

BABY MAFIA 891

Chapter 891: "Gaining Overseas Connection"

If these foreign members didn't come by plane and used flying carriages like Ainsley, they might have wasted several days just to go to Godlif country.

Well, Ainsley didn't use planes before because there's no flight going to Pandora Island and the Port Island didn't provide airports.

They provided portals instead.

Unfortunately, as long as a country was still in the same human continent which took up almost 1/4 of the whole world's area...

It wasn't considered 'far away' by the people from this world.

Well, in fact...it was really far, okay? After all, this world was several times bigger than the Earth that Ainsley knew!

For a moment, Ainsley still couldn't adapt to the sense of distance between countries.

In this world, the humans called a place 'far away' if it wasn't on the same continent, such as other non-human races' continents.

Of course, scattered islands such as Pandora Island and the others were also quite far from the human continent itself.

Because it was one whole huge continent, the human countries weren't separated by the sea.

Some small countries sandwiched in the middle didn't even have any sea territory.

Fortunately, the Godlif country had their own sea territory despite not being counted as a huge country.

After all, the Godlif Country wasn't in the middle of the human continent but was at the edges.

That day, Ainsley welcomed the foreign members.

She started to speak using the international human language created to unify all human beings in the human continent.

"Welcome to my guild. For now, we only focus on spreading the guild in the Godlif country."

Ainsley first expressed her sympathy for the foreign members who had to go all the way to the Godlif Country's Roane Region.

Then, she started to 'coax' the foreign members by giving them the good news.

"But shortly, maybe a year or two, we will visit your countries and build the guild headquarters and branches there."

So, don't worry, peeps!

"If you work hard, as one of the first members in your country, you might become your country's guild leader in the future!"

Ainsley did need foreign members to become guild leaders in their own countries and these people were all good candidates.

Hearing this, the 100-ish foreign members in the 'small' meeting room upstairs immediately expressed their excitement.

"Good, good! Thank you, guild founder. We will work hard!"

These members came from five different countries, and three of them were big countries, bigger than the Godlif country.

Of course, there were almost no mafia families in these countries but they didn't look down on Ainsley or disdain her just because she's a mafia boss.

A mafia was something illegal in their country, but this is Godlif, not their country.

Here, the mafia was a strong powerhouse, and the guild founder in front of them was one of the strongest mafia bosses!

That's enough to amaze these foreign members.

Although all of them doubted the baby's identity when they first met her...

But after they received the new charm skill, all of the foreign members believed in Ainsley.

So it's true that there's such a magical baby in this world!

In the end, these people who could come all the way to the Godlif country just to join the guild couldn't be your ordinary ability users.

All of them were either rich or had a good family background in their countries.

A small part of them were even children of highly influential people in their countries or were simply the influential people themselves.

Although they were charm ability users, they had more than one ability.

That's how they could be influential people or the proud children of influential people.

Still, when they could make use of their 'shameful' charm ability, how could they not be excited? All of them were so happy that they wanted to brag about it!

After these people joined the guild, they immediately promoted the guild's existence in their countries, hoping that Ainsley could appoint them as their country's Irregular Tamer guild leader this way.

Thus, Ainsley's name and the irregular tamer guild name quietly spread among the upper society in a few big countries.

Not many people abroad knew about Ainsley, even when the internet was flourishing.

After all, not a lot of people would believe that such a young toddler could be so amazing.

But after these foreign members went back to their countries and told their families, more influential people started to notice Ainsley.

Her guild was really unique, and no one could rob her of such a unique advantage.

Well, no one would think maliciously about her guild and rob her or anything.

For these big shots, they couldn't be more grateful that Ainsley gave hope to their children who had charm ability.

At the end of the day, people's impression of charm ability users were still 'negative' and even vulgar.

So, when the rich kids could use their charm ability to tame monsters or beasts to help their parents, the parents were all touched.

Many of them quietly contacted Ainsley and gave a bunch of support so that the guild could grow faster and finally set up a headquarter in their country.

With the big bosses' help, Ainsley could finish building the other guild branch and the headquarters at Pandora Island in just a month.

Thanks, rich daddies and mommies!

The sixth and seventh day of the inheritance ceremony week became the gathering of various foreign members.

To better assimilate with the local members, Ainsley always held up a party for the local members who registered on the same day as the foreign members.

She also encouraged the members from the other day's batches to communicate with each other using the guild forum or the guild group chat!

Chapter 892: "New Heaven, New Status"

The forum and the group channels were actually more popular than the guild's group chat.

After all, the group chat only allowed members from the same branch guild to communicate, but they didn't let other members socialize.

On the other hand, the guild channels that mimicked Discord channels could accommodate various members from various guild branches.

Of course, it depended on whether the members could join the channels built by the active members.

As for the forum...it became a place to ask questions, post information, and so on.

It was like a popular thread....Quora or Reddit, maybe?

Anyway, Ainsley asked the members to use the international human language when they speak on the guild app's group chats, forums or channels.

After all, the number of foreign members continued to rise to 1000 members in just three days!

Even if it was not much compared to the rest of the guild members, Ainsley still wanted to promote equality.

