

BABY MAFIA 981

Chapter 981: "The Godfather's Ability Is Useless"

Thomas was the first one to react. He shouted while bombarding the mammoth with his weapons.

"ATTACK!! The mammoth had just attacked us! Everyone, attack that beast!!"

Then, Dskyla instantly led her people to attack the mammoth simultaneously and Lescorpio also did the same.

Scob hurriedly collected the wounded and treated them with the healer team or supplied them with nutritious food.

The barrier ability users and those in charge of the barrier machines had no choice but to drag their wounded body to repair the barrier.

"Hurry! Repair the barrier! The first and second layer is already gone!"

The capital city could be safe all year around because they also created a 7-layer barrier with close to a thousand barrier machines for one city.

This way, the city had no weak barrier spots.

Not to mention the capital city also hired tons of strong barrier ability users to maintain the inner core barrier intact all year around.

Unfortunately, the mammoth's physical attack just now already cracked so many layers of barriers and it even touched the innermost barrier, wounding the barrier ability users.

The first and second barrier layers which were the outer layers were already shattered to pieces and the other five layers all had huge cracks.

The barrier ability users and those in charge of the barrier machine worked their a*s off while the warriors fought the mammoth!

Ainsley also let the Godfather to possess her and immediately joined the hard fight.

The first batch of attacks came from Thomas, but when it landed on the mammoth's massive body, it only created small explosions.

The explosions were real, but the mammoth didn't even flinch.

To everyone's surprise, even when the Godfather wanted to use this chance to suck the mammoth's blood dry, he found something entirely creepy.

The mammoth didn't even bleed from the few small explosions just now!

It means the mammoth was safe and sound with no scratches at all!

When Thomas got the news, his face instantly paled.

"No! It's impossible! My weapons can even rival offensive ability users. There's no way that beast isn't wounded at all!"

The Godfather in Ainsley's body let out a long sigh as he floated in the air using the blood wings.

"This lord knows the news sounded fake. But it's real. There's no wound to draw, and this lord can't control that beast's blood."

The Godfather actually could control a living being's blood inside their body even when they weren't bleeding.

He had planned to use this difficult skill to defeat the mammoth and chase it away, but...

He couldn't control this mammoth's blood at all.

Because it was frozen.

Yes. The Godfather could freeze and condense blood to create weapons, but what he could manipulate was liquid blood.

It didn't include frozen blood.

Surprisingly, the mammoth had frozen blood!

Ainsley and the others couldn't believe it when the Godfather told them.

[Impossible! How can a beast be alive when its blood is frozen?? This is not logical at all unless the mammoth has a unique body condition—]

Ainsley was talking to the Godfather through telepathy when she paused.

Well, if the mammoth had a unique body that could move with frozen blood...maybe it could really live normally?

B-but it was just...just weird!

The Godfather tried to probe the mammoth's inner body through its blood once more but the conclusion was still the same.

[This beast's blood is condensed and not liquid at all. Maybe it's not frozen blood but crystallized blood.]

The mammoth was an ice crystal type of mammoth. It was not strange if it had crystallized blood.

But if that's the case, the Godfather's blood manipulation ability would be useless.

The Godfather suddenly thought that maybe...the beast was smart enough to use a secret bloodline skill to crystallize its blood so that he couldn't control the mammoth's blood?

Indeed. While the Godfather was taken aback by this unexpected result, the mammoth talked to the frozen butterfly with a few grunts as their secret communication method.

[Gegeheh, those humans are so dumb. Do they think we can't investigate them and their abilities? Bah!]

The mammoth snorted as it launched another blizzard attack on the surrounding area, strengthening its allies but wearing off the barrier's durability.

The butterfly's white antenna moved for a few seconds and it replied using its own unique soundwave.

[Pffftt. These humans still think that no matter how smart we are, we are just dumber than them. But I think these humans are dumb to think like that.]

The butterfly's voice was soft like a lady, but the malice inside her voice was so thick that it would send a shiver down anyone's spine.

On the other hand, the mammoth had a deep uncle-like voice and it was also full of arrogance.

The butterfly didn't mind partnering with a beast since these wild beasts had become a part of their thousand-year plan to change the world.

[Anyway, no one can threaten us here. Just kill more strong humans to weaken the human races, and then we retreat.]

The butterfly didn't forget to remind the mammoth of its purpose.

The Godlif country wasn't the only human country who had been facing a beast and monster tide every single year.

Other countries' capital cities have also faced this problem for the last few hundred years.

It had been a tradition and a common phenomenon that no one questioned why this tide happened each year.

Not to mention other non-human races also face the same problem, but they only get it once every decade.

It seemed like the monsters and beasts were targeting the humans more than other non-human races.

[Okay, okay, milady. We have to smash the barrier first before we can kill those strong humans!]

Chapter 982: "Deadly Snowflakes"

To be honest, the mammoth was always helpless in front of the frozen butterfly.

Thus, while he talked, he secretly cast a glance at Ainsley and the other team leaders to avoid the butterfly's calm gaze.

Really...

They had failed to kill the team leaders of the dawn shift a few hours ago, and now, they had to kill at least a few elite bosses to complete their missions.

[Lady butterfly, can't you just teleport some beasts and monsters to kill those bosses?]

The mammoth casually swung his trunk to the barrier, adding more damage to the newly-repaired barrier.

So far, it had only attacked using its physical strength and not using its unique abilities.

The butterfly flapped its wings gently while shaking its antenna.

[Those generals can't kill these elite bosses so easily. I have a plan, big mammoth. Just wait and see.]

The butterfly's voice was as gentle as ever, but the mammoth suddenly pitied the humans.

Ahh, even the great mammoth-like him couldn't beat this butterfly lady in a one-to-one fight.

Now that the butterfly wanted to make a move...these humans would be done for.

[Then, I'll keep the ants busy with our people while you target their bosses.]

The mammoth compared other people aside from the five bosses as ants.

