

BABY MAFIA 1172

Chapter 1172: "The Guild Founder Statue"

Unlike the beast tamer that could tame beasts for others or even let others rent their beasts, the monster tamer was categorized as a full battle-type ability user.

It was hard for them to earn money despite having a high status thanks to their unique strength.

Since that's the case, instead of making the tamer guild even more jealous of their Irregular Tamer Guild...

It's better to make friends with them. Of course, that could only happen after she beat them at the joint tournament.

Ainsley did get the news of the joint tournament and planned to avenge all the injustice she suffered all this time in this tournament.

After that, whether these guilds wanted to cooperate with her or not depended on them.

Anyway, she already intended to give them an olive branch to cooperate, and if they refused, that's their loss.

As for the Merchant Guild...maybe she could make them be more friendly and kind to Jake and his company in this country.

Ainsley wasn't a particularly vengeful person, and after beating so many geniuses, she felt that she could forgive them.

Of course, the last blow should be at the joint tournament. Let them see the power of the Irregular Tamer. Hmp!

Ainsley explained all her plans to Aaron and then left the implementation to the young man.

[You can gather all the guild members here and check whether they have an affinity with spirits.]

Ainsley generously took out the spirits who followed her out of the cave to check everyone's potential to be a spirit tamer.

After issuing the plan to Aaron, Ainsley also called Nalisha and explained her plan to this guild leader.

"Nalisha, you can ask the shamans in our country to cooperate to check the members' affinity with spirits."

"After everything is ready, we can open a new department in the guild. I think we should also separate the monster and the beast department."

Before this, Ainsley didn't really divide the guild members into various departments and only divided them into branches.

But now that they had grown bigger, they needed relevant departments so that each guild could maximize their potential.

"If they have more than potential, they can join more than one department."

Ainsley planned to add this information to the guild member's identification card and their account information on the app.

"Well, just take your time and implement the plan bit by bit."

Ainsley the last email explaining the detailed plan to Nalisha before cutting off the call.

After everything was ready, the baby finally slept peacefully and when she woke up, she had already changed back to her human form.

It was already dinner time when she woke up and Elliana immediately invited the baby to eat with other guild members at the guild cafeteria.

"Boss, do you want to eat at the cafeteria or eat in the room?"

Elliana's speech became smoother than before and she could speak a lot of words in one breath.

Ainsley smiled with eyes full of satisfaction as she jumped out of her bed.

"Let's go down and eat with others. This will help to bring our relationship closer."

Which guild could see their guild founder eating with them at the cafeteria?

Ainsley did maintain a sense of distance from the members so that they would respect her, but she would occasionally go to eat at the cafeteria.

This made the guild members like to stay at the guild building. Either to train, accept missions, eat, or do any other relaxing activity.

Some guild members even showed off their guild and opened a live broadcast to let others see how good their Irregular Tamer Guild is.

One of these bloggers was a young girl who had just joined the Gasha Irregular Tamer Guild a few weeks ago, right after the misunderstanding was solved.

She was a highly talented member who immediately entered the elite team and went to do high-risk plus intense training.

The girl had just returned from her training, and to relax her mind, she opened a live broadcast as usual.

After all, she was the only daughter of a rich and influential family. Her hobby on weekdays was surfing the internet, and that's how she became a blogger.

This time, the girl offered a guild tour from the first floor to the top floor.

The girl first started from the guild's entrance, showing off the entire guild building that glowed beautifully when the sun went down.

The crystal winged-shaped building immediately garnered a lot of praise from the live broadcast audiences.

[Ah, ah, no wonder the winged guild wanted this building so much until they challenged the little boss.]

[This guild is indeed more in line with the winged guild but it's also good for the Irregular Tamer.]

Aside from the wing-shaped building, the building itself has a lot of taming elements and symbols.

When they first entered the building, they would see a large guild symbol above their head and a huge silver statue of the guild found on the right side.

This statue was right in the lobby gate, as if to welcome them to visit the guild.

The statue was built to be big but it was quite short because the person who became the model of the statue was just a four-year-old child.

The child was seen riding a huge wolf-cat beast with two cats of different color on her left and right shoulder.

Then, there was a semi-transparent long-haired spirit on her right side, looking heroic and valiant.

The child was raising her hand, and there was a pink misty smoke coming from her palm.

It was the image of Ainsley with her short purple bob-cut hair apparently taming something using her charm.