly.

In the next second, Su Ping's consciousness returned to the dark space, and the options of revival popped out.

Su Ping's consciousness that had almost dried up returned with full vitality. Su Ping chose to revive on the spot at once.

The darkness faded away and the surrounding view quickly re-emerged. He saw that the two human-shaped skeletons were bending over their bodies a few meters away, each with half of the Lightning Rat in their hands, eating.

By their feet was the shattered body of the Little Skeleton.

The sudden appearance of Su Ping shocked both of the human-shaped skeletons. They both turned around slowly.

"Revive!" "Revive!"

Su Ping brought the Lightning Rat and Little Skeleton back to life immediately.

While they were being brought back to life, Su Ping saw one of the human-shaped skeletons dashing toward him. With a body more than three meters tall, the human-shaped skeleton looked dreadful. It went without saying that Su Ping was torn apart before he could ward off the blows.

"Revive!"

The moment the pain came over, it disappeared without a trace.

Darkness emerged. Su Ping chose to revive again. After he came back to life, he saw the two human-shaped skeletons chasing the Lightning Rat while the Little Skeleton was running after the two human-shaped skeletons; only the Little Skeleton was falling behind.

"Killing intent!"

Su Ping initiated his skill at once.

When the Lightning Rat's battle rage was rekindled, Su Ping instructed the Lightning Rat to use Thunder Shadow Image to distract the other human-shaped skeletons with one of the Lightning Rats so that the real Lightning Rat would have the chance to launch a strike at the injured human-shaped skeleton.

"Fight!"

“Thunder Flash!”

Su Ping was determined to make the Lightning Rat fight till the end of its life; even if it were to die again, it had to inflict a mark on the human-shaped skeleton.

Fortunately, the Lightning Rat had mastered an advanced pet skill, “Thunder Flash.” With the help of temporary teleportation, the Lightning Rat could escape from the human-shaped skeleton’s strike at a close call. The Lightning Rat would dash to the other side of the human-shaped skeleton and cause harm to it.

Su Ping brought the Lightning Rat back to life again and again. After two rounds of “killing intent”, Su Ping asked the Lightning Rat to lure the human-shaped skeleton to him in the fight. After the Lightning Rat died again, Su Ping used the “killing intent” for the third time, and in the meantime, he also tried his hand against the human-shaped skeleton as well.

A cycle of life and death was repeated over and over.

After a long time, Su Ping realized that he was no longer as tired as before after the third application of “killing intent.” He could manage to see the surroundings and his body seemed to be adjusting with repeated exhaustion.

Crack!

An arm of the human-shaped skeleton was torn off. The dark, foul air was thinning down until there were only a few strands left.

The human-shaped skeleton tore apart the Lightning Rat and used a strand of the dark, foul air to reset the broken arm that had fallen to the ground.

“Revive!”

After seven or eight times of revival, the Lightning Rat had finally exhausted the dark, foul air in this human-shaped skeleton. After another strike of Thunder Slash that cut off the human-shaped skeleton’s head, the human-shaped skeleton fell apart all of a sudden, falling to the ground and lying still permanently.

“Is it dead...?” Su Ping looked at the remains on the ground. He was relieved and at the same time, pleasantly surprised.

3The Lightning Rat had cut off the limbs and the head of the human-shaped skeleton and even hacked its remains into pieces, but the human-shaped skeleton could use its dark, foul air to recover its body. It was practically immortal.

Su Ping would have given up on killing the two human-shaped skeletons if it weren’t for the fact that he had noticed the effects of the Lightning Rat’s thunder: it could contain the human-shaped skeleton and each time, the lightning and thunder power could reduce the dark, foul air.

Having successfully dealt with one human-shaped skeleton, Su Ping could see the dawn of victory. He instructed the Lightning Rat to attack the other one at once.

Right at that moment...

Su Ping suddenly sensed a desire coming from the Little Skeleton. He looked over with surprise. Unknowingly, the Little Skeleton had moved near the scattered remains of a human-shaped skeleton. The Little Skeleton was bending over and checking the remains.