No matter how unique their abilities were, they weren't worth killing as much as the five bosses.

[Oh hey, the big boss reminded us to kill as many elites as possible. Especially that little baby.]

The mammoth didn't forget to look at Ainsley, who was currently possessed by the Godfather.

If humans could study beasts and monsters, they could also study dangerous humans with huge potential.

This baby is on their top target list.

[If we don't kill her now, she will grow to be extremely strong, and she might even disturb our thousand-year plan.]

The butterfly had never heard about this, but she knew that the mammoth was close to a beast with a fortune-telling ability.

That beast must be the one telling the mammoth about the little baby.

The butterfly lady flapped her wings gently and couldn't help but giggle sharply.

[I don't see how unique this baby is, but since you said so, we can target her first. I think the legendary spirit by her side will be good nourishment for our big boss.]

Because their big boss could eat dead spirits.

[Let me send them some 'gifts'.]

The butterfly flew closer to the barrier, and when it flapped its wings once more, the wings lit up in blue light.

The ice on the wings melted slightly, and countless tiny snowflakes rained down the battlefield.

Strangely, the snowflakes turned into small butterflies the size of one's thumb.

It seemed alive even when it was made of snowflakes!

The snowflake butterflies were hidden perfectly inside the blizzard, and even when they approached the barrier, it was unnoticed.

Even more dangerous, they could enter the barrier without getting killed or expelled!

These snowflake butterflies melted a small part of the barrier, small enough for one of them to enter.

So many snowflake butterflies did the same thing to the barrier, but because their size was so small, no one noticed the phenomenon.

Even until they entered the barrier, due to their white and slightly-transparent bodies, it was hard to detect these snowflake butterflies!

Even if humans could see the butterflies, they would also ignore them because the butterflies resembled floating snowflakes so much that others wouldn't think it was alive.

The snowflake butterflies easily penetrated the barrier and approached some of the elite-level humans among the crowd.

Some bigger snowflake butterflies even targeted Ainsley and the other four leaders.

People only knew that the frozen butterfly could teleport monsters and beasts randomly, but they didn't know that such a high-level monster had more than one ability.

Her other abilities included the 'butterfly effect' ability, the snowflake butterfly minions and one more ability related to healing using snowflakes.

The one she's using now was undoubtedly the snowflake butterfly minions.

Just like its name, the snowflake butterfly minions allowed the frozen butterfly to control these small butterflies and became her avatar or something.

Through the small butterflies, she could see, hear, smell, and even used a part of her other abilities, such as mass-teleportation.

The reason why the frozen butterfly could control her teleportation ability well enough was because she used these butterfly minions as her marking target.

Then, she just had to send monsters and beasts to the area around the snowflake butterflies.

This is the same trick as the one she used before, but now, the frozen butterfly didn't intend to do the same thing twice.

The snowflake butterflies actually had other uses...and that's what she would use now.

Some small snowflake butterflies had touched the people at the frontline behind the first few layers of the barrier.

Then, the person who felt the cold touch on their body would be sluggish for a few seconds.

The use of their abilities would be stagnant for a while, and they would subconsciously feel sleepy.

The moment they couldn't fight their sleepiness, it was then they finally fell into the butterfly illusion.

The butterfly wings' pattern had a hypnotic effect and just a small amount was enough to affect those who had let down their guard because of their sleepiness.

The cold air brought by these butterflies was enough to make ability users feel sleepy, especially when they hadn't eaten lunch yet.

All of them were tired from fighting and facing sudden sleepiness.

That's why most of the ability users couldn't resist it.

When they fell into an illusion, their body slowly froze from the tip of their toe up to their upper body and then finally, their whole body would freeze too!

Chapter 983: "Deadly Snowflakes"

To be honest, the mammoth was always helpless in front of the frozen butterfly.

Thus, while he talked, he secretly cast a glance at Ainsley and the other team leaders to avoid the butterfly's calm gaze.

Really...

They had failed to kill the team leaders of the dawn shift a few hours ago, and now, they had to kill at least a few elite bosses to complete their missions.

[Lady butterfly, can't you just teleport some beasts and monsters to kill those bosses?]

The mammoth casually swung his trunk to the barrier, adding more damage to the newly-repaired barrier.

So far, it had only attacked using its physical strength and not using its unique abilities.

The butterfly flapped its wings gently while shaking its antenna.

[Those generals can't kill these elite bosses so easily. I have a plan, big mammoth. Just wait and see.]

The butterfly's voice was as gentle as ever, but the mammoth suddenly pitied the humans.

Ahh, even the great mammoth-like him couldn't beat this butterfly lady in a one-to-one fight.

Now that the butterfly wanted to make a move...these humans would be done for.

[Then, I'll keep the ants busy with our people while you target their bosses.]

The mammoth compared other people aside from the five bosses as ants.

No matter how unique their abilities were, they weren't worth killing as much as the five bosses.

[Oh hey, the big boss reminded us to kill as many elites as possible. Especially that little baby.]

The mammoth didn't forget to look at Ainsley, who was currently possessed by the Godfather.

If humans could study beasts and monsters, they could also study dangerous humans with huge potential.

This baby is on their top target list.

[If we don't kill her now, she will grow to be extremely strong, and she might even disturb our thousand-year plan.]

The butterfly had never heard about this, but she knew that the mammoth was close to a beast with a fortune-telling ability.

That beast must be the one telling the mammoth about the little baby.

The butterfly lady flapped her wings gently and couldn't help but giggle sharply.

[I don't see how unique this baby is, but since you said so, we can target her first. I think the legendary spirit by her side will be good nourishment for our big boss.]

Because their big boss could eat dead spirits.

[Let me send them some 'gifts'.]

The butterfly flew closer to the barrier, and when it flapped its wings once more, the wings lit up in blue light.

The ice on the wings melted slightly, and countless tiny snowflakes rained down the battlefield.

Strangely, the snowflakes turned into small butterflies the size of one's thumb.

It seemed alive even when it was made of snowflakes!