Of course, she didn't forget to add a virtual nationality badge to be used on the guild app.

In this way, when there were more foreign people in the future, they could easily distinguish each other.

Well in the future, there would be more guilds built in various countries, and all of them would be irregular tamer guilds.

This kind of nationality flag badge was really important.

Rather than designing a new logo for the overseas guilds, it was easier to put the national flag above the logo or something.

In just a week, Ainsley fixed a lot of things related to her irregular tamer guild.

During the 7 days registration, she also picked people to join the elite team.

So far, Ainsley had recruited twenty people to enter the guild's elite team, and five of them were foreign members.

The overall age of the elite team members were twenty to twenty-five years old, and 90% of them were women.

Ainsley could imagine that the Godlif country's irregular tamer guild leader would be a woman too.

This is quite unique.

A guild full of beautiful women and men...

Other guild members and ability users might want to get close to these unique tamers just to have a boyfriend or a girlfriend.

In fact, in just this one week, there had been rumors on the internet about the Irregular Tamer Guild.

It was a heaven for people who liked beautiful men and women.

The whole guild was full of various beauties of all genders.

But they didn't become prostitutes or were seen as cheap people just because of their good appearances.

On the other hand, because they were also an irregular tamer, their value and image in other ability users' eyes became tall and mighty.

The Irregular tamer guild members became everyone's idols, the men and women's ideal lovers and so on.

Unfortunately, because the guild was also a prestigious guild that could rival the other two huge tamer guilds, none of the ability users dared to harass the Irregular Tamer guild members.

Although they knew that the whole guild was full of beautiful men and women, they still knew to respect the strong.

The guild members slowly realized one more benefit of joining the guild...and that was to get rid of their negative image just because they were charm ability users.

If before, when others knew that they're charm ability users, the other ability users would treat them as if they're prostitutes or sluts.

It didn't matter even if they were men or women, looking tough or soft, others would always look down on charm ability users.

Most of charm ability users also ended up selling their bodies as prostitutes or became honey traps.

It was really humiliating.

Yet now, ever since the irregular tamer guild was built, their status and prestiges instantly soared.

In addition to being handsome or beautiful, they could also tame monsters and beasts.

This is simply a higher level tamer compared to the usual monster and beast tamers, all because of the appearance bonus!

Good-looking people did have their own privilege as long as they were strong.

After all, this world respected the strong rather than good-looking people with no strength.

This group of good-looking people also gained strength enough to make others kneel and beg for their taming service.

The guild members instantly became extremely popular.

The ability users even wished that they could be a charm ability user because they would be prettier or more handsome...

And still could be strong.

Some influential families even disdained not having a charm ability user among their children.

Those who used to be looked down upon just because they're charm ability users instantly changed their positions in the family.

Now, they have become everyone's center of attention.

The irregular tamer guild itself became a place just like the Elton Academy to the other ability users.

For these charm ability users, joining the guild became more important than entering the Elton Academy!

Ainsley didn't know that her guild that was only a week, still so young, had actually become comparable to the prestigious Elton Academy.

Right now, since the 7-days registration and inheritance ceremonies have ended, she's preparing for the talk show the day after tomorrow.

The guild had closed this year's members' application and would open another recruitment in 6 months or maybe next year.

Those who didn't manage to enter the guild this year got disappointed, but all of them believed that they could enter next year.

Fighting!

Back to Ainsley. The baby was currently listening to her people's report about Leroy's case back then.

After listening for half an hour, Ainsley massaged her temple and frowned.

"So...will we win this case? I don't want Leroy to catch us off guard and accuse our Sloan Family in front of the whole nation."

Chapter 893: "Little Mafia Boss Vs Most Popular Internet Celebrity"

The talk show was super important for Ainsley.

She could k.o Leroy in this talk show, but she might also let Leroy have his way with the family.

That's why Ainsley cared a lot about the talk show progress and the evidence they had gathered so far.

The person in charge of the case immediately stepped up and nodded solemnly.

"I guarantee that we are ready to fight Leroy at the talk show, boss. We have gathered all evidence needed to refute all of Leroy's upcoming statements."

No matter what he said, the Sloan Family was ready to refute him to death using the evidence they gathered.

They even got another piece of evidence to ensure that the pile of evidence they got before wasn't forged or faked at all!

If Leroy said that they faked the proof, they could take out the evidence proving that the previous data wasn't faked at all.

Ainsley was amazed at her people's efficiency in handling this case.

Maybe everyone just hated Leroy to death or something until they were so eager to prove him wrong.

"Okay, that's good. Let's organize the evidence and send it to my email. I'll read the evidence and prepare for the upcoming talk show."

After all, Ainsley could only bring Jevon and Elliana as her assistants to the talk show.

She wasn't allowed to bring anyone else with the excuse of protecting the guests' safety.

After all, the talk show crew members weren't ability users and even if they were, they weren't combat ability users, unlike Elliana and Jevon.

That's why Ainsley could only bring the two of them for her own safety and couldn't bring more people, afraid that she would harm the innocent.

Well, the talk show crew members knew that Ainsley wasn't that malicious, but she was still a ruthless mafia boss.