2“Do you want to eat it?”

Su Ping was taken aback by this idea.

He then remembered that pets of the demon family would evolve by catching and feeding off of their kindred, and skeletons were no exception to this. They mainly progressed by eating their peer’s remains.

The other way was to suck the power of the undead!

“Go ahead.”

Su Ping gave his permission and was looking forward to seeing the result.

With Su Ping’s approval, the Little Skeleton began to look through the scattered remains and bones. The Little Skeleton picked up several ribs and then threw them away after checking. Later, the Little Skeleton picked up another piece of bone that looked like a finger. The Little Skeleton observed it for a while and then, all of a sudden, pulled one of its own ribs out and stuffed this finger bone back in to take the place of the original rib.

The size of the finger bone was similar to its original rib.

After the replacement, some dark energy surged from the Little Skeleton. That finger bone was set with a clipping sound. The bone fit smoothly and had become a new part of the Little Skeleton.

3...

Translator: Henyee Translations Editor: Henyee Translations

Having picked out that finger bone, the Little Skeleton fumbled through the pile of remains once more, to dig out some other short bones that looked like sharp teeth to replace its original knees and arms. Those bones became part of the Little Skeleton with the help of the dark energy.

While the Little Skeleton was selecting appropriate bones, the Lightning Rat was fighting a bitter fight.

Thanks to the diversion created by the "Thunder Shadow Image," the Lightning Rat was snatched from the jaws of death several times. That being said, every time the Lightning Rat came close to the human-shaped skeleton, the latter would sense the former's presence and react swiftly and violently.

Relying on the "Thunder Flash," the Lightning Rat could teleport and appear at difficult corners to unleash a Thunder Slash. However, whenever the Lightning Rat managed to hit its target, the human-shaped skeleton would quickly tear the Lightning Rat apart.

One life for another!

The gap in abilities between the Lightning Rat and the human-shaped skeleton was significant. Normally, the Lightning Rat would not stand a chance against the human-shaped skeleton.

It was fortunate that Su Ping could bring the Lightning Rat back to life endlessly. As long as the Lightning Rat could inflict harm on its enemy, the latter would be tortured to death sooner or later.

The human-shaped skeleton was ferocious but its intelligence was low. Taking advantage of the revivals, the Lightning Rat had been depleting the human skeleton's energy but the latter did not stop nor intend to flee.

A few minutes later.

Over half of the dark, foul air around the human-shaped skeleton had been reduced and the skeleton was moving slowly with less precision than before.

At this moment, Su Ping perceived an intense fighting desire from the Little Skeleton. In the next moment, all Su Ping could see was a small, black figure hurrying toward the battlefield.

Su Ping fixed his eyes on the dark figure. It was the Little Skeleton.

But the Little Skeleton was different from before. Its height was the same but now it was surrounded by the dark air. Its arms, knees and other bones were sharper and darker.

The biggest difference was how fast the Little Skeleton could run.

Before, the Little Skeleton had to stumble around. At the moment, it was walking with flying feet, almost as fast as the Lightning Rat.

The human-shaped skeleton was being badgered by the two Lightning Rats. Disturbed by the Thunder Shadow Image, the human-shaped skeleton had lost its bearings. When the Little Skeleton joined the fight, the human-shaped skeleton felt something. It turned around, let out a bellow, and charged toward the Little Skeleton.

The Little Skeleton was not something that could be ignored or stamped to death anymore.

Faced with the human-shaped skeleton, the Little Skeleton turned around and avoided the strike with considerable agility. It escaped the first strike, only to be smashed into pieces by the human-shaped skeleton that waved its other arm in a very tricky position!

Among all the skeleton bones scattered on the ground, several pieces were quite firm. They were still intact after falling to the ground.

Alerted by the system, Su Ping knew that the Little Skeleton had died and could not reassemble. So, he had to choose to revive it.

