

BABY MAFIA 901

Chapter 901: "The Show Starts"

By the way, speaking of charm ability...

Actually, Ainsley also realized that while her charm ability was getting stronger and continuously upgraded, her appearance also leveled up.

No wonder the audiences were all fascinated with Ain's cuteness...

If someone said that Ainsley was a fairy, they would also believe it!

Alas, her hair was purple, and so far, there had never been a fairy with purple hair.

While Ainsley was reading the rules on the electronic tablet, Leroy, who had arrived at the studio, was also sitting on another sofa right on the other side of the stage.

From the audience and the camera's perspective, they could see Ainsley sitting on the stage's left side and Leroy sitting on the right side.

Both of them hadn't stepped onto the stage yet, but it already showed the rivalry vibe.

The Court Talk Show itself was really a high-end TV program, and they didn't hesitate to smash money to create the props.

One could see that the stage was produced to be similar to a real-life court but with different colors.

The one on Ainsley's side was pink while the one on Leroy's side was blue.

Then, there was also the Sloan Family's logo on the podium belonging to Ainsley's area.

There was also Leroy's Deestar signature on his podium's body.

The two sides looked ready to fight, just like when someone fought in the court!

But the producer was also sensible, and they modified the court-like stage to be more friendly to a child such as Ainsley.

They lowered the podium's height and also prepared a soft, springy sofa behind the podium.

If Ainsley was tired of standing still, she could leisurely sit on the sofa while munching the snacks prepared on the coffee table in front of the sofa.

Leroy also had the same treatment and it was estimated that after both sides were tired of standing, the next round of the verbal battle would end up with both parties sitting on the couch.

This would undoubtedly change the show's vibe but it's also fun seeing the guests resting while comparing each other with words.

Ainsley clearly liked the stage, but she didn't look at it for too long. After admiring the filming set, she read the rules and regulations on the tablet.

First, it was forbidden to use physical violence against the other party no matter what the reason was.

Unless it's for self-defense, of course.

The guests were allowed to use curse words and vulgar words and so on, but physical violence was really not allowed.

Second...the guests had to sign an agreement with the producer and director stating that whatever they said in this show would be the absolute truth.

If they were found to be lying, the producer and the director could sue the guests for defamation.

The third rule was an agreement not to use any special abilities during the show.

There were a lot of ability-suppressing devices, and the ability user guests couldn't use their abilities as they wished.

The show created this rule because today's episode had two ability user guests, especially Ainsley, who had a high destruction power.

Ainsley nodded at this rule and didn't mind the studio directly suppressing her special abilities.

Anyway, in the case of an emergency, she could still use her luck manipulation ability...

After reading the rules, Ainsley handed the tablet back to the staff while taking out her own tablet from the bag that Jevon carried around with him.

Ainsley compiled all the evidence against Leroy in this tablet. If she forgot the evidence, she could just take a look at the tablet.

10 minutes passed just like that, and it was nearly 9 a.m.

The live broadcast audiences had been waiting for a long time, and the on-site audiences were also excited.

Finally, the staff found Ainsley and nodded with a smile on their face.

"Little boss, it's time. You only need to stand under the stage until our hosts call your name."

"Okay." Ainsley agreed and immediately stood below the stage. Leroy also did the same, but he was on the other side of the stage.

In just a few seconds, the whole stage suddenly lit up, and the camera was also recording the whole stage faithfully.

There were so many cameras aimed at the stage. They captured and recorded the set that suddenly glowed in soft light.

Following this fancy opening, the two regular hosts of the show suddenly appeared behind the judge's table on the stage.

The two hosts were a middle-aged woman and man.

They were good-looking, but Ainsley had seen too many handsome and beautiful people in her circle.

She was already numb to beauties.

The two hosts that abruptly came up while the BG music sounded out loud throughout the studio actually wore a judge costume, faithfully replaying the scene at the court.

Ainsley had never watched the Court Talk Show, and she was undoubtedly surprised by how serious the show actually was.

They cared about the details to such an extent!

After the two hosts appeared, they immediately shouted the talk show's usual slogan and the on-site audiences also cooperated in responding.

After the initial 5 minutes of a warm up by the hosts, the hosts finally looked at the two guests below the stage, and they couldn't help but hook the corner of their lips.

They suddenly looked like a playful fox rather than a serious judge.

Both hosts didn't look like a serious judge at the actual court because they were just pretending to be one.

But it was undoubtedly funny and brought a lot of entertainment for the audiences!

While smiling cunningly, the male host slowly looked at Ainsley, and the camera also followed his gaze, showing a well-behaved toddler under the stage.

It's the legendary little mafia in the flesh!

Chapter 902: "Double J"

The studio's light shone on the baby's face, highlighting her good look and the camera faithfully recorded the HD image of this living doll.

The moment Ainsley's face appeared on the screen, the audiences on the internet instantly exploded.

[Oh my God! So cute! The real thing is really better than just photos and blurry videos!]

[I bet she will be even cuter in person...]

[How come I don't see any mafia boss aura on this baby? She's so cute, okay? Looks so soft and kind!]

[Upstairs don't be fooled. If you see her battle video, you will never say that she's soft!]

[Yes, yes, but she's still cute. Can we pinch that cheek? It looks so good to be pinched...]

[Me! Me! I also want to rub her fluffy hair!]

[Am I the only one who thinks of her cute pink uniform? She obviously wants to imitate the way a mafia boss dresses up but she still wants to use such a girly color...]

[A gap moe! Too cute!]

[I heard that her handgun is also a dolphin-shaped bubble gun but it's lethal because this baby can use her charm ability to kill.]

[...maybe her targets died of cuteness.]

While the netizens were discussing Ainsley, the hosts didn't let Ainsley stand alone for too long.