The snowflake butterflies were hidden perfectly inside the blizzard, and even when they approached the barrier, it was unnoticed.

Even more dangerous, they could enter the barrier without getting killed or expelled!

These snowflake butterflies melted a small part of the barrier, small enough for one of them to enter.

So many snowflake butterflies did the same thing to the barrier, but because their size was so small, no one noticed the phenomenon.

Even until they entered the barrier, due to their white and slightly-transparent bodies, it was hard to detect these snowflake butterflies!

Even if humans could see the butterflies, they would also ignore them because the butterflies resembled floating snowflakes so much that others wouldn't think it was alive.

The snowflake butterflies easily penetrated the barrier and approached some of the elite-level humans among the crowd.

Some bigger snowflake butterflies even targeted Ainsley and the other four leaders.

People only knew that the frozen butterfly could teleport monsters and beasts randomly, but they didn't know that such a high-level monster had more than one ability.

Her other abilities included the 'butterfly effect' ability, the snowflake butterfly minions and one more ability related to healing using snowflakes.

The one she's using now was undoubtedly the snowflake butterfly minions.

Just like its name, the snowflake butterfly minions allowed the frozen butterfly to control these small butterflies and became her avatar or something.

Through the small butterflies, she could see, hear, smell, and even used a part of her other abilities, such as mass-teleportation.

The reason why the frozen butterfly could control her teleportation ability well enough was because she used these butterfly minions as her marking target.

Then, she just had to send monsters and beasts to the area around the snowflake butterflies.

This is the same trick as the one she used before, but now, the frozen butterfly didn't intend to do the same thing twice.

The snowflake butterflies actually had other uses...and that's what she would use now.

Some small snowflake butterflies had touched the people at the frontline behind the first few layers of the barrier.

Then, the person who felt the cold touch on their body would be sluggish for a few seconds.

The use of their abilities would be stagnant for a while, and they would subconsciously feel sleepy.

The moment they couldn't fight their sleepiness, it was then they finally fell into the butterfly illusion.

The butterfly wings' pattern had a hypnotic effect and just a small amount was enough to affect those who had let down their guard because of their sleepiness.

The cold air brought by these butterflies was enough to make ability users feel sleepy, especially when they hadn't eaten lunch yet.

All of them were tired from fighting and facing sudden sleepiness.

That's why most of the ability users couldn't resist it.

When they fell into an illusion, their body slowly froze from the tip of their toe up to their upper body and then finally, their whole body would freeze too!

Chapter 984: "The Barrier Mechanism"

The freezing process was so fast, yet people couldn't even see the ice layer on the victims' bodies!

Actually, the ones freezing were the victim's inner organs and not the outer body.

The moment the victim's heart got frozen, they would lose their life.

At first, no one noticed anything, but when many people felt sleepy at the same time and some even suddenly 'fainted' with purple lips and pale faces...

The leaders realized something was wrong.

"What happens? How come so many people fainted now?"

Ainsley got the report from Scob and his people that some members of her guild had fainted with purple lips and pale faces.

It seemed as if they were sleeping peacefully, but Ainsley got bad omens here.

Indeed. The stronger members only fainted before they slowly lost their lives but weaker members would all die within minutes.

Not long after Ainsley asked Scob, other bosses' subordinates also reported to the four bosses and instantly told them the sudden death news.

"Not good! Some members have died for no reason at all!"

Ainsley and the others instantly looked at the messenger with gloomy faces.

"What's going on? What did the doctors say?"

Lescorpio rarely talked yet now, he urged the messenger to speak faster because his people also fainted and some died from freezing!

"T-the doctors said that it's due to freezing, but t-the temperature inside the barrier remains warm..."

The messenger also didn't know what was going on.

So many people died or fainted, but the reason was because of the low temperature?

It's impossible!

At the moment, the Godfather wasn't possessing Ainsley because the baby needed a break after trying to exhaust the mammoth's blood but to no avail.

When the Godfather saw the weird phenomenon, he immediately used his sharp senses, which were sharper than ability users and really saw something strange.

[Lil Lass. How come there are snowflakes inside the barrier?]

It was hard to see whether the snowflakes came from the blizzard outside of the barrier or not because the barrier was transparent, and people could easily misunderstand things.

But the Godfather could see things much clearer than others due to his identity as a spirit.

When he saw tiny snowflakes falling inside the barrier, he instantly became suspicious of the snowflakes.

Snowflakes inside the barrier? Isn't that strange? Anything strange means danger!

Ainsley didn't bother to investigate and immediately used the watchtower's loudspeaker to remind everyone.

"Everyone, avoid touching the snowflakes! These snowflakes might be the enemy's tricks! Repeat. Don't touch the snowflakes!"

Not everyone on the battlefield was Ainsley's subordinate but they had been used to listening to her warning when they worked together yesterday.

After knowing that the Godfather backed the baby, everyone believed in her command.

Since the baby also protected them, they were more than willing to listen to her.

Now that Ainsley suddenly told them to avoid the fluttering snowflakes, everyone immediately paid attention to their surroundings.

They wanted to see whether there were any snowflakes around!

Indeed. After the people paid attention to their surroundings, they saw many snowflakes falling onto the people standing at the city wall.

The amount of snowflakes was huge because there was a blizzard outside of the barrier.

Maybe the snowflakes were brought here by the wind.

Anyway, since snowflakes weren't dangerous, would the barrier let them in casually?

But the sharp and witty people instantly realized that something was wrong.

The barrier would never let any strange materials enter the city because the amount of miasma inside the city alone was already dangerous.

If the barrier couldn't filter things like miasma, the capital would have become a poisonous greenhouse a long time ago.

All barriers made of machines or ability users could stop things from entering but it wouldn't stop things from exiting the wall.

Unless the barrier controller made it impossible for others to escape the barrier.

Because of this, everyone could launch various attacks on the wild beasts and monsters outside without stepping out of the barrier.

