

Baby alliance: helping daddy get a rich mommy chapter 541

Selena felt that Pierre was overreacting, but his concerns were valid. She had done some research on the Oberlin Family. They were aristocrats who were well-respected by the community, but that was only a facade. In reality, they were a cold-blooded and self-centric bunch.

Joaquin could not come up with an answer to his father's questions. He had gone over a couple of Pierre's concerns before taking action, but he was bolstered by his confidence, thinking that it was not a big problem and that he would never be caught. However, if one of Pierre's concerns had happened, things would have ended badly for the three children.

"Both of you should go to sleep right now! And you!" Pierre pointed at Joaquin. "Stand in the corridor and reflect on your actions!"

Juniper was still sobbing, as this was the first time she had seen Pierre blowing up. She knew that they made a grave mistake. Jameson obediently took her hand and led her upstairs to their bedroom. As for Joaquin, he went out to the corridor alone and stood facing the door like a lonely warrior.

Selena and Pierre went up to their room as well. Once they were in the room, Pierre immediately went to grab the first-aid kit before she could say anything to him. "How's your ankle?"

Her ankles were still aching and hurting, and she spent a long time standing at Jane's birthday party, so he was concerned about her. When he took off her shoes, he found that her ankles were swollen again. He had no choice but to apply the medical ointment to her ankles and massaged them.

"Don't you think you were too fierce just now?" she cautiously asked him. Even she was scared by his face just now, not to mention the children.

"Was I?" He turned around and looked at her, to which she nodded rigidly. "That means I did it right!" He still felt angry at the children, and his expression scared her a little.

"You scared the kids."

"If I don't, they wouldn't know their place!" While replying, he started massaging her ankle.

"But you were too strict just now. They are still young. You should have lectured them and left them alone once they learned their mistakes. After today, they will learn to tell us when they run into trouble. There's no need to yell at them with mean words. I also think that you are especially strict with Jojo. Just now, you made it sound like he was a good-for-nothing. You are going to hurt his self-confidence that way."

He scoffed at her softness. "You don't understand your son at all! He will never lack self-confidence. In fact, he is overconfident, thinking that he is talented, knows everything, and could stand up to the adults. He went so far as to crush Lake Corporation overnight! These things happened because he was too confident in himself!"

"What did you say?" She thought she had misheard him.

Did Jojo crush the Lake Corporation? Does that mean Jojo was the mastermind behind the leak of Lake Corporation's internal information?

"Don't you know about it? It was your beloved son who hacked into Lake Corporation's system, causing them to go bankrupt!"

She stared at him with a wild look. "I thought you did that."

He quickly shut up because he realized that he should not have told her that. I should have let her think I was the mastermind behind the bankruptcy!

Indeed, he intended to crush Lake Corporation, and he believed he did not have to make any move, for the way the Lake Family ran their business would one day lead them to bankruptcy. To his shock, the Lake Corporation announced bankruptcy out of the blue. At first, he thought that this was the doing of his love rival, so he investigated the bankruptcy, only to find out about Joaquin's involvement.