The next moment, Ainsley could immediately hear the host's voice echoing in the studio.

"Let's take a look at one of our esteemed guests today...it turns out to be the legendary baby mafia boss!"

The host didn't forget to introduce Ainsley to the audience and summarized her life before applauding loudly.

"Welcome to the stage, Ainsley Sloan!"

The light above everyone's head also went to Ainsley, and the baby immediately waved at the camera while stepping up to the stage.

"Hello. It's my honor to be here."

Ainsley wore a small microphone clipped on her pink tie, and her milky, clear voice instantly sounded in the huge and bright studio.

She didn't forget to wave her small paws before calmly sitting on the sofa behind the pink podium.

Thankfully, the podium was short and didn't block the couch at all, unlike Leroy's podium.

Because of that, the audiences who were seated at the C-shaped seats circling the stage could see Ainsley from all angles.

No one could see anything bad about this baby, who always looked polite and cute.

The audiences were already having a better impression on Ainsley even when she's actually a little mafia boss.

After inviting Ainsley to the stage, the hosts didn't let Leroy come up first and actually interviewed Ainsley.

After all, this is the show's usual operation and even if Leroy felt uncomfortable under the stage, he had to endure this 'humiliation'.

The male host was the first one to interview Ainsley.

"Hello, hello, can I call you little boss?"

The male host grinned comically, and Ainsley couldn't help but laugh at this middle-aged man's attempt to be nice to a child.

"Yes, you can call me little boss, uncle host." Ainsley smiled with her eyes bending into crescent moons, cute yet slightly sly, like a small fox.

The on-site audiences and the live broadcast audiences suddenly felt like cursing.

[Ah, ah! So cute! She's not using her charm ability, but she's still so cute!]

[I know, right?? Maybe because she's an amazing charm ability user, and that makes her physique unique or something.]

Even when Ainsley didn't use her charm ability, she could still charm people with her appearance alone.

The male host was someone with a child, and he was also not immune to this cute baby charm.

The man's fatherly love instantly flooded out of his heart, and he hurriedly patted Ainsley's head.

"Wow, thank you, little boss! You're really a cute baby!"

Ainsley squinted while enjoying the uncle's gentle pat, and the male host also retracted his hand before focusing on the interview.

At the same time, the female host was looking at the male host with a face full of jealousy.

She also wanted to touch Ain's head! She's a momma fan!

The live broadcast audiences could see the female host's face and all of them laughed out loud.

[Hahaha, look at this sister's face! She's so jealous of her working partner!]

[She said: why can't I pet the little baby?! Aggrieved.jpg.]

[Yeah, yeah. But it's understandable. Julia also had children. Her motherly love is strong. Who doesn't want to stroke a cute baby's head?]

[John is so lucky to pat the little boss' head, and the little boss even allows him to do that...]

The hosts' names are John and Julia, which made the show's audiences also give them a nickname—double J.

Double J was famous for being this show's regular hosts, yet it was the first time the hosts showed such a blatant favor for one of the invited guests.

After all, the hosts had to be partial and neutral so as not to mistreat anyone.

But since Ainsley was just a child, everyone didn't think it was unfair.

Thus, while the two hosts crowded around Ainsley, Leroy was left alone for ten to fifteen minutes, still below the stage.

The young man's face darkened, and he almost fainted on the spot.

What are these hosts doing?! He's still down here! Can't they quickly shut up and invite him to the stage??

But no matter how unwilling Leroy was, the two hosts, John and Julia, only followed the show's script.

They would need to interview the invited guest for ten to fifteen minutes which is why Leroy had to wait for that long.

Turning back time to fifteen minutes ago.

John finally asked Ainsley the first question that the show's staff collected from the netizens who wanted to ask Ainsley some questions.

Chapter 903: "Five-minute Speech"

"Okay, little boss. Here's the first question you got from your fans and passersby." John cleared his throat before he continued.

"Little boss, we all know that you're the youngest mafia boss in history, right? Then, how does it feel to be a mafia boss at such a tender age?"

Ainsley paused at John's question before smiling sweetly at the camera again, but she also didn't forget to look at John, who had already sat down beside her.

"At first, it's really scary. All I want is to play around like other kids or receive education just like what the other mafia children have. But..."

Ainsley pursed her lips and sighed. Her eyes turned melancholy as she looked at the two hosts.

"At that time, the elders and the family panicked because they lost their family head."

Ainsley inwardly glanced at Leroy down the stage before continuing.

"Then, they held an emergency meeting and pushed me to be the new family head."

Ainsley seemed to recall something horrible, and her face looked uncomfortable.

"When I was first brought to the meeting room, I saw a lot of scary-looking adults and they all looked at me as if I'm prey on a chopping board..."

Ainsley's voice choked a bit, but she insisted on continuing her speech.

"At that time, even if I was dumb, I immediately knew that they wanted to select a guardian for me but I would turn into a puppet family head."

Ainsley's long answer actually still had nothing to do with the question, but because her storytelling technique was superb, no one complained.

In fact, the on-site and live broadcast audiences were all immersed in her story, as if they could imagine Ainsley's experience in front of them.

Ainsley didn't stop talking and slowly spoke more about her experience.

"I might be young, but I think my intuition is good. At that time, I immediately begged Grandpa Yofan, the supreme elder, to let me choose the guardian that I like."

That was really a turning point in Ainsley's life.

"I chose Elliana...and it's all because she's loyal, honest, and doesn't look corrupt, unlike the other mafia members back then."

Ainsley didn't shy away from telling the audiences that the Sloan Family used to be full of corrupt people.

She even told them about the corrupt accountant and how she countered the bastards.

She also told the audience how she cleaned up the family.

But Ainsley didn't continue her story because she talked for almost five minutes.