They didn't even make a hole in the barrier. Only external impact could shatter the barrier.

So, the question is...

How could the barrier let the snowflakes pour inside?

The city wall area should have kept the temperature warm because the mammoth outside would make the environment freezing.

If the barrier let the snowflakes enter the area, wouldn't all of them die from extreme cold sooner or later?

Thus, the members instantly felt that the snowflakes weren't your usual snowflakes!

Everyone tried to avoid the snowflakes but then there were too many snowflakes and they were too small.

Although the biggest snowflake butterfly was the size of a baby's thumb, the other snowflake butterflies were as small as real snowflakes.

But they could ride the strong wind and fall onto humans to continue freezing their organs.

The ability users tried to dodge the snowflakes, but once the snowflakes landed on them, they would all feel sleepy.

Then, one person would be crowded by more than one snowflake butterfly.

Even if they were elites and had a strong mentality, they couldn't fight their sleepiness for too long.

In the end, they were still frozen inside and fainted. If they weren't rescued in time, they would die.

When Ainsley and the other four leaders knew the truth behind the dangerous snowflakes, all of them suddenly felt a chill down their spines.

"These snowflakes can make our people faint or die in a few minutes?! What kind of snowflake is this??"

Thomas was so agitated that he wanted to rush to see his people.

His people weren't as strong as other offensive-type ability users in the team.

They were more likely to die because of this strange snowflake compared to other ability users!

Chapter 985: "The Frozen Butterfly Starts To Attack"

Scob's people were the same. They were also weak and could die easier than other fighters.

But because they were essentially farmers, they had tougher physiques and they couldn't die as easily as Thomas' people.

Not to mention that because they needed to deal with all sorts of special pests, they were the first ones to realize the true form of these snowflakes.

Before Thomas could rush out of the watchtower to see his people, Scob's messenger had already climbed the tower and shouted out loud.

"Report! Emergency! The farmer's ability users found something about the snowflake!"

The messenger didn't let the five bosses interrupt him and immediately continued his speech, albeit he was about to faint from exhaustion.

"T-the snowflake's true form is a small butterfly in the shape of a snowflake! These snowflakes are butterflies! They're the enemy's minions!"

When the messenger said that, some snowflakes also got blown by the wind and landed on his shoulder.

He was already so tired that once he got the illusion, he fell asleep in an instant and fainted in no time.

BRUGH!

It only took less than a minute for the man to fall to the ground with a stiff body and illing air around his body.

!!

"Freo!"

Scob hurriedly tried to touch his person, but he accidentally saw the snowflake butterfly on Freo's shoulder slowly melt and merge with Freo's body.

The snowflake butterfly couldn't live long.

The moment it touched the target, it would subconsciously let out illusions to make the target sleepy and then it would melt.

The body would melt and merge into the target's body, freezing the organs from the inside.

In some cases, the target had already died before they could even faint. But Freo was lucky enough to have a good physique.

He only fainted at first, and then the butterfly slowly melted to enter his body and freeze his organs from the inside.

When Scob saw this strange thing, he knew he shouldn't touch Freo's body so casually.

What he could do is to call some healers and doctors who were still alive and kicking!

"Healer! Healer! Doctor! Come here! Freo needs your help!!"

Scob gritted his teeth and cast a cautious look around him, afraid that some snowflake butterflies would also land on his body.

At the same time, while the ability users were all trying to fight these super small snowflake butterflies, the reinforcement was already on the way to their area.

Bello and Cellino, who previously stayed at the mansion, also followed the team at Ainsley's request.

Two sacred beasts could hold back the frozen butterfly and the giant ice crystal mammoth!

Unfortunately, the frozen butterfly also knew that the reinforcement was coming.

Her snowflake butterflies flew everywhere and they acted as her five senses.

Thus, this butterfly knew that it's time to make the people here more chaotic before killing the five leaders...

In an instant, the rest of the snowflake butterflies didn't land on the ability users but became a targeting tool to teleport monsters and beasts!

The frozen butterfly looked at the giant mammoth, who continued to create a blizzard and attack the barrier using its trunk and crystal tusks.

[Big mammoth, cover me! I'll teleport the generals now!]

When the frozen butterfly used her spatial ability to teleport the monsters and beasts, she couldn't move at all and would be so vulnerable that anyone could easily kill her.

This is why she partnered with the mammoth, who had such a huge body, suitable to be her shield.

Not to mention its fur and skin were so thick that so far, it hadn't been wounded at all.

Hearing the butterfly's request, the mammoth immediately gestured for the butterfly to hide behind him.

[Quick, hide behind! I'll also have some big guys cover you from all sides.]

The mammoth didn't forget to roar to call back some huge guys such as an ape, a brontosaurus-like monster, and other tall guys to go to their place.

Everyone at the city wall was too busy to care about the beasts' sudden movement, so they didn't see the big guys retreating to protect the butterfly.

After they were ready, the butterfly landed on the brontosaurus-like monster's long neck and suddenly became motionless.

This was when the butterfly got its name— the frozen butterfly.

Because when she's using her teleportation ability on her subordinates, her body is covered in a thin layer of ice, and she becomes a frozen butterfly.

If someone shattered her at the moment, she would instantly die without a struggle.

It looked easy to kill the frozen butterfly when she was in this state, but the monsters and beasts assigned to guard her were all behemoths.

It would be hard to approach the frozen butterfly to kill her.

Maybe one could kill her from afar, but these monsters and beasts also had defensive abilities and could protect the frozen butterfly.

Thus, the frozen butterfly was near-invincible as she started to send low-level and mid-level monsters or beasts to the city wall.

Using the snowflake butterflies as her targeting tool, her aim never missed.

The frozen butterfly deliberately sent many monsters and beasts around Ainsley and the other four leaders.

It was all so that she could fish in muddy water.

Her first priority was, of course— Ainsley Sloan.

Ainsley and the others had just cracked the mystery behind the fake snowflake and were about to kill all the snowflake butterflies when suddenly....