Who knows if something triggered her in the recording studio and she attacked others in the studio?

Because of this, Ainsley had to understand all the evidence needed to refute Leroy's statements, and she also had to be able to master it well.

In the end, Ainsley spent the last two days before the talk show started to study the pile of evidence!

At the same time, Leroy negotiated and signed a contract with the chosen Talk Show.

It was a popular talk show with the highest rating on TV and the Internet.

The reputation was also good, and the talk show itself focused on inviting guests with personal disputes and acted as a local court for personal disputes.

Because the personal disputes usually didn't involve the country's law, the guests could only solve the issue at this talk show.

The guests invited were not celebrities, and they could be anyone, as long as their problem was interesting.

Usually, only the talk show hosts were popular celebrities invited as temporary hosts.

The talk show itself also had a permanent host and the host already became one of the most popular celebrities in Godlif Country.

The show was called 'Let's Bring This To The Court', and the fans gave it the nickname 'the Court Talk Show'.

The Court talk show was popular among non-ability users and even ability users.

After all, even people with special abilities also liked to watch other people's 'melons'.

If the 'melon' a.k.a the gossip or the drama was satisfying, the ability users could relieve their stress altogether by watching gossip and drama.

That's why this talk show was considered as a national talk show, and 90% of the Godlif country's citizens have watched at least one episode of the show.

The show was broadcasted on TV and various official platforms on the internet.

That's why the guests who came to the show were all prepared to be 'scolded to death' by the entire nation if they lost the case.

The guests who came to the show were all armed to the teeth, bringing various legal evidence to prove them right.

They would also bring one lawyer with them to help them debate with the opposite party because if they're not eloquent enough, they might lose.

Winning or losing didn't depend on the talk show's hosts but depended on the on-site audiences and the audiences behind the TV or the netizens.

That's why the guests needed to simplify their evidence to persuade the audiences to side with them.

Not all guests could be eloquent and good at talking, so they brought lawyers with them.

But Ainsley herself didn't need any lawyer and such.

As a mafia boss, if she's not good with her words or witty, how could she win negotiations on a daily basis?

Leroy himself was also an internet celebrity and influencer.

If he's not good with his words, even if his charm were unique and strong, he wouldn't be able to fool everyone for so long.

Well, the battle between the two naturally became a hot topic among the netizens, especially the talk show's loyal audiences.

The guests so far were usually ordinary people and not celebrities.

They only had interesting cases, and that's why they could go to the show to earn money while solving their dispute.

However, both Ainsley and Leroy were ability users.

One of them was a well-known little mafia boss and was very popular in the mafia and ability users society.

The other one was a famous internet celebrity among the ordinary people.

He's also famous among a small part of the ability users society— mainly the idle ability users, which were usually elite youngsters.

Such identities would naturally attract the audiences even when they didn't know the crux of the dispute the two people had.

The headline 'Little Mafia Boss vs Most Popular Internet Celebrity' was enough to attract all sorts of audience!

Chapter 894-895: "Online Debates Between Two Camps"

Not to mention that the talk show's director and producer attracted more audiences by adding some more 'melons' to enjoy—

The two guests were actually father and daughter!

A dispute between family members wasn't common in this show, but Ainsley and Leroy's identity was really unique.

One was a young father with two children and a husband.

The other one was the 'leftover' daughter who miraculously became a famous and competent mafia boss.

The drama between the two of them would be exciting, okay??

The audiences started to know about the case between the two of them only a day before the talk show started to be broadcasted live on various broadcasting platforms.

[So, the father wants to be the daughter's official guardian, but because he already left the mafia family, he can't?]

[Yeah. He's seen as a traitor because he was their mafia boss but left the family to start a new family.]

[The daughter is the current mafia boss and she disagrees with her father's request to re-join the family as her guardian.]

[Leroy didn't say that he wants to join, right? The Court Talk Show's official info didn't say that...]

[Well, who knows? I heard that this man barged into his daughter's birthday party, even bringing his other two children to make a fuss.]

[Damn. If that info is true, this man is really nasty, right? I don't care if he's a big star or something. He's only handsome and has a charm ability!]

[Hey! Don't insult our Deestar brother! He's also innocent, okay? The Sloan Family plays a trick on him to kick him out!]

[Yeah, yeah. He also doesn't want to leave his daughter and can only come back after a few months of separation.]

[Run run. The starfield is here. These brainless fans are really annoying, lmao.]

[Passerby here. I think both sides are suspicious...]

[Hey. Can you even suspect a four-year-old toddler? Isn't she the most prominent victim here?]

[Agree. If she doesn't even accept her biological father, it means that there's something wrong with the father!]

[Oh, geez. That toddler isn't your ordinary toddler, okay?]

[Yes, yes. Look at her official biography. To be such a competent mafia boss when she's so young...she isn't simple!]

[She must be a scheming kid. Rotten and poisonous. She's a mafia boss, after all. She must have a black heart!]

[So what?! Are you jealous of our little loli boss? All hail loli supremacy!]

[Oh fck, the otakus are at it again. Run!]