"So, if you ask me how I feel...back then, I was scared. I was unwilling. I became what I am today only to ensure my life and my future."

Ainsley cast her eyes down, seemingly deep in sorrow. But then, the baby suddenly lifted her head, and her face brightened.

A smile slowly bloomed on her immature face.

"I was weak and incompetent. I was scared and unwilling. But now, after I have so many loyal subordinates, I take them as my family, and I don't feel unwilling anymore."

Ainsley's eyes were bright, and a soft smile hung on her face, just like a child who had just gotten her favorite candy.

"There are a lot of people who stand by my side when I was weak and incompetent. For these people, I embrace my new identity and become who I am today."

So the reason why Ainsley persisted and changed herself, becoming one of the best mafia bosses in society, was all because of her family.

"A lot of them aren't related to me at all. Many of them aren't familiar with me, but they're loyal to the Sloan Family, and that touched my heart."

And so, Ainsley worked hard to make these people happy and live the life they deserved.

"I changed the family concept from a corrupt mafia family to a gray area mafia family."

"I banned all the dangerous drug business in my family and created a new business opportunity."

Ainsley took the chance to tell the audiences indirectly that her mafia family wasn't as bad as other mafia families.

"So now, when people ask me how I feel to be the youngest mafia boss...I can say that I'm proud, and I'm glad I became a mafia boss for my people."

Ainsley's five-minute speech in the show's early stage was really inspiring.

The whole studio was silent. Everyone was listening to her words carefully.

The slow BG music was really suitable for accompanying this scene, and everyone felt that the short speech was really...really amazing.

The audiences never knew what Ainsley went through, but from her short story, they could feel how desperate Ainsley was back then.

She might be smiling and healthy right now, but when she was weak, she was dancing with death.

The mafia world was never a good one, even to children.

Ainsley's answer to the interview's first question already guided the audience to sympathize with her.

More and more people felt that Leroy was a scum.

Because Leroy left, Ainsley ended up in this situation!

People with weak hearts already cried for Ainsley and for a moment, even the two hosts felt their eyes were red and their noses were sour.

John patted Ainsley's head once more and murmured.

"I see...so it is like that. You're really...brave, Ain. You're strong."

Ainsley could feel John's intention to comfort her, and her smile grew bigger.

She didn't see that Jevon and Elliana were already sobbing in the dark, just like the other audiences.

"Thank you, uncle. Hehehe, I talked too much just now. Let's move on to the next question?"

With Ainsley's signal, the two hosts immediately moved into the next few questions and all the questions were unique.

Chapter 904: "How Ainsley Awakened Her Abilities"

"Ain, the audiences and netizens want to know how you awaken your first few special abilities."

"Ah, I first awakened keen hearing because I wanted to eavesdrop on the elders' meeting next door."

Ainsley's answer brought laughter to the studio, and even the previous sad yet inspiring atmosphere was gone.

"After that, I awakened my charm ability. I think it should be a baby charm type..."

"How did you awaken the charm ability?" Julia asked curiously, and Ainsley smiled playfully at her.

"I awakened this ability because I tried to act cute to the elders and wanted them to listen to my wishes."

Ainsley laughed as she rubbed her palms together.

"That's how my strong desire successfully awakened my charm ability!"

"Hahaha. Okay, any other abilities? We heard that you have at least three to four abilities!"

"Well, there is. I think the third one should be related to a 'curse' type ability, but this one just appeared so suddenly...."

Ainsley didn't talk much about her luck manipulation ability because it was her trump card.

A good fighter wouldn't reveal all your cards to the public.

"Okay, let's talk about how you awaken your shaman ability instead. I heard you're a shaman who made a contract with the Godfather spirit. Is that true?"

At John's curious question, Ainsley nodded solemnly.

"It is true. Actually, the reason why I awakened my shaman ability and even managed to contract the Godfather is because of a lie."

Ainsley had never told about her pretending to be a shaman controlled by the Godfather to her people before, but this time, she planned to reveal her lie.

Anyway, she had already successfully contracted the Godfather and became a genuine shaman.

"At first, I need backing and a kind of deterrent ability to make the people in my family listen to me."

After all, charm ability alone was hard to make these old and influential peeps in the Sloan Family listen to their young boss.

"So, I pretended to be possessed by the Godfather and pretended that I'm a shaman."

Ainsley winked at the camera as she said this, as if to tell the people in her family who should be watching the show right now.

"My acting is too good, and everyone believes me!"

"Not to mention that my curse type ability emits a similar golden aura to shamans who are being possessed."

Ainsley giggled and her giggle slowly turned into a soft yet playful laughter.

"I lied to them about me being a shaman and it continued until I really did become a shaman. Even the Godfather came to me because of the lie I made..."

The audiences were all dumbfounded. They listened to this story and couldn't react for a while.

This child is too clever, okay?

She knew that her newly awakened abilities couldn't convince the people in her family that's why she lied to them.

But her acting skill should be very good if she could lie to her people about her being a shaman!

"My people rarely see a shaman, and that's why they are fooled. I also ask my secret friend to help me with manipulating the wind just to lift me to the air."

This way, Ainsley's lie was really a high-level lie.

"At that time, I also used my charm ability and confused it with the Godfather's signature ability—dominance."

The two abilities were actually similar, and if people could use it right, they could fool others once or twice.

"I make my people think that I'm cute, but I act arrogant and mighty like the Godfather."

"Then, I force them to kneel but I use my charm ability instead of dominance."

Ainsley recounted what she did back then with a huge smile on her face, but the audiences and the hosts couldn't even smile.

All of them felt as if they had just eaten a fly.

This can be done too?! Pretending to be a shaman possessed by the Godfather is not easy at all.