Tons of monsters and beasts of various sizes popped out next to them!

Some beasts and monsters appeared mid-air, and with their body size, when they fell to the ground on their legs, they almost killed some ability users.

"ROARRR."

"GRRR!"

"KAAA!"

More than fifty monsters and beasts suddenly appeared and attacked the ability users!

Chapter 986: "The Frozen Butterfly's Trick"

Even flying-type monsters and beasts also popped out of the blue, and since the location of the snowflake, the butterfly wasn't that far from the ability users...

The flying-type monsters and beasts' appearance instantly killed many ability users who were caught off guard.

The flying-type enemies used their wings to kill and with their advantage alone, they had killed many elite members in less than five minutes!

The monsters and beasts' sudden appearance caught everyone off guard.

In this situation, no matter how trained they were, they would panic and create chaos.

"Ahhhh! The monsters and the beasts bypassed the barrier! The frozen butterfly has started to attack us!"

This situation was something Ainsley and the other four leaders had expected before.

But they didn't think it would be this severe.

The number of beasts and monsters that the enemy teleported to their city wall was more than those sent to the dawn team before them.

It was as if the enemy purposely targeted them harder than the previous shift's team!

Ainsley didn't have time to care about other members. Her focus was on her people, who were also in trouble.

"Everyone, immediately tame the nearest monster or beast and use them to protect you!"

Ainsley's guild members didn't seem as strong as Dskyla's Valkyrie or Lescorpio's men.

But when facing monsters and beasts, they were better than other members.

When the flying-type beasts and monsters, along with other types, suddenly popped out to attack them, the guild members subconsciously reacted.

They subconsciously used their charm ability on the monster or the beast who wanted to attack them.

This response was purely reflexive, and the guild members didn't even think of using their abilities to harm the enemies purposely.

Still, the training they had before they came to the capital enabled them to use their ability anytime and anywhere, even when they were caught off guard.

Because of this, the monsters and the beasts were distracted by the charm for a while and that few seconds of distraction saved countless guild members' lives.

Unlike other people who couldn't use their ability fast enough to protect themselves under the sneak attack, the Irregular Tamers obviously did better.

Most of them managed to save their lives and only got some small wounds.

The weaker ones were wounded quite gravely, but their lives were saved.

Just looking at this situation alone, the irregular tamers didn't suffer too many casualties.

On the other hand, the other leaders' forces suffered greatly.

Countless people died without a complete corpse.

The city wall was slowly dyed with red blood, and the smell of blood was so thick that weak-hearted people would puke right away.

And this isn't the worst case.

Amidst the chaos, a few thumb-sized snowflake butterflies touched the four leaders aside from Ainsley.

At this moment, Ainsley was actually busy killing as many beasts and monsters as possible to prevent the city wall from being breached.

It was clear that the enemy's target wasn't to let the beasts and monsters enter the capital city.

Their goal was simply to slaughter the humans on top of the city wall!

That's why Ainsley activated her shaman ability once more and got the Godfather to possess her.

Using the blood spilt on the city wall, the blood of the brave warriors, Ainsley slayed countless monsters and beasts before they could use their special abilities.

She used the blood of the dead to avenge the dead.

Since blood was something vital and could represent the living, using the dead people's blood to kill the monsters and the beasts indirectly made the dead contribute to the living people.

Even after they died, their blood could still kill countless monsters and beasts who would kill their companions.

The other four leaders' forces saw this scene, and the remaining people couldn't help but silently shed tears.

No wonder the Sloan Family members were loyal to the death.

Their big boss would do anything to avenge the dead and make it so that their death wouldn't end up in vain.

Warriors like them never expected a peaceful death but what they couldn't accept was the fact that they might die in vain.

The people who were caught off guard in the sneak attack all died in vain, but Ainsley used the blood they split when they died to kill the enemies.

This way, their death wouldn't be in vain and they actually killed more enemies when they're dead compared to when they were alive.

The Godfather and Ainsley worked seamlessly to either kill the enemies or tame the enemies to fight each other.

However, after they nearly cleaned up the city wall from the enemy attack just by relying on the blood manipulation ability, the Godfather's sixth sense was tingling.

Just now, the thumb-sized snowflake butterflies had all landed on the four leaders and before anyone could react...

The leaders disappeared, replaced with a few ferocious monsters and beasts.

No one knew that the frozen butterfly's snowflake butterfly minions' ability actually had one more use aside from the mass freezing.

They could act as a catalyst to replace people.

The frozen butterfly could use the snowflake butterflies as target tools.

She could also use the snowflake butterflies to exchange the humans' location with monsters and the beasts.

However, this skill required a lot of energy, and that's why she could only 'kidnap' the four leaders and let them land in the middle of countless monsters and beasts outside of the barrier.

Because the two sides exchanged places, it means the four leaders would end up among the beasts and monsters' tide, but the beasts and monsters would land safely on the city wall.

This is the 'trick' the butterfly lady told the giant mammoth before!

Chapter 987: "Swapping Place"

The Godfather's sixth sense came from sensing danger just as he finished the wild monsters and beasts sent to the city wall.

And indeed, a thumb-sized snowflake butterfly had just landed on Ainsley's head, and before the two people could react, the scenery around them suddenly changed.

Ainsley could feel the space being distorted, and she suddenly appeared in the middle of a beast and monster tide.

The baby's body instantly felt uncomfortable because of the forced teleportation, and her head went dizzy.

Her stomach was churning, and she might puke anytime.

But the one controlling her body now was the veteran Godfather, who had faced so many strange things before.

Just being forcefully teleported...it was not a big deal.

The big deal was that.... they were in the middle of a raging monster and beast tide!

The Godfather's reflex was good, and even when his brain hadn't reacted...

His body already subconsciously used the blood he collected before to create a protective ball around the baby's body.

A millisecond after the blood barrier appeared, the surrounding monsters and beasts instantly rammed into the blood barrier.