Even though the Little Skeleton lost its life within seconds, compared with before, it had already progressed notably.

With the help of the Lightning Rat shadow, the frantic Lightning Rat attacked quickly. Several Thunder Slashes landed on the human-shaped skeleton, diminishing a large amount of the dark, foul air.

Five minutes later, with the concerted efforts of the Little Skeleton and the Lightning Rat, the human-shaped skeleton was slain, releasing its dark, foul air.

The Little Skeleton began to scavenge for pieces among the remains. Worn out, the Lightning Rat and Su Ping sat by the side to have a rest.

Whoosh!

All of a sudden, a breeze was felt.

Su Ping checked the surroundings as he enjoyed his rest. All of a sudden, he noticed some darkness surging over from the depth of the woods.

When the darkness was hundreds of meters away from him, he realized it was a dark tide!

Shrieks and howls seemed to come from the billowing black waves of smoke. Some horrifying figures floating around in the dark smoke were faintly visible.

“What is that?” Su Ping was startled.

The next second, the tide swept across.

Su Ping felt chills all over his body and his life was being drained. Right after, he appeared in the dark revival space.

“Revival on the spot!”

Su Ping did not choose to revive at another random place because the dark smoke’s nature piqued his interest.

As soon as he was brought back to life, he saw the black smoke was still spreading. Before he could observe closely, he once again felt a chill creeping over and then found himself in the revival space a second time.

“Revive!”

Su Ping decided to stay on the spot. He refused to be misled by fallacies.

After more than a dozen revivals, when Su Ping could breathe again, he heard a gentle ‘gee’ sound coming from the dark smoke.

A moment later, the dark smoke suddenly dispersed. Su Ping saw a ghost-like figure flying over. The face belonged to a breathtaking beauty; she was completely flawless, the most beautiful girl that Su Ping had ever seen.

However, from her chest down, the girl’s body was made up of dried bones. Su Ping thought he could see the blood-red internal organs and dark smoke surges.

The girl in the dark smoke was pale and her delicate face was devoid of emotions. She sized Su Ping up and down. Her green eyes spoke of her interest and exotic charm.

Su Ping was fearless. After all, he would not die for real; there was nothing to fear.

He was also sizing her up and down in a brazen manner. He even wanted to squeeze her body to see if it was tangible after all.

“Cannot be identified?” Su Ping cast an identification spell but saw no information, which intrigued him even more. That was an advanced being.

At the same time, the girl in the dark mist suddenly said something in a strange language that was hard to understand; it sounded like the calling of the undead.

Su Ping could hardly take that information in. He was about to ask when the girl waved her hand and the black haze began to surge over.

Su Ping was in that revival space once again. He still had questions so he revived on the spot at once. He saw that girl again.

4The girl was taken aback to see him. That playful look in her eyes deepened. She floated over, stopping very close to Su Ping.

Su Ping blinked and all of a sudden, made a grabbing move toward her chest.

3It was soft as mist. To be exact, it was essentially made of mist.

“Gee...”

Just as he finished sighing, Su Ping saw that the girl began to frown. His body temperature dropped and he went back to the revival space.

Luckily, such death was not painful. Still, Su Ping chose to revive on the spot.

The girl was dumbstruck after seeing him appear out of nowhere once more. Slowly, she began to contemplate the situation...

“Do you have intelligence? Can you understand me?” Su Ping asked curiously.

It was rare for him to meet a being that resembled humans. Maybe he could learn something interesting from her.

The black haze girl slowly shifted her sight to him and something seemed to come to her mind. Her eyes glowed in green and she opened her mouth. All of a sudden, Su Ping felt that the heat and energy in his body were transformed into a form of golden energy that floated into her mouth.

Soon, Su Ping lost his life yet again.

Without hesitation, he revived on the spot.

This time, the girl didn't appear to be surprised. She opened her mouth and continued to suck away Su Ping's lifeforce.

1Revive! Revive! Revive!

Su Ping repeated the process several times but the girl in the dark haze never stopped and did not reply to his questioning, not even once.