But Ain still did it and even fooled her people!

They bet her people didn't know about this until now.

Indeed, Grandpa Yofan and the others who were watching the broadcast were so shocked that they almost fainted.

The new members and the guild members who didn't know about this event at all started to ask the old members and they finally knew the whole details.

It turned out the boss did convince the old people by revealing her shaman ability backed by the Godfather.

But who would have known that it's all a lie??

"Heheheh. But this lie is precisely what makes me awaken the shaman ability and even attract the Godfather."

"The Godfather visited me first because of this lie, and after that, I managed to convince him to stay around me."

"Under the baptism of the high-level spirit, I naturally awakened as a shaman, " Ainsley added.

In other words, she not only fooled her people but also baited the Godfather and then abducted the Godfather to stay with her.

Maybe she did that with her baby charm.

And that's what made her become the real shaman and really made a contract with the Godfather!

Grandpa Yofan and the others were speechless.

So from the very beginning, they had fallen into this baby's trap, right?

She is really cunning! Worthy of being our boss!

The audiences were also shocked but all of them thought that Ainsley was really witty.

This is what people call a genius!

John and Julia laughed at Ainsley's short story, and they started to ask a few more questions to end the interview.

"Let's talk about your sacred beasts and contracted monsters?"

Ainsley immediately spoke about Cellino, Bello, Ava, and even Zilla.

Chapter 905: "First Kill Experience"

Ainsley didn't talk much about the sacred beasts but focused more on the monsters.

"I rarely see Ava lately, but since she's considered a strong monster, I let her guard the mansion with her kids."

Ainsley smiled as she recalled Ava, who no longer lived in her dimensional bracelet and only occasionally returned if she missed the dimension.

"There is also Zilla and her children. They're all more powerful than Ava, and they become my family's war monster."

Ainsley took the chance to show off the family's strength so that blind person wouldn't dare to offend their family, just like what the Aretha Family did.

"Okay, enough about sacred beasts and monsters. What about your education?"

Julia waved her hands as she looked at Ainsley.

"Ain, do you have a private tutor? Will you attend an academy when you're old enough?"

Nowadays, because of Ainsley, many academies opened classes for young geniuses below ten years old.

Because of this, the hidden geniuses across the country started to emerge one by one, and the academies placed a lot of importance on recruiting young geniuses.

It was said that those who awakened their abilities below ten years old were all called 'early awakened' and the academies really liked these children.

Previously, these geniuses could only be taught at home by private tutors,

These tutors came from famous academies or graduated from top academies.

Many parents also invited instructors from famous academies to be these geniuses' private tutors.

However, ever since the academies opened classes for early awakened, the parents all sent their children to the academies.

After all, academies were better than private tutors and mingling with other geniuses would help these little geniuses to grow up without too much arrogance.

All geniuses were arrogant. Sometimes, their arrogance could kill them.

This is why the parents wanted the children to mingle with other children to let them know that there are a lot of talents in this world.

They're not the only talented ones.

Hearing Julia's question, Ainsley paused before smiling.

"I was too busy to be a mafia boss. I don't have any private tutor."

Julia didn't expect Ainsley to answer like this and hurriedly questioned.

"No tutor? Then how did you learn everything? Such as common knowledge, science, math, and so on..."

"I have the elders and other seniors to teach me business management, politics and other basic things."

Ainsley couldn't say that she's actually an adult and had already learned all the basic knowledge a long time ago, right?

But she still learned a lot of things because this world has quite a few different knowledge compared to her original world.

"As for the special ability training....I have the Godfather to teach me personally, Hehehehe."

Ainsley laughed innocently, but the audiences, especially the ability users, were all green with jealousy.

Getting personal guidance from the Godfather! Ahhhh!

The Godfather might be a famous mafia boss, but no one can deny that he's also one of the strongest ability users ever alive.

To have such a figure teaching you how to use your special abilities...

They can all die without regret.

Ainsley's education path was really luxurious, ah! No other instructors or academy professors could compare to the Godfather in terms of practical fighting skill.

He might not know a lot about theories and such, but in terms of real-life battle, he's the best.

And Ainsley, who had experienced countless battles from small to big and also led troops in small and huge wars, was also amazing.

Even if there were a lot of early awakened in this country, who would have had such a rich battle experience other than Ainsley?

Even the mafia children only learned to fight in a real battle when they turned thirteen or fourteen.

The cruel ones learned to kill the moment they awakened their abilities, but none would be as young as Ainsley.

Speaking of real-life battles, the hosts also got one last question that a lot of audiences and netizens wanted to ask Ainsley.

"Okay, here's the last question, and it's still connected to the previous question."

John took a deep breath before slowly reading the question out loud.

"What did you feel when you first killed people?"

This question sounded nasty and rude, especially to ordinary people who abide by the law and didn't kill people indiscriminately.

But for ability users, killing is something common.

Still, for such a young kid to kill people...the live audiences and the on-site audiences had seen Ainsley's first war video.

In the video, she killed too many people for the first time, and some people weren't comfortable watching it.

It's just so weird that a kid so young she could be your daughter or granddaughter already started to slay enemies on the battlefield.

Ainsley's smile froze for the first time, but she quickly recovered.

This question is tricky, but she knew that John didn't mean to corner her or anything.

A lot of people would question this, especially when she's so young.

But the question was tricky because if Ainsley didn't answer it well, her image in the eyes of ordinary people would plummet to the ground.

The kind mafia group image she tried to share to ordinary people would also be useless and might even backfire.

Thus, Ainsley took a deep breath, and her face suddenly turned gloomy, as if she was about to cry anytime.

"When I first killed people...I really don't remember it."

Ainsley bit her lips as she spoke in a trembling voice as if she was about to choke up anytime.