If the Godfather were slower by a millisecond, Ainsley's body would have been crushed under such an attack.

Ainsley was lucky to have the Godfather, but the other four weren't so lucky.

Scob and Thomas were the unluckiest bunch.

Thomas was actually still quite lucky. The moment he realized he was teleported away, he used a life-saving pod and could successfully save his little life.

But it didn't mean he wasn't injured.

He was injured so heavily that he would die if there weren't any medicine inside the life-saving pod.

After all, he was thrown in the middle of the monster and beast tide.

Even if the monsters and the beasts didn't purposely attack him, accidents could occur anytime.

He was kicked hard by the running monsters and beasts, almost losing his legs and arms.

If not for his life-saving pod owning the best medical technology he could own at the moment, he would have lost his arms and legs.

Scob wasn't as lucky as Thomas. He was essentially a farmer. Thus, he didn't have a good defensive ability or a life-saving tool.

He directly lost both legs and one arm.

Thankfully, he's also an elite. While enduring the pain, the super farmer threw a mysterious seed to the ground and grew it wildly.

Then, the seed became a huge sturdy mushroom with a healing feature.

The mushroom was like a house for Scob and since it also had a disguise ability, Scob was currently safe from the rampaging beasts and monsters outside.

The mushroom could also withstand the cold weather and that's how Scob didn't freeze to death.

A pity...the mushroom's healing feature could keep Scob's life but couldn't restore his legs and arm.

At the same time, Dskyla, who was also thrown into the beast and monster tide, instantly summoned her flying-type beast and managed to get away from the monsters and beasts below.

But the sky wasn't exactly as safe as the ground.

The tough woman had to fight countless flying-type monsters who surrounded her, trying to tear her to pieces.

While fighting, the woman quietly flew to the city wall to enter the barrier and keep the monsters outside of the barrier.

Now, what about our silent boss?

Lescorpio was usually a close-combat fighter.

Now that he was thrown in the middle of beasts and monsters, his ability was instantly pushed to the max.

Before he was crushed to death, he crushed others to death.

Still, he fought so many times and he would also fall sooner or later.

Lescorpio had no choice but to summon his contracted beast and monster to protect him while he ran back to the barrier.

He also didn't want to stay outside of the barrier without anything to protect him.

The frozen butterfly could see all of this and was surprised when she saw the five bosses didn't die.

All of them were wounded more or less, but none of them died.

Especially Ainsley.

That baby only got some skin injuries, and she suffered so little wounds compared to the other four bosses.

It's no wonder that the person who could control blood would not die so easily.

Worst comes to worst, they could control their own blood to protect their vitals and survive to the end.

Seeing this, the frozen butterfly who was already sure that at least one of the five bosses would die, instantly felt a deep shame.

Her voice trembled as she spoke to the giant mammoth who was standing still to guard her.

[The plan failed! The five bosses didn't die! Hurry and target them before they go back to the barrier!]

The frozen butterfly knew that no matter how hard they tried to crush the barrier, it would be impossible.

After all, the country could withstand their attacks for so many years— if the barrier couldn't protect them, the humans would have long died.

At the same time, the frozen butterfly's snowflake butterfly minion gave her a vision related to the reinforcement team.

Through the fluttering snowflake butterfly, she could see the reinforcement team had already reached the city wall and was now helping to treat the wounded!

Then, to make things worse, among the reinforcement, there were two sacred beasts...

The giant mammoth was close to being a sacred beast but he's not a sacred beast yet.

The same goes for the frozen butterfly. At most, she's as strong as Zilla, Ainsley's giant Godzilla monster.

The frozen butterfly panicked and suddenly considered whether to use her trump card ability– the butterfly effect.

This ability would definitely crush everyone else without an exception. Even the Godfather would lose!

Chapter 988: "Besieged By The Four Behemoths"

Just like the name suggested, the butterfly effect means a little flap of her wings could affect the cause and effect law of this world.

This is her unique bloodline that could only be used once in exchange for all her abilities and strength.

Of course, she could still keep her life, but that's it.

In exchange for the huge price to pay, when using the ability, she would be like a God who could control everything and anything in the radius of several hundred kilometers.

Even if she wanted all the humans to die, she could do that.

But the big boss had told her not to use this ability because it was their trump card and they couldn't use it so rashly.

Thinking again, maybe the big mammoth could still kill the five leaders without having to use her butterfly effect ability.

Thus, the frozen butterfly stopped using her teleportation ability and started to flap her wings toward the mammoth's huge back.

[Big mammoth, kill the five bosses! I saw two of them greatly wounded. Let's target those two first.]

As for Dskyla and Lescorpio...

The butterfly used her superior monster rank to command other monsters to attack Dskyla until the woman died under the siege.

Then, she also made the mammoth command the beasts to keep attacking Lescorpio before he could return to the city wall.

Both people didn't have any teleportation items because only first-class forces like Ainsley could have such a precious item.

Considering the long distance between their current location and the city wall itself, it would take them thirty minutes to reach the city wall.

In these thirty minutes, the surrounding monsters and beasts were determined to kill the two vulnerable humans outside of the barrier.

Just how long could the two people survive?

Not to mention that the mammoth had started to walk toward Scob's giant mushroom while the frozen butterfly went to Thomas' life-saving pod.

The few other behemoths who acted as the butterfly's bodyguards went to get Ainsley instead.

The frozen butterfly and the mammoth didn't underestimate Ainsley, but they focused more on killing some leaders to achieve something.

That way, even if they couldn't kill Ainsley, they wouldn't disappoint their leader too much by killing at least two elite bosses.

Ainsley didn't know about the monster and the beast conspiracy.

All she knew was that Bello and Cellino suddenly spoke in her mind. Each of them sounded more worried than the former.

[Nyaaa! NYAAA! Are you okay, nyaaa? I'm on the way, nyaaa! Hold on!]

[Master, master! Are you okay, awoooo??]

Cellino was a wind ability user, and he's usually reliable.