[Let's all calm down and wait for the live broadcast, how is it? We shouldn't bully a kid, and we also shouldn't speculate against Deestar.]

The rational netizens tried to fuel the fire between the two guests' camps, but it almost had no effect.

Ainsley might only be famous among the ability users and the mafia, but it didn't mean the ordinary people didn't know her at all.

They have heard of her achievements but so far, most of them didn't believe such nonsense.

They all thought that the mafia was trying to show off and made trouble.

But after the Court Talk Show announced their latest episode's two guests, the ordinary people also actively tried to know more about Ainsley.

These online detectives dug out Ainsley's long history from the moment she was born, and in no time, the ordinary people were all amazed.

They watched Ainsley's battle videos, how she defended her family, which was in danger at that time...

Various news and videos or pictures were spread around many people.

One by one, they started to sympathize with this mafia boss who was even younger than their children.

[I think Leroy is really an irresponsible father.]

[Agree. When his family was in danger, he didn't appear to save them at all. It was his daughter who risked her life to save her family!]

[What kind of father is he? After Ainsley recuperated for a long time, there's no news about this man visiting her to show his concern.]

[He visited the family only when they became a high-ranking family. I smell a boot-licker! A leech!]

[No wonder the daughter doesn't want this man to be her official guardian.]

[A guardian can influence the child's decisions at all times, and he might destroy the Sloan Family!]

[If I am Ainsley, I also won't recognise that man as my father. Scum!]

[I read and watched all news related to Ainsley Sloan, and she doesn't seem to be a black-hearted mafia boss.]

[Yes. Yes. The people living in her territory were all thriving.]

[Look. She even saved children from slavery and freed the prostitutes and other slaves!]

[Her business is also decent despite breaking the law. She doesn't sell human organs, become a loan shark and such.]

[Yeah, yeah. It's only because the country doesn't allow her to sell potions and other items that she has to break the law.]

[Peh. The government just wants to monopolize the market of these rare items.]

[And look, if you see the rating on the Sloan Family's potion auction website, it's all good ratings!]

[Didn't she just build an Irregular Tamer guild recently?]

[Yes, yes!]

[Listen. She actually can become the sole unique tamer in this country...]

[But she chooses to share her skill and make a guild to accommodate more charm ability users.]

[Oh wow. That's really a noble thing to do. She directly elevates the status of the charm ability users.]

[I'm an ordinary person, but I also know the status of charm ability users in the ability user society.]

[Ainsley gives a lot of people a chance to have a better life and status...she also doesn't mistreat ordinary people like us...]

[The mafia members under her ruling are also satisfied with her rules.]

In conclusion, Ainsley is better than Deestar!

Chapter 896: "Public Opinion"

[The Sloan Family under Ainsley's government also cares about the members' families, even when they're ordinary people.]

A few more netizens spoke up for Ainsley and some clever ones questioned Leroy's fans.

[Ain is so wonderful. I just don't understand why some people here cursed such a lovely baby. Are they blind?]

[No. They must have been charmed by Deestar. He's also a charm ability user, right? Maybe he has charmed us without us knowing!]

But Leroy's fans also didn't stay silent and immediately attacked those who sided with Ainsley.

[Bullsh*t. Ainsley is also a charm ability user and she seems to be stronger than Leroy. Can't she also charm all of you to side with her??]

What Leroy's fans said was logical and had some truth in it.

The ordinary people didn't know that there were many types of charm abilities, and they assumed that all charm abilities could charm them.

It didn't matter if the person could transmit their charm across the internet or needed to be face-to-face with the target.

The ordinary people only thought that all charm ability users could charm people without others knowing.

Ainsley's fans and those who sided with Ainsley were silent for a moment before a famous ability user blogger spoke up.

[Here to educate the ordinary people. PS: I'm not looking down on you guys. You have to know that there are many types of charm abilities.]

[From Ain's battle video and other evidence I have collected, it's clear that Ain's type of charm is a baby charm.]

[That charm is also the type that can't be transmitted through the internet.]

[Even if she might be able to do it if she discovered more skills...for now, she can't do that.]

[On the other hand, Deestar a.k.a Leroy has always been known as a useless ability user. Why is that?]

[Even if he's only a charm ability user, he should be able to charm some enemies and benefit the Sloan Family instead.]

But he didn't. No. He couldn't.

[It's because Leroy's charm type is actually an internet-based charm.]

[His charm is suppressed to the minimum when he's in real life, but on the internet, he's the God.]

The blogger was famous for being a free-spirited dual ability user who didn't join any powerhouses and didn't become a mercenary either.

He relies on live broadcasting his battle with other ability users or his adventure videos to earn money and fame.

In the world of ability users, he's also somewhat famous because of his eccentric personality.

The ordinary people also knew this celebrity and understood that he never looked down on ordinary people like them.

When the blogger sent out such a long explanation to enlighten them, Leroy's fans, the Starfield, suddenly felt uncomfortable.

[I don't think this blogger is lying. If he's not lying, then...]

[Then, all this time, we have been under Leroy's charm.]

[Yes, yes! I was just about to ask how Leroy could become popular when he had no talent at all aside from his face...]