"Back then, what I remember was the tragic corpse of the innocent villagers, the burnt village and the destruction of a community."

It was hell.

Chapter 906: "Who Would Protect Her?"

Ainsley closed her eyes and hid the pained look in her eyes, but the live broadcast audiences could still catch her grieving look.

She's recalling that hell-like experience.

Following Ainsley's wounded look was her weak whisper.

"I...I saw death for the first time. I saw blood...and the blood belonged to the people I should have protected. But...but I failed them."

The studio suddenly became silent. Everyone could feel the depressing mood, and they subconsciously held their breath.

Even Leroy was shocked when he first heard of this and didn't know what to say.

Ainsley's voice became weaker and weaker. The baby clenched her skirt tightly and didn't dare to lift her head.

"At that time, I was almost insane with guilt. I was really...my mental state wasn't good at all, and it was stimulated so much that my keen hearing evolved briefly."

"When it evolved...I can hear the voice of the dead souls."

The audience sucked in the cold air. Even the barrage on the live broadcast's comment section slowed down and became as silent as a grave.

"I...I heard their pain, their accusation and their unwillingness to die. I also heard their desperate plea, begging to live."

Ainsley bit her lips, and she almost bit her lips until it bled.

"I...I was terrified. I don't know what to do. I have never killed people before, and I am scared to kill. But if I don't kill, my remaining people...will all die."

Ainsley described how desperate the situation was back then. The Sloan Family was on the brink of eternal extermination.

If Ainsley weren't strong enough, the family would have perished.

And if she were soft-hearted and didn't kill, she would be the one dying.

"Really. The first time I kill people should be through the monsters and beasts that I controlled through my charm ability."

Ainsley closed her eyes tightly as if wanting to forget the gruesome event.

"I...I didn't see the enemies dying. At that time, my thoughts were only to appease the soul of the dead."

"I know that their souls should still be around the battlefield...that's why I avenged them. That way, they can rest in peace and reincarnate safely."

The audiences also watched the part where Ainsley created a death requiem, mentioning the names of the dead members one by one.

She killed ten people in exchange for one life belonging to her family.

She really counted the number and then softly told the deceased souls that she had avenged them.

They could rest in peace.

For a moment, the audience could feel Ainsley's feelings when she had to kill enemies to send her people to the afterlife.

It was the first time she saw her people getting slaughtered like that. And even the innocent villagers were all implicated.

How frustrating should it be? Ainsley must be feeling really guilty about this and also powerless, right?

But she didn't give up, and she fought back. She couldn't think of how she felt when she first killed someone.

Her mind was on her deceased members, trying to avenge them to get their forgiveness.

"After the whole war ended...I got nightmares and almost got consumed by my inner demons. If the Godfather didn't save me, I wouldn't have lived up to now."

Ainsley told these people what nightmare she had and how she solved the problem.

Ainsley's story was really too interesting, albeit tragic and sad.

The show hadn't entered the debate section, but the show had already climbed up the trending ranking in various social media platforms.

All the hashtags had something to do with Ainsley, which made more and more people come to the live broadcast room and silently listen to Ainsley's story.

No one ever thought that behind the baby's ruthless character as a mafia boss, she was hurt to this extent.

Because of her family massacre, she strived hard to be stronger and become what she is now.

"Until now, I still feel sorry for the people who died at the Aretha War back then. If only I was stronger or I arrived earlier....they wouldn't have died."

This is Ainsley's true thoughts which is why up to now, she's still visiting these people's graves and talking to the monument everytime she finished a war.

She also became super protective of her own people in any type of battle, no matter how big or small it was.

The experts even said that the Sloan Family had the lowest casualty rate per battle and this is all because of Ainsley.

Ainsley certainly didn't become like the Godfather who rushed to fight the enemy alone.

She used her troops to fight but she also protected them as much as she could.

This is the reason why many ability users who didn't want to join a mafia family finally joined the Sloan Family.

After all, the Sloan Family had such a good boss.

The casualty rate here is the lowest compared to other equally strong powerhouses.

Thus, the members became even more loyal to Ainsley and they became fearless in a battle.

They could leave their backs to their little boss and knew that their boss would try her best to save their lives, even if they only had a breath left.

The members became even more skilful in a battle, afraid that they would drag their little boss with their own incompetence.

Such a cycle was really good, and it made the Sloan Family stand out among other powerhouses.

Only now did the audience understand why Ain's fans were so protective of her.

The baby had suffered so much grievance, but she still wanted to protect others.

But what about the baby?

Who would protect her?

Chapter 907: "No One Protected Her"

While other toddlers were still playing safely with their parents, this one was already slaying enemies on the battlefield.

No one protected her so she had to protect herself.

No one protected Ainsley, and so...Ain's fans were eager to protect her.

No one protected her, and that's why the Sloan Family's overall members strived to protect the baby.

The studio was silent for a while, allowing Ainsley to recite her story clearly.

After finishing her short story, Ainsley rubbed her red eyes and smiled weakly at the Double J.

"Okay, I have answered the last question. Let's move on to the next section?"

The Double J were silent for a moment before hugging Ainsley's tightly without speaking at all.

They were too speechless and all they could do was to hug this strong baby.

"Okay, thank you for the reminder, little boss. And thank you for answering the questions! Now, let's call our second guest..."

The hosts quickly shifted everyone's attention to Leroy, afraid that they would trigger Ainsley's bad memories and made her sad.

The on-site and live broadcast audience were also sensible and didn't pester the hosts to interview Ainsley again.

Alas, when the person on the screen changed from Ainsley to Leroy, the number of live broadcast viewers dropped sharply.

The live broadcast audience even chatted using the comment section but they didn't seem to be paying attention to Leroy's interview.