Unfortunately, facing the blizzard, he was a bit helpless. He could control the wind so that the blizzard grew smaller.

But if he wanted to use his wind ability to attack, the blizzard would counter his skill or might even grow bigger under his wind-manipulation ability.

Because of this, Cellino suddenly felt that he's the weakest sacred beast in the world.

Other sacred beasts had more than one ability, and each of their abilities was unique.

But he only had this wind-manipulation ability, and his majestic roar...

Essentially, all sacred beasts had a majestic roar that could be called a special ability.

So in a sense, he's useless.

He didn't have any unique ability and his wind-manipulation ability couldn't even rival Vallan's wind-manipulation ability.

Why is he so weak?

While Cellino was blaming himself yet kept running toward the barrier, Bello had already changed into his beast form— a huge black panther.

Strangely, the black panther took out some beasts' corpses and revived them on the spot!

As a necromancer, although he could only summon a few souls at a time and couldn't summon them after they were used, he still had a habit of collecting strong corpses.

Including sacred beast's corpses and monsters' corpses at the same level as a sacred beast.

If he's lucky, he could summon a suitable soul for the string corpse and make the revived corpse an excellent combat power.

It was clear what Bello wanted to do.

On the other hand, Ainsley and the Godfather had just realized that a few behemoths suddenly approached them, and the giant mammoth also moved somewhere else.

Not to mention that the frozen butterfly also flew away! She seemed to be approaching a ball-like thing not far from their place?

Ainsley couldn't care about the ball-like thing because at the moment... there were already two high-level monsters and two high-level beasts walking in her direction.

The Godfather already knew that the four things would not be good news, and each of them was quite powerful, powerful enough that the Godfather was worried for Ainsley.

[Lil brat, can you release Ava? Let that raptor distract one of the monsters to lessen our burden.]

One of the two monsters was not as big as the brontosaurus-like monster.

It actually looked more like a giant raptor, which was why the Godfather wanted Ava to fight it.

Ainsley didn't hesitate to agree and immediately let out Ava from her dimensional bracelet.

She didn't need to worry about Ava losing to that high-level monster because Ava was also a high-level monster now.

Not to mention that other monsters and beasts' attention weren't on her but somewhere else.

Only the four behemoths came to attack Ainsley.

This way, Ainsley didn't need to worry about Ava getting attacked by a wild monster or a wild beast while she fought the giant raptor monster.

The moment Ava came out of the dimensional bracelet, Ainsley immediately commanded her.

[Ava, attack that giant raptor and keep it busy! If you can, just kill it! I believe in your ability. You're now also a high-level monster. You can do this!]

Chapter 989: "Ava Display Of Power"

When Ava became a high-level monster, she not only had the metal manipulation ability, but her speed and physical strength also increased.

Then, she gained another ability— which was the ability to create clones.

It was like kagebunshin no jutsu.

Ava might be way smaller than the giant raptor as tall as a three-story building, but with the clones, she wouldn't necessarily lose against the giant raptor.

Ava let out a loud roar unique to a raptor as she nodded at Ainsley.

[Got it!]

The raptor immediately activated her clone ability, and in an instant, more than ten raptors like Ava popped out of the blue.

This clone ability was strong not only because it could fool enemies and add allies to themselves but because each clone could also use the metal manipulation ability!

The only drawback is that the energy consumption is simply over the roof, and if the clones are so heavily wounded that they die, Ava will also be affected more or less.

Usually, before a clone could die, Ava would have retracted that heavily injured clone and then created a brand new clone.

This way, she wouldn't suffer anything and could continue to conjure new clones as long as her special energy was enough.

With Ainsley here as her master, Ava could use as many energy crystals as possible to replenish her energy.

Actually, unlike humans, monsters and beasts didn't use energy crystals to replenish their energy.

The monsters usually ate other monsters' cores to upgrade themselves or replenish their energy, while the beasts used a kind of stone similar to a crystal.

But it was not a colorful crystal.

People called it the fallen energy crystal.

For Ava to replenish her energy, she needed a monster core. No matter if it was a low-level monster or a mid-level monster.

As Ava's master, Ainsley naturally stored many monster cores each time she killed a monster.

By now, the monster cores had occupied a lot of space inside her storage necklace.

Thus, Ava could fight recklessly and Ainsley could totally support her.

Ava and her clones had already dashed to the giant raptor with bodies full of majestic aura.

They knew they had to avoid getting trampled to death by these behemoths, so the momma raptor and her clones immediately jumped high and pounced on the giant raptor.

Their movements were so fast that the giant raptor hadn't reacted when Ava and all her clones already bit the giant raptor's body with their sharp teeth.

Immediately after that, each of them activated their metal manipulation ability and created countless metal spears.

The spears instantly stabbed deeply into the giant raptor's body, giving it enough injury and pain!

"GRAAOOO!!" The giant raptor instantly roared in both pain and anger. It tried to shake off the little raptors on his body but to no avail!

The more he struggled, the fiercer the 'small' raptors would be.

At this point, the giant raptor no longer relied on its physical advantage and seriously used its special ability to fight back.

The giant raptor and Ava were entangled in a fierce battle.

The other behemoths couldn't interfere and could only stare at Ainsley's body on the ground with cold eyes.

[What a cunning human. No wonder the lady butterfly wants to kill her.]

The brontosaurus-like monster called Brother Bronto snorted while moving his long neck uncomfortably.

The other two beasts— one armored giraffe and one purple ape also looked at Ainsley with eyes full of wariness.

They didn't dare to underestimate Ainsley.

What if the baby also summoned more elite monsters or beasts to deal with them, just like how she deals with the giant raptor?

Still, the three behemoths couldn't continue to stare like this and had to start attacking.

Ainsley herself also didn't run away from the three behemoths, knowing that if she ran, the three enemies might kill her people the next second.

These three would be a hidden danger, and she had to solve them once and for all!

At this moment, the Godfather who was controlling Ainsley's body had consumed a few energy crystals to replenish his body.