[It turns out to be his charm ability! I never thought that his charm could be transmitted through the internet.]

[Yeah. I thought that the charm was only effective when people met face-to-face.]

Obviously the ordinary people's understanding of charm ability users remained at the general stereotypes.

Actually, there were many amazing charm ability users that had different charm types and discovered many unique skills too.

For example, Ainsley could control someone from far away by planting a 'charm seed' inside the person's mind.

That's a skill she discovered after upgrading her charm ability through potions.

Other ability users could also discover such a skill if they're enlightened.

Unfortunately, so far, the charm ability users' mindset themselves remained at the stereotypes too.

A charm ability was actually a type of brainwashing ability, and it could be used for a lot of things, not only to seduce people.

Ainsley wasn't from this world, and her understanding of a charm ability came from countless anime and manga she had watched and read before.

Thus, she wasn't limited by this world's stereotypes and could get many skills.

?

Actually, if she weren't open-minded, even with the help of the potion, she wouldn't be able to get those unique skills.

She would only discover common skills that other charm ability users have discovered so far.

The charm ability users themselves had never thought that they could charm monsters and beasts to make a contract with them as a non-tamer, right?

They didn't even know they could kill people with a strong charm ability.

Other ability users were also bound with a certain stereotype related to their ability type, but they weren't as restricted as the charm ability user.

After all, the stigma of charm ability users was a lot worse than other ability users.

It wasn't strange that ordinary people misunderstood the charm ability users when the ability users themselves also looked down on their abilities.

After knowing that Leroy might have charmed them through the internet, a lot of people started to doubt their love for Leroy.

[Do I really idolize him because of his talent and good look, or is it because of his charm?]

[Maybe all of them...after all, he can charm so many fans in just a few months. He's really a vital ability user.]

[If he joins the Irregular Tamer Guild, he might be one of the key members right away.]

[Alas...not only did he offend the Sloan Family, but he also hurt the little baby's feelings.]

[Yes, yes. She's the guild founder...so she certainly won't let Leroy join her guild.]

The ordinary people could relate to Ainsley.

They finally understood why Ainsley was so against Leroy even when he's her own father.

Chapter 897: "Ain's Backers"

If they were Ainsley, they would also reject Leroy and keep him away from the guild they built on their own.

Why should they let a traitor enter their guild?

Not to mention this person didn't seem to love them and only favored other children.

More and more people turned their backs on Leroy while the blogger who previously revealed some secrets stopped chatting on the internet.

He quietly closed the forum and went to inform someone else.

[Boss, I've done what you asked me to do. Please pay the remaining money.]

Zenan: [Good job. Here's the money.]

Yes. The blogger was actually paid by someone to reveal Leroy's secret...and that someone turned out to be Zenan.

Not only Zenan. The other children also quietly hired people behind their parents and flamed the internet to side with Ainsley.

The children created a new group chat without Ainsley and named it 'Ain Backers'.

[Zenan: I've done my job. What about you guys?]

[Caca: Same here. I spread information about Leroy and made it a trending topic in the forum.]

[Azkar: I paid a lot of keyboard warriors to scold that scum dad.]

[Larsen: I coax my parents to boycott Leroy and cut off all endorsements related to him.]

After all, Larsen's family was a shaman family, and they did have a lot of business in the ordinary people's society.

Things such as incense, fortune-telling papers, and so on were popular among ordinary people, and the Larsen Family produced one of the best-selling brands.

Once they boycotted Leroy, one could see how Leroy strives in the entertainment industry.

[Arlin: I also asked my parents to boycott Leroy. I think one of my parents' friends is the owner of Leroy's entertainment company....]

Oh, now we can see what will happen to Leroy after he attends the talk show.

Even if he won the case, the company that signed him as an internet celebrity would try their best to hinder the young man.

They would also do their best to press Leroy to the ground!

[Arlin: Hmph. Hmph. I saw that scum dad at Ain's birthday party and was so shocked. How could he be so shameless?!]

[Azkar: Right! Did you see how hurt Ainsley was? Her own father was such scum, and he ruined her birthday party.]

[Larsen: Ain looked as if she's about to cry.]

The children knew Ainsley as someone strong, cute, witty, and wise. They never thought that the girl would be so hurt by her own dad and would cry because of him.

She didn't even cry when she got hurt at war or when her life was in danger.

But she almost shed tears because of Leroy.

Well, the children's filter for Ainsley was already beyond saving. If Ainsley knew what they were talking about, she would be dumbfounded.

When did she cry because of that scum dad?! She was itching to kill him, ok?!

Under the joint effort of the five children, Leroy's name became even worse than before and the majority also felt that he's a scum.

Leroy's agent panicked and immediately contacted Leroy.

"Did you see what happened on the Internet? Your name is already smeared to the ground!"

They have been waiting to clear Leroy's name after he attended the talk show but who would have known that the netizens couldn't wait to scold people?

"I know." Leroy gritted his teeth as he read the forums and other platforms talking about how bad he was.

"I'm sure that someone played a trick behind the scenes and guided the fans to go against me. Have you investigated this?"