Oh, they actually did, but the comments weren't as positive as when Ainsley was the one being interviewed.

[This man again. Who is he, by the way? I heard that he's a famous internet celebrity lately?]

[He is Deestar. Real name is Leroy Sloan. He's the little boss' scum dad, and yes, he is popular lately. But just around 6 months ago.]

[Oh, a new traffic star. His face looks good, but I wonder what kind of talent he has?]

[I heard that he only plays live broadcasts daily, and the content is about the ability users society. That's why he's instantly popular.]

After all, few ability users became entertainers like Leroy. There were even fewer ability users who live broadcasted content about ability users' life.

The common people had always been curious about the ability users' society which was why Leroy's content became popular so easily.

[I didn't know this man was a mafia boss. But after knowing, I realized that all the things he mentioned in his live broadcast should be from his experience.]

Leroy also met some ability users he knew in the past to make videos. This led his live broadcast to be even more popular.

Although the ability users he contacted weren't elites, as an ex-mafia boss, he still had quite a connection with lower-level ability users.

[Still, without his advantage as an ability user and his handsome face, there's no way he can be a popular internet celebrity.]

[Right, right. Double J's interview with him is also boring. We all want to know his experience as an ex-mafia boss, but it's a meh.]

[It's not even as exciting as the little boss' experience. I think this man is really not a capable boss...]

[Well, that's why he left the mafia family, created a new family and became a celebrity, right?]

A lot of audiences sneered at Leroy and mocked him here and there, but the Starfield was also a huge fanbase.

Whenever the audiences mocked Leroy through the comment barrage, the Starfield would immediately retort fiercely.

[Don't slander our handsome brother. He is so kind and it's normal that he isn't fit to be a mafia boss!]

[Yes, yes. A mafia boss must be ruthless and evil, right? It suits his daughter very well.]

[Ooops, his only daughter is Maurie. This one is an abandoned daughter.]

[Look, even her father doesn't want her. Don't you think that there's something wrong with the kid?]

[People say that she's a genius. Is it only me who thinks that she's a demon? Like— it is so unreal for a four-year-old girl to be this capable.]

[Pffft. You're not capable, but it doesn't mean others can't be useless, right? What's wrong with being capable when she's young?]

Ain's Guardians also started to fight the Starfield who attacked Ainsley.

For a while, the comment section was on fire, but no one mentioned the content of Leroy's interview with the Double J hosts.

While the fans were arguing, Leroy had just ended his interview, but the on-site audiences' responses weren't as great as Ainsley's interview.

Leroy was a keen and sensitive person. He could feel that the audience didn't relate much to him and didn't quite like him.

After all, he was a scum dad who left a toddler to be a mafia boss. What a cruel father!

Even if Leroy thought he could refute this blame to the very end, once someone had this kind of impression about him, it was hard to change it.

Leroy took a deep breath and smiled at the two hosts.

"That's it. Thank you for interviewing me."

The double J pair were professional hosts, and they didn't show their impartial attitude to Leroy.

"Yes, you too, Sir Deestar. We really appreciate your answers."

Although the answers are all boring.

After all, Leroy didn't really have any interesting experiences when he became a mafia boss.

Compared to Ainsley, who had such a lot of adventures and thrilling experiences, he's nothing.

The only thing he could sell was his love experience with Renmaure and mentioning his twins to gain more sympathy from the audience.

Some people still wanted to hear about someone's love story, especially when the love story was between two men with different family backgrounds.

It really looked like a fairytale love story between a mafia boss and a mercenary team leader.

Exciting!

Chapter 908: "The Debate Started"

Unfortunately, such people who liked romance story were not many because this show mainly focused on the guests' thrilling experiences and their hot dispute at the fake court.

Whoever liked love stories wouldn't watch this kind of show and would choose other love-themed variety shows!

Leroy had also joined a love-themed variety show with Renmaure before and got another wave of popularity.

He also attended a family-themed variety show and earned the title of the most loving and perfect family of four.

Until people discovered Ainsley's existence.

Now, this perfect family title becomes a joke to Leroy, and Leroy is really frustrated for a moment.

He can't hide Ainsley's existence forever from the entertainment industry, especially when Ainsley is gaining her own fame rapidly.

But he wished at least Ainsley wouldn't fight him in public. Who knows that the baby was determined to fight him to death?

She might not want to kill him literally, but she could give him a social death where the whole internet and entertainment industry became his enemy.

Leroy bit his lips as he listened to the hosts talking about entering the second section of the show, which was also the main section—

The debate at the fake court scene.

The show usually had two hours per episode, 30 minutes for interview and 90 minutes for the debate.

During the first 30 minutes, the hosts also showed the backstory of the two guests to make the audience understand why the guests want to debate to death.

The hosts usually explained the backstory right after the interview section ended, which was usually called the interlude section.

Ten minutes had been used to introduce the backstory of the two guests' grudge, and the two hosts finally wrapped the scene.

"Okay, we have explained the backstory of our two guests. Let's move on to the main section— the court debate!"

John grinned slyly as he spoke to the audience, signaling the start of the court debate.

Julia also stood up and looked at the two guests behind her.

"Dear guests, please come to the podium. If you bring a lawyer with you, you can also call your lawyer now."

Even if the guests sometimes didn't debate personally and let their lawyers do the job, because this isn't a formal debate, the guests could interrupt once or twice.

The goal of the show was to have a fiery debate and it wasn't as stiff and formal as the real court.

Thus, the guests usually stood beside their lawyers and would debate on their own a few times.

This way, the show would still be interesting even when they involved real lawyers on the stage.

The lawyers also knew that this show wasn't that stiff and would usually let go of their manner and would go on a full strike to win the case.

After all, the winner wasn't only decided by the two hosts as the judges but also by the on-site audiences.