At the same time, Ainsley was making a plan with the Godfather.

[Uncle Godfather, can you fight the purple ape and the armored giraffe? I'll try to tame the Bronto Monster first.]

It was indeed easier to tame beasts, but beasts with higher intelligence than monsters could also realize her trick and subconsciously resist her charm.

If it was like this, the chance to fail would be high.

Ainsley wasn't that arrogant to think that her charm ability would never fail.

In fact, if she didn't use her luck manipulation ability to make her target's luck plummet, there's a huge chance she would fail to charm the target.

This is why she always manipulates the target's luck before charming them, especially when the target is way too strong compared to her.

The strong ones have different power realm, and in a sense, they should be able to resist Ainsley's charm ability because her charm ability didn't bypass every single power level—

Unlike luck manipulation ability that could ignore the power level difference.

But Ainsley didn't want to risk herself to use the luck manipulation ability at the moment. Thus, she could only charm the target without using her luck ability.

The Godfather agreed with Ainsley's request and felt much more relieved when Ainsley could already control a part of her body when she's in her shaman mode.

It means that Ainsley could use more than one ability at the same time, and her shaman power was also growing fast.

In no time, the Godfather might not need to possess Ainsley for the baby to use his blood manipulation ability.

Ainsley is improving fast!

She can absolutely win this unfair battle!

Chapter 990: "The Purple Ape's Tricky Ability"

Despite Ainsley's personal growth, the battle still had to continue.

Before the two beasts and the monster could attack them, the Godfather chose to attack them first.

And so, he targeted the purple ape who had lower defense compared to the Bronto Monster and the armored giraffe.

Using the reserved blood that he had collected in Ainsley's storage necklace, the Godfather drew a huge amount of red blood and shaped them into a weapon.

This time, he chose to fight a long-range battle while maintaining the blood barrier to protect Ainsley's body from a sudden attack.

Thus, the weapon he created was naturally a long-range weapon— a cannon.

The cannon made of blood was huge, but it could float in the air freely, even more, agile than birds.

Countless cannonballs made of blood were also ready inside the cannon, and one should know that these cannonballs weren't just ordinary cannonballs.

The cannonballs had a bit of corrosive element and explosion element!

This could happen because the blood that the Godfather used to create the cannonballs wasn't human blood at all, but unique monsters' and beasts' blood.

The Godfather's ability allowed him to retain a bit of the victim's special ability through their blood.

This was true, and it could also be effective on ability users' blood.

Still, the ability that could be retained was extremely little, and it could only become various buffs for the blood that the Godfather manipulated.

For example, some blood could make the Godfather fly without having to manipulate the blood wings movement at all times.

Some blood could also become as sturdy as metal because of the owner's special ability retained in their blood.

If there was blood that could condense and become as hard as metal, there was also blood that could be as hard as diamond and crystal, depending on the previous owner's special ability.

But looking at Ainsley's level in her shaman ability, the Godfather couldn't do much with this special skill and could only rely on luck to see if the blood he collected also retained the owner's special ability.

Luckily, the blood he collected while fighting these monsters and beasts had some unique features, and now he used it to create the blood cannon!

And, of course, after he used it, he would take back the scattered blood and keep them safe inside Ainsley's storage necklace.

No wonder people said that the Godfather was a lunatic...because he once had a warehouse inside his storage necklace and it was used especially to store all sorts of blood!

Ainsley, who didn't know anything about this, only saw a dark red cannon as big as Ava suddenly appeared in the air.

Then, without a warning, the cannon created of various blood instantly shot toward the purple ape!

BOOM! BOOM! BOOM!

Countless cannonballs rushed to the purple ape, and they were so agile that even the purple ape, with such high agility and speed, almost couldn't escape the besiege.

The purple ape didn't expect the Godfather to attack him out of the blue, and he even did it in less than a minute.

The attack came so fast that the purple ape had no choice but to dodge the cannonballs first while also launching his abilities.

He's only a high-level beast and wasn't as strong as the mammoth, who was only one step away from being a sacred beast.

But it didn't mean he was weak.

His abilities are all rare!

The purple ape dodged the incoming cannonballs with his speed, and his body instantly turned into a blurry image.

He had just activated one of his abilities— the phantom.

He was actually not called a purple ape before because people usually called his race the phantom ape.

But because he had more than one ability which turned his fur into gorgeous purple, anyone who saw him instantly called him a purple ape.

As the name suggested, the phantom race could turn into a shadow that actually looked like a transparent ghost.

In this state, no physical or special ability attack could damage his body.

Yes. Not even a single attack could hurt him!

But this state could only last for five minutes before he returned to his previous state.

Then, he could only use this special bloodline ability after 12 hours.

Still, when he's in his phantom state, he's invincible.

He couldn't use his other special abilities, but his damage rate would soar by 100%.

Strangely, he's in a ghost state, but he could still attack the enemies using a strange ghost skill.

That's why the phantom race was also often called the ghost race.

The purple ape had already turned into a phantom,, and the cannonballs rushing to his side became completely useless.

But the Godfather wasn't an idiot.

When he saw the ape turning into a phantom, he immediately controlled the launched cannonballs and threw it at the unsuspecting Bronto Monster!

The broto monster was the tallest and the biggest among the three enemies. Naturally, he's slow.

He thought that the Godfather was aiming for the purple ape and not him.

So, he was just about to attack the baby in silence when those cannonballs suddenly changed direction and instantly hit his body!

Are those cannonballs or rudals?! How come it can even change directions??

It was too late for the Bronto Monster to dodge the cannonballs.

He could only passively activate his defensive skill and allowed those cannonballs to hit his body.

BBOOM!

Unsurprisingly, some of the cannonballs exploded and directly breached Bronto Monster's defensive ability.

Then, the rest of the blood cannonballs turned into liquid and slowly corroded the monster's thick skin.

If Axelle were here, he would be surprised to see the corrosive blood having a similar effect to his corrosive ability!