Finally, Su Ping realized that this gal was treating him as an inexhaustible food source!

3In a fit of rage, Su Ping decided not to probe further. He chose to revive at a random spot.

Just as he came back to life, Su Ping realized that the view was different from before. He was inside a huge palace.

And yet, the magnificent palace seemed to have been built with massive bones.

1...

“Is this the residence of a higher intelligent life in the Realm of the Undead?”

Su Ping looked at the bone palace curiously. The owner must be out of the ordinary, being able to build a palace to dwell in. Besides, the massive bones that were used to build the palace were towering and grandiose. Su Ping found it hard to picture how horrifying those beings must have been when they were alive!

“Is that the gate...?”

Su Ping stepped forward.

He felt the air was more suffocating than outside and it was deadly still.

The air was thick with the smell of decay and a strange, fishy odor.

He walked only for a dozen meters when he lost his sight. He felt his body being torn apart from within by something out of the void and then he was reduced to nothing.

“Revive.”

His sight blacked out and was recovered. Su Ping looked around, searching for the thing that attacked him.

Bang!

His body burst open all of a sudden for yet another time.

1“Revive!”

Su Ping recovered as before.

Explode!

“Revive!”

“Damn it...”

Bang!

“Revive!”

This time, just as Su Ping was coming back to life, he saw the space in front of him begin to twist. A mass of dark energy emerged from the whirl, gradually taking the shape of a human being.

This was a tall woman with an insane body shape. The buxom lady was well-endowed, which gave her an enchanting appearance. There was a black charm on her forehead, with a symbol that resembled a fishhook. She was flapping the eight dull black wings that grew from her back, just like a fallen angel depicted in the myths.

3Su Ping threw an identification spell on her at once.

Just as he expected, no information came out.

“Eh?” The black-winged lady raised her pretty eyebrows. She looked Su Ping up and down and then, as if to seek confirmation, pointed her finger at him.

Bang!

Su Ping’s body exploded.

“Revive!”

The black-winged lady was stunned to see Su Ping recover. Then, she pointed her finger forward. This time, Su Ping was swallowed by a green mass of energy shaped like a skeleton.

Su Ping felt he was melting; he was dissolved until nothing was left.

4“Revive!”

Su Ping stood on the spot but his face was dark. That lady was treating him like a guinea pig and was exploring different ways to kill him.

“Hey, can’t we have a simple conversation?” Su Ping was furious.

1Bang!

He exploded again.

“Revive!”

Su Ping clenched his teeth in hatred. The game was on. That’s right. He was filled with wrath and was daring the lady to kill him!

2Bang, bang, bang!

After he exploded several times, he heard a surprised “oh” when he came back to life again.

This was a deep, nasal sound that was both light and at the same time, loud enough to echo in the entire palace, like a thunderbolt that could make the entire space tremble.

Su Ping suddenly felt the depths of his soul quiver. His hair was standing on end. This was freakishly terrifying.

His heart was pounding uncontrollably and his blood was surging as he was shivering.

He couldn't see anything but he was simply afraid; something was inducing his fear.

The black-winged angel that was still attempting varied ways to end him was startled by that questioning nasal sound. She turned around at once and bowed, dropping to her knees in the air toward the void in front of her—toward that gate built with white bones at the end of the void.

1Su Ping noticed that the black-winged angel was trembling, even her wings were shaking.

Whoosh!

Abruptly, his sight was blurred. Next, both him and the black-winged lady re-emerged in front of a throne made of bones, but their positions and relative location had not changed one bit. It was as if they had been teleported by some mighty force.

All he could see was a staircase made up of white bones pieced together. He found skulls of many different beings. There were horns on some of the skulls which had to be from demons.

Atop the stair was a throne of bones with the backrest made in the shape of a sharp sword. On both sides, the armrests were two enormous skulls encrusted along with some smaller ones.