Now, it was added with the polling vote prepared for the live broadcast audience.

The lawyers would have to use simple arguments that could sway people's brain and heart when they listened to the arguments.

Unfortunately, both Leroy and Ainsley didn't invite a lawyer but did the job personally.

Of course, this is undoubtedly a good thing for the show.

One could see how popular this episode would be!

The debate show finally started with Leroy speaking first because he's the one who gave out the statement, and Ainsley would refute it.

Leroy cleared his throat and slowly changed his expression to be more melancholy and sad.

"I have told you guys before through my social media. I never wanted to leave my daughter, Ain, but the circumstances forced me."

Leroy took a deep breath and sighed.

"I was kicked out of the family because some malicious people kidnapped me and kicked me out automatically."

Ainsley immediately sneered at Leroy's words, and before Leroy could continue to sell misery and lies, the baby immediately interjected.

"I have proof here that no one in the family kidnapped you back then. Let's see the big screen behind us!"

Ainsley spoke straight to the point, and with the help of the staff, they projected the proof that Ainsley had handed to the staff before the show started.

On the big screen behind the fake stage, one could see dense line reports regarding the members' activities 6 months ago—all recorded neatly.

"Say, who kidnapped you? Just pick out random names, and I'll prove to you that they're not the culprit."

Ainsley's words undoubtedly cornered Leroy because she asked him to pick a 'random name'.

It silently told others that whoever Leroy mentioned must be a random name and wasn't the real kidnapping culprit back then.

Leroy clenched his fists and mentioned a few names, all of them were members who left the Sloan Family when the Aretha war started.

"These five people, " Leroy ended his statement.

Ainsley snorted and immediately signaled Elliana to operate the laptop, and in no time, the five people's names enlarged.

On the screen, the other names on the list were blurry and only the five names became extremely clear.

"Okay, let's see the first culprit. This one is a solo ability user, male. Thirty years old."

Ainsley paused before looking at Leroy with a smirk.

"Can you tell me when you were kidnapped by these people? I can check their activity logs according to dates."

Leroy blurted out a random date but it was clearly before he left the family.

After all, the whole Sloan Family knew that the day he left the family, his daughter replaced his position in just a few days.

They could trace the day he left the family by tracing the day Ainsley was crowned as the new family head!

Chapter 909: "Activity Logs"

"Okay. Let's take a look at this guy's activity log." Ainsley signaled Elliana to move while she herself kept her eyes on Leroy.

"Oh, right. In case people think the activity log is fake or not accurate, I'll tell you first."

Ainsley hooked the corner of her lips and smiled confidently.

"The one in charge of recording the activity log is someone with super memory ability."

"We also transfer all the data to a computer program, and it's well persevered."

"Our IT team can be the witness. You can also check the program's codes and history to see whether we tweak the data or not."

With this strong evidence, even before Ainsley showed the first suspect's activity log, many people had already believed that Leroy was lying.

[It's impossible to fabricate such complicated data just to frame this celebrity who doesn't have any impact on the ability users or mafia society!]

[I agree. From how Ain is so prepared...it is clear that she's determined to expose Leroy's lie.]

[Yeah. On the other hand, we don't see Leroy taking out evidence, right?]

But the Starfield at the live broadcast comment section still strongly believed in Leroy.

[Is it possible to give proof that you have been kidnapped before? What kind of proof? Photo? Recording? It's impossible, right??]

[Yeah. Unless Leroy reported it to the police! But he's a mafia. It's useless to report to the police.]

[We can just check Leroy's activity log a few days before he's declared missing!]

[If Leroy is really out of the mansion, the chance of getting kidnapped is quite high.]

[True. But if he's still inside the mansion and didn't go out at all before going 'missing', it's impossible to be kidnapped.]

[Let's see. The Sloan Family declared Leroy to be a missing person after how many days? Is it a week? A month? If it's just a few days, it's not fair...]

[Let's wait for the little boss to show us the evidence.]

Ainsley and Elliana quickly worked together to show the evidence, and indeed, on that day, the first suspect went out of the mansion to do some missions.

But he was back only after a few hours, and he came back with the mission items required to accomplish the mission.

Leroy saw this and couldn't help but frown.

"He can pretend to do the mission but has prepared the mission items beforehand. This activity log doesn't prove anything."

Indeed, but this activity log was at least authentic,, and everyone could believe the activity log.

Ainsley's purpose of showing the activity log wasn't to use the first suspect's activity history to prove Leroy's lie.

Actually, she just wanted the audience to believe in the activity log first and then...

Ainsley smiled softly at Leroy before opening her mouth.

"We have checked the first suspect's activity log. Then, let's compare it with your activity log?"

"Even if you were a mafia boss, the family still recorded your activity history, " Ainsley added.

Let's compare the activity logs!

When Ainsley said this, Leroy's face instantly became pale, and even the on-site audiences who sat far away from the stage could see it.

This...this will expose whether what Leroy said before was true or not!

Ainsley ignored Leroy's reaction and immediately showed Leroy's activity log on the day of the supposed kidnapping.

"See here. Leroy left the mansion once, but he left at a different time and came back after the first suspect came back. So..."

So he's not kidnapped at all.

Leroy immediately slapped the podium and refuted.

"I-I don't remember the kidnapping date. Maybe I mentioned the wrong date!"

"Okay. But it should be around this date, right? Let's see your activity logs after this specific date and a week before."

Ainsley hurriedly showed the timetable along with the activity descriptions.

"On the second day after the specific 'kidnapping' date, you left the mansion three times but still came back in the end."

No kidnapping case.

"The third day...you still came back in the end."

"The fourth day. You left the mansion early in the morning and you never came back. This should be the real kidnapping case, isn't it?"