The agent was really professional and had seen many things in the entertainment industry.

How could he didn't know that Leroy was being targeted?

"I have investigated these unknown people but I found that they're from the ability user society. You know it's hard to investigate the ability users..."

The agent wasn't an ability user, and it would be hard to investigate the ability users because they had the special hackers and special IT teams.

These special people could defeat ordinary hackers and IT teams as easily as turning their palm.

This is why there was such a huge rift between ordinary people and ability users. It had always been that way.

There was this invisible wall between ordinary people and ability users.

Even if the ability users' families might be ordinary people, but once they turned into ability users, there would be a gap.

It wasn't only because the ability users were arrogant but also because the ordinary people feared the ability users and admired them.

The majority of people in this world were ordinary people, but those at the top were always ability users.

In all sorts of fields, ordinary people never became the best.

The agent was an ordinary person. He didn't dare to investigate further after knowing that the ability users were involved in this.

"Leroy, you offended one of the most brilliant ability users in the ability user society."

The agent paused before sighing helplessly.

"I'm not surprised that a lot of people who want to curry favor with your daughter will help her to suppress you."

The agent also informed Leroy about the various resources blocked by the higher-ups, about how his endorsement contracts were gone...

And a lot more.

Leroy was dizzy as he listened to his agent. He never thought Ainsley would be so amazing to have so many ability users protecting her.

When he left her, she was still the innocent and dumb three-year-old toddler.

But maybe because he pushed her to hell, the baby's personality changed 180°, awakening her buried potential.

Bit by bit, the baby lost her innocence toward the world and became a true-blue mafia boss, even better than him!

Chapter 898: "The Wall Between Ordinary People & Ability Users"

Leroy knew that there were a lot of geniuses in this world, but he never imagined that the daughter he abandoned would be one of them.

Did he regret abandoning Ainsley? Maybe he did. But if he didn't leave her, would she awaken her potential and become like now?

Maybe not.

So Leroy didn't know if he should be glad that he abandoned Ainsley or should he regret his decision.

Who wouldn't want their children to be excellent?

Leroy was also a father. He also wanted to be proud of his children, but Ainsley was never in his eyes before.

Ironically, she's younger than her siblings, but she was better than them in all aspects.

One could imagine how much she suffered to be like who she is now.

Leroy was silent as he listened to the agent blabbering things.

He knew that his career would be gone soon, but it didn't stop him from wanting to go to the talk show.

"What do you think I should do then? Can we win the talk show? If not, can we minimize the damage?"

At Leroy's words, the agent went silent before whispering in a weak voice.

"We should strive to gain people's sympathy. Keep playing victim even if your secret is revealed or that you're at fault."

How could the agent not know the truth?

Leroy didn't tell him anything but the agent wasn't dumb. He could see that Leroy was really the one at fault!

"Okay. I'll try to act as pitiful as possible. I also want to win Ain's sympathy this way. If she can forgive me..."

Leroy paused before telling his agent the plan that he had in mind.

"I want to join the Irregular Tamer Guild and quit becoming a celebrity."

Leroy bit his lips, looking slightly haggard as he told another piece of fact.

"You also know that I can't return to this industry after the incident..."

It's impossible to return after he was suppressed like this and lost so many fans.

"I know. I don't mind it. You have been a good celebrity under my care...so it is okay even if you want to quit."

The agent indulged Leroy solely because Leroy was also an ability user.

If he could join the guild, the agent would have a connection with the ability user society.

Which ordinary people didn't want to have a connection with the ability user society?

If his boss knew about this, she would also be excited for him and might give him a salary raise.

Not to mention that the agent had heard of the Xocolet Lake in Sloan's family official territory.

The Xocolet Lake was near the Crimson Lily guild branch and the legend said that whoever drank the water would have a high chance to awaken their ability.

It would be more effective for ordinary children, but even old people like him still stand a chance.

Unfortunately, so far, no ordinary people could get this water because of the dangerous environment.

Only the rich could buy the water through the ability users mercenary team and so on.

The agent had heard of many rich ordinary people who awakened abilities after drinking this water.

He also wanted to drink the lake water, okay?

Now...he had a chance. If Leroy was accepted as a guild member, he could use his connection with Leroy to ask for the lake water!

The agent was full of hope as he continued to comfort Leroy before cutting the call.

Leroy himself also calmed down and prepared well to face Ainsley and the Sloan Family at the talk show later on.

?

?

The agreed date finally arrived.

The talk show would start at 9 a.m in the morning, but the guests and the staff had to arrive at 7 to do some preparation.

Ainsley woke up early that day and went to change into her legendary battle clothes– the pink uniform with the small pink tie.

The baby's purple hair was not as short as before, so it was naturally harder to style.

But the talk show staff told Ainsley that they prepared a stylist and makeup artist for her.

Thus, Ainsley only combed her hair and departed with Jevon and Elliana as her 'assistants.'

On the contrary, Leroy wore a light purple suit with a white shirt inside.

His light gray trousers complemented the light purple suit, giving a mysterious yet gentle vibe.

Leroy also wore a pure black tie and sapphire cufflinks to finish his neat and elite look.