Seated in the throne was a towering figure covered in the gloomy dark energy which flowed all around him, his elbows supported by the ghastly armrests. The skin on his bare wrists was pale. He tilted his head so he could look down upon those present.

He lifted his eyelids slightly, revealing his dark, unemotional eyes.

Su Ping looked up at him and into the cold eyes that seemed to be able to see through history. Instantly, he felt cold, fear, and the desire to kneel and worship this being.

However, he dismissed the idea just as it popped out.

Remembering that he could not be killed, Su Ping made up his mind and stood up straight. "Are you the man in charge here?"

The moment he opened his mouth, the kneeling and trembling black-winged lady waved her hands at once. A streak of dark energy sealed off Su Ping's mouth like a tape.

1She lowered her head at once and apologized to the king on the throne, but Su Ping did not understand one word.

Bang!

All of a sudden, without any warning, Su Ping exploded.

"??"

Su Ping was dumbstruck. Why was there never any sign before those beings took action?

He was furious and chose to revive on the spot at once.

4The king on the throne of bones squinted his eternally immutable and cold eyes.

Bang!

Su Ping exploded once more.

"Revive!"

Explode again!

"Revive one more time!"

"Are you kidding me? Can you let me finish..."

3Bang!

"Revive!"

This time, Su Ping did not die at once. Angrily, he climbed that stair of bones and dashed toward that being.

Nobody was born to be above others!

4Su Ping wanted to go there and punch that guy, even though he was aware that he was as vulnerable as a puny insect; he was completely unable to harm that king. But he would have died for nothing if he didn't fight back!

1The black-winged lady freaked out, seeing Su Ping trying to approach the "king." Her expressions were twisted in wrath. Dark energy surged around her. This time, with this blow, she used her strongest strike.

4Since she was exerting her full strength, Su Ping would die ten thousand times over, even if he were a hundred times stronger!

However, before her strike was released, she began to bend over as if something were squeezing her. There were sounds of her bones being fractured. Then, she was swung to the side, smashing into the bone columns like a bird with broken wings.

While still in rage, Su Ping did not notice what happened to her. He dashed up the stairs and stood in front of the throne.

The process was strangely smooth. Nothing hindered him.

"F*ck you..." Su Ping raised his hand and punched.

But his fist stopped midway and his body became so still that he could not move at all.

"Traveling back in time and space?" All of a sudden, Su Ping heard a frigid voice in his mind. It had to be from the being on the throne.

But Su Ping never saw his lips move.

"What?" Su Ping had never heard about the term but he guessed it had something to do with his revival.

"Who are you that can reverse space and time in the Realm of the Undead? Or, should I say, who is the person behind this?" That cold voice went on slowly, carrying an overwhelming sense that could not be doubted.

1"None of your f*cking business!"

1Su Ping couldn't move his lips but he voiced the curse in his mind.

Bang!

He exploded.

"Revive!"

Just as Su Ping came back to life, he realized that his body could move about again. He was hopping mad. It was true that the being in front of him was horrifying, but being killed repeatedly had consumed him with wrath.

6At the same time, all of a sudden, he saw a blood-red bead the size of a baby's hand next to the throne. The bead appeared to be precious.

"It must be worthwhile, even if this is just some average gem." Without hesitation, Su Ping bent over.

Bang!

He exploded yet again.

"Revive!"

After he was brought back to life, he was still bent over, just the way he was before he died. Su Ping moved down a bit more.

Bang!

Revive!

This time, he lowered his body a bit more.

By the fifth revival, Su Ping was very close to the blood-red bead. In his consciousness, he shouted, "I will tell you!"

He didn't explode.

His hand grabbed the blood-red bead.

"Got it!"

The bead vanished. It was transferred to the storage space.

"What?"

That being had seen through Su Ping's intent but did not know that there were storage treasures in him. The moment this being saw Su Ping, he already had a complete understanding of his puny existence. Nothing could escape from his eyes.

"I will tell you to go to hell!" Su Ping obtained the bead. Overjoyed, Su Ping hurled out curses without hesitation.