Or maybe Leroy went out to do some business far away from the mansion. But for a few days after he left, Leroy never came back.

After a few weeks of empty activity logs, there was finally a new activity log...but the name displayed wasn't Leroy.

It was Ainsley.

"This is a memorable date. So, the family members recorded it into my activity log even when I didn't leave the mansion."

It was the day Ainsley was crowned as the new mafia boss.

"As you can see, within these few weeks, a lot of members came out of the mansion and the reason why they left was to search for the previous family head...which is you."

Ainsley lifted her face and sent a provocative gaze to Leroy.

Her face was calm and there's a smile on her face, but it looked so creepy in Leroy's eyes.

"Hum. There's no case of kidnapping at all. These five suspects' activity logs never crossed paths with your activity logs the day you disappeared."

It means that either Leroy was never kidnapped or he remembered the wrong kidnapper!

Leroy was also a stubborn man and before Ainsley could really corner him, he would never admit defeat.

"I might remember the kidnappers' names wrongly. I didn't really recognise them back then and just tried a few familiar names."

Facing Leroy's rebuttal, Ainsley was still calm.

"Okay, I get it. Let's see the members' activity logs that have some intersections with yours and see if they really kidnapped you."

C'mon, keep lying!

Chapter 910: "Defeated?"

Ainsley's IT team already made a program to make the data search easier.

In just a few minutes, the big screen already showed the list of members' activity logs that had some intersections with Leroy's.

"Looking at this data, every single person who left the mansion the day you disappeared left the mansion a few hours after you left."

Ainsley rubbed her chin and mumbled.

"Let's see. If I am the kidnapper, I won't wait for a few hours to leave the mansion and kidnap you. Who knows where you will go in a few hours, right?"

Leroy was almost persuaded with Ainsley's logic but he quickly retorted.

"They can place spies around me to monitor my activities. A few high-ranking personnel also know my itinerary for that day."

"Okay. Let's check your itinerary for that day. We still have the recorded agenda special for the family head," Ainsley answered.

It's clear that Ainsley was well-prepared and whatever Leroy said would be countered immediately.

"Look at the split screen. The boss' itinerary should be visiting the alchemist guild to discuss a potion business license."

This is really such a coincidence. Ainsley didn't know that Leroy had this agenda before she became the new family head.

Clearly because Leroy left, this agenda was never fulfilled and it was finally fulfilled after Ainsley became the new family head.

"Let's see...we can contact the Roane branch alchemist guild's receptionist to show us the guest lists from a few months ago."

Actually it had been almost a year, but Ainsley was sure that such a big guild like the alchemist guild would still keep the guests list data.

Even if their guild was just a regional branch guild.

Since Ainsley had a connection with the guild leader, she just sent a message through her phone and Gerald immediately approved her request.

In just a matter of minutes, as if Gerald had prepared the evidence a long time ago, he sent an email containing the guest list of those who visited the branch guild that day.

The audience kept looking at the big screen but didn't see Leroy's name on it.

One couldn't use a fake name and had to show their ID card if they visited the guild for an appointment with the guild leader.

Even if this is just a branch guild, the rule was still the same.

Leroy should have come for an appointment with the Roane branch guild leader but his name was never there.

"See? You never visited the guild. So what did you do? Don't say that you're kidnapped. The people who left on the same day came back in just one or two hours."

It's impossible to kidnap someone who left the mansion for a few hours that quickly.

First, the culprit had to find Leroy's location.

Even if there were spies or something, it was still hard to find Leroy's location, especially if he visited the guild.

After all, kidnapping someone inside a big guild was something impossible...

"Don't say they kidnap you on the way to the guild. You obviously left early and you would have arrived at the guild sooner than any of the possible culprits!"

And Leroy didn't visit the guild at all.

So where did he go?

That's the question!

"Let me ask you. Where did you go on that day? If it's not the guild, where else?"

"You didn't follow the agenda and you left alone without any guards or members following you."

This is absolutely abnormal for a mafia boss like Leroy.

"I think you really didn't go to the guild but went to meet your lover and ran away with him, right? That's why you left early in the morning to avoid suspicion!"

To prove this statement, Ainsley also accessed the Mercenary Guild's guests list and showed the audience that Renmaure didn't come to the guild that day.

As for how Ainsley got this info...a little bit of coercion was inevitable.

Of course, the one who forced the mercenary guild to give this information was Ainsley's people...

"How is it? What can you say to refute this?" Ainsley folded her arms in front of her chest and didn't let Leroy speak up at all.

"Is it so coincidental that Renmaure didn't visit the guild that day at all and you also left the mansion?"

The baby continued her attack and Leroy was almost dizzy with her accusations.

Ainsley's accusations really make sense, though!

"I-I..." Leroy wanted to lie, but he couldn't think of anything that could convince the others.

The fact that a mafia boss left their house without bringing even a single subordinate was already weird enough.

Then, he also didn't follow his agenda, which was actually quite fatal for a mafia boss.

After all, the plan was decided by himself. If he went back on what he had planned and didn't notify others about this...

How could he become a good mafia boss?

This evidence will just further solidify his image as an incompetent mafia boss.

And then others would also believe that he left the family because he's not a good mafia boss, anyway.

Leroy broke in a cold sweat, and for a while, he couldn't speak. However, Leroy was still essentially someone experienced.

He had been a mafia boss for a few years and had also been an internet celebrity for months.

If he didn't know how to debate with others and turn lies into reality, how could he survive in this cruel world?

Leroy couldn't refute Ainsley's words, but he could distract her and shift the conversation.

Leroy bit his lips and sighed.

"I can't tell you why I didn't visit the alchemist guild and why I left early in the morning without bringing anyone. But!"

Well, but what?