The young man had deep purple hair, just like Ainsley's.

Sometimes, it would look a lot lighter when the sunshine shone on it, really unique.

The pair of sapphire pupils were full of color, like the color of the sky but also the color of the deep ocean.

The young man was styled handsomely right off the bat, but he didn't style his hair or wear makeup before going to the recording studio.

After all, he also knew that the studio would provide a stylist and a makeup artist for him.

It's not weird for men to use makeup in the entertainment industry, and Leroy knew a lot more about recording a variety show because of his star identity.

Thus, he's already used to wearing makeup and such.

Before leaving, Leroy looked at Ren and the twins in his arms with a bitter smile on his face.

"Dad will go to work first. Riri and Ren Ren wait for dad to go back, okay?"

Leroy called Maurie as Riri and Maure as Ren Ren.

Of course, it was because Maure and Maurie looked like Ren and calling Maure as Ren Ren was like calling a tiny version of Renmaure!

Chapter 899: "Gaining More Fans"

Leroy liked the nickname and the meaning behind Ren Ren so much.

Okay, back to the twins.

The twins did know about today's talk show but didn't know it would have something to do with their father's reputation.

They only thought that their dad would work as usual, and going work means more popularity for their father and more money!

They knew that their dad was a celebrity, and sometimes he had to work away from home for around a few days, weeks, and even several months.

After all, although Leroy was an internet celebrity, he also filmed variety shows and other things that required a long time to produce.

The twins looked at their dad and didn't know whether to feel proud or sad because of their father's job.

They could only pout, sulking.

"When will you go back this time, dad? Will it be a long time?" Maurie asked while Maure silently looked at his father with hopeful eyes.

"Well, it won't be long. I'll be back tonight."

The show only needed several hours to record. It wasn't as cumbersome as other variety shows that required a few days.

The twins were instantly excited, and they kissed Leroy's cheeks before waving their tiny paws at their beloved dad.

"Bye-bye, dad! Come back soon!"

"Come back soon."

Renmaure also hugged Leroy and kissed his lips before sending the young man to the door.

Ren had to go to the mercenary guild every day and couldn't send Leroy to the studio because he also had to depart with the twins now.

After all, the mercenary guild usually opens at 8 a.m, and Renmaure always comes in time to greet the guild members.

Even if he didn't have any mission at the moment, he had to visit the guild from time to time to do some other things.

It was all because Renmaure was one of the key figures in the mercenary guild headquarters at the capital.

Thus, after Leroy left, Renmaure and the twins had breakfast before rushing to the capital using a public flying carriage.

It only took two hours from this area to the capital and Renmaure would arrive at around 9 a.m.

It was the same time as when the talk show was being broadcasted.

Ren and the twins intended to watch the talk show broadcast although the twins didn't know what it was about.

Only Ren was slightly nervous for Leroy. But in the end, he felt that even if Leroy lost the case, it didn't matter.

They could just move out of the Godlif country like what they had planned before and bring their mercenary team abroad.

The mercenaries were much more successful in other countries than in Godlif countries.

7:30 a.m, Ainsley arrived at the studio and was stunned when she saw such a huge building.

The building was a TV station building with many areas used for recording TV programs.

The one reserved for the Court Talk Show was the biggest area since the talk show was a popular TV program.

Not to mention that this month's issue was something unique and popular.

After entering the TV station, the staff immediately urged Ainsley to go backstage and started to style her hair and put on some light makeup suitable for children.

The stylists and the makeup artists were busy taking care of Ainsley, but it didn't stop them from admiring Ainsley's face.

"Little boss, you are really cute. I have seen a lot of child stars before, but you're still one of the cutest!"

The stylist felt regret that such a beautiful child didn't enter the entertainment industry but went to be a bloody mafia boss...

The entertainment industry should mourn for losing such a good star seed!

Ainsley's cheeks flushed red as she listened to the staff blowing rainbow fart (compliments) at her.

"You flatter me, sister. I'm sure that I look cute because of your makeup and hairstyling skills!"

The stylist and the makeup artist almost got nosebleeds.

So cute! So polite!

When Ainsley looked up at them with her big sapphire eyes blinking gently...it was as if there was a naughty kitten scratching their hearts.

How come this kid doesn't look like a mafia boss at all? Are you sure such a cute kid is the ruthless mafia boss that kills thousands of people?

The staff peeked at the two people behind Ainsley— Jevon and Elliana.

When they saw the two people's cold faces along with their neat suits...it really gave off the give of a mafia.

But Ainsley's suit was pink, and she wore a school-type skirt rather than trousers.

How could it not be cute? Rather than a mafia boss, the baby looked like an idol!

If Cellino or Bello followed Ainsley in their cat form, that would only add the cuteness points and rush it to the max.

Unfortunately, the cats didn't follow Ainsley because the producer, the director and other staff were all scared of sacred beasts.

Even if the sacred beasts looked cute as cats, they're still lethal.

The on-site audiences were mostly ordinary people too, and it might frighten them to death.

But even without the cats, the Godfather and Zev were still there.

The two spirits looked around the building with the excuse of clearing up all possible dangers.

But Ainsley knew that these childish adults only wanted to play...

The Godfather never entered such a building before because he's a mafia. Now that he's a spirit, he could freely roam any place.

How could he not want to explore the building?

While the duo explored the entire building full of stars and celebrities, Ainsley was quietly gaining popularity among staff and passersby.

Before Ainsley went backstage to apply makeup and style her hair, many passersby around the building saw her.

And they all fell in love at first sight.

Chapter 900: "Ain's Guardians"

When the passersby first saw the child with that eye-catching purple hair and blue eyes, almost all of them sucked in a deep breath.

What an angel! Her face looks so similar to Deestar, that popular celebrity, but this kid actually looked even better than Deestar.

Maybe because she's still a child, and her cuteness was doubled.

Not to mention the contrast between her cute look, her title as the youngest mafia boss and the two solemn-looking 'bodyguards' behind her...

This kind of contrast is so cute, okay?

These people thought that the youngest mafia boss would either be someone cold or someone arrogant.

Or maybe she would look down on ordinary people like them.

After all, she's such a powerful kid and also a mafia boss of a large mafia family.

Who knows that when Ainsley came to the studio, there wasn't even any aura of a mafia boss.

The baby only looked like a walking French doll, ready to be kidnapped.

So cute! So weak! Ahhhh!

Oh, well, some people who read a lot about Ainsley finally realized why some articles on the internet talked about Ainsley's good looks and her success as the mafia boss.

The articles mentioned how her enemies underestimated her because of her cute and harmless look.

But underneath such a cute girl was a bloodthirsty and cruel demon.

No wonder the enemies were fooled...

Look, look, even the staff already fell in love with her at first sight! And Ainsley still didn't purposely use her charm ability....

What she had now was only her passive charm ability to make others look at her kindly and have a good first impression of her.

But a lot of people already liked such a cute, polite and sensible child.

More and more staff suddenly felt like cursing the irresponsible father, a.k.a, Leroy.

"How can he abandon such a cute child? If I were him, I would never have the heart to leave her! No matter what the reason!"

"Yes, yes. Did you see her calling some of us 'sister' and 'brother'?! So polite and cute!"

"Her voice is so milky...I can't think of her as a mafia boss."

"Yeah. Only the two people behind her look like a mafia. Ain looks more like an idol!"

The passersby and the building's staff leisurely called Ainsley by her nickname.

Some fans on the internet even created a fanbase for the baby, and the members were a mix between mafia people, ordinary people and ability users.

Ainsley's guild members even joined the fanbase silently and contributed a lot to make more people know about Ainsley.

Ainsley's fans were called 'Ain's Guardians', which means they're all claiming to be Ain's legal guardians.

This is undoubtedly a slap to Leroy's face.

Ain's fans were all fighting to be Ainsley's guardian!

The fans also created a sect and united with people who love children and named the sect as the loli supremacy sect...

If Ainsley knew that she suddenly became a sect leader without her knowing, she might twitch her lips, shocked by these people's brain logics.

After gaining a huge amount of fans by relying on her cute face, Ainsley was finally escorted to the recording studio.

The studio chosen was the biggest one, and it could accommodate up to 300 audiences plus the staff and the guests.

When Ainsley arrived at the studio, the audience was already there, and the stage was already prepared.

Before coming to the show, the producer team had already sent out a script about the talk show itself so that Ainsley could adapt smoothly.

As for other arrangements...the producer left it to fate.

This talk show was popular because it was well-known to be genuine, without any arranged scripts for the guests or the audiences.

Many talk shows like this actually hyped the guests or deliberately asked the guests to act abnormal, just to make the show more exciting.

But the Court Talk Show wasn't like that.

They were good at finding the right guests to hype the show and didn't need arranged scripts at all.

Strangely, because of this, the show became even more popular and was known for its credibility.

There had never been any evil editing either, even when the show didn't use a live broadcast until today.

When Ainsley arrived, the assistant director, the director and the producer immediately rushed toward her with countless snacks and other items that children liked.

"Welcome to our studio, little boss! Here's a cake for breakfast."

"Good morning, little boss. Here are the rules and regulations of our show. We hope you can follow our rules."

"Let's go, let's go. Sit over there and then after 10 minutes the staff will guide you to record the show."

Ainsley had a calm smile on her face as she accepted the items and food, plus the electronic tablet, before grinning surely at the adults.

"Thank you, uncles and aunties. Ain will follow whatever you want Ain to do."

! Critical hit!

Ainsley's milky voice, coupled with her rabbit-like impression, was enough to steal the adults' hearts, especially the women.

The audiences at the studio also saw Ainsley from afar and they couldn't help but squeal.

"I think Ain has already used her charm ability on me. Otherwise, why do I feel that she's so cute?!"

"Hey, hey, same here! Ahhhh! But who cares. I'm willing to be her doormat!"

Obviously, Ainsley didn't do anything yet, but these perverts who liked children already became her fans...

A kid's cuteness was really a weapon that could kill others without a trace!

Ainsley had a helpless smile on her face as she went to the sofa near the stage to read the rules and regulations sent by the staff.

Let's read first!