1. My Father Doesn't seem to Know How to Joke

Jessie couldn't help but pinch his arm. "I don't have brains and you still want to look for me? Who exactly is the one who is even more brainless?"

"It is precisely because my brain is too good that I find a brainless person to complement each other."

Jessie simply did not speak to him anymore. She struggled off his leg and went to get her luggage.

Alex went out to ask Felix and Fia to come in and carry their luggage.

Fia carried a small windmill in her hand and scuttled in. "Aunt Jeje, look, I won this! I won by playing rock-paper-scissors with a little brother. Isn't it beautiful?"

Jessie hurriedly caught her and smiled as she kissed her tender little face, "My little darling is really amazing!"

Felix also walked in and saw the luggage in the living room. He nudged to Jessie's side, "Are we leaving now?"

"Yes, we are going back to my house for the Mid-Autumn Festival." Jessie also hugged him and kissed him. Now she only needed to see the two tender little guys. She couldn't help but want to hug and kiss them. Speaking of mid-autumn, only then did she recall the Laurent family in R City. She couldn't help but look up at Alex, who had just come out of his bedroom with his wallet and car keys. "Is Felix and Fia's grandparents also waiting for them to go back and celebrate the holidays?"

Alex also took out her coat from the bedroom and handed it to her. "It's fine. They socialize more during the holidays. They won't mind."

Jessie finally let out a sigh of relief.

She knew that she was being selfish, but now that she knew about the children's backgrounds, she really wanted to be with them every minute and every second. She wanted to compensate them for all the company and care that she owed them in the past five years.

Alex had expected what she was thinking, but he did not tell her. It wasn't just the two old men from the Laurent family, but also the people from the North City had called him more than once, wanting the three of them to spend the holidays with them. They had pretended to forget about the festival just now, so that she would feel less burdened. When they heard that the two little fellows had gone home with Jessie for the Mid-Autumn Festival, they were very excited. Previously, they were unwilling to leave the resort. Now, they were moving their legs and diligently packing their luggage in the room. They stuffed the little toys into their schoolbags behind their backs.

Jessie saw that they stuffed their school bags until they were bulging and worried that their school bags were too heavy. She took out the heavier ones and put them in her bag.

"Aunt Jeje, and that one! Auntie gave me fruit mooncakes yesterday. Help me put them in my bag."

"Aunt Jeje, help me take the plane in the cabinet."

"Aunt Jeje..."

After everything was settled, they went out.

After putting everything in the trunk, Alex sat in the driver's seat. Before he was about to start the engine, he turned around and looked at the backseat. The three of them had a good relationship. He paused and said, "Felix, Fia."

"Yes, father!" The two little fellows were in a very good mood. Even though their father's tone was very serious, he did not feel afraid as usual. His four big round eyes sparkled as he looked at him.

Jessie also looked at him with a smile in her eyes.

Alex's dark and deep pupils fixed on her face. "If you have no objections, you two don't call her aunt Jeje again."

The two in the backseat were puzzled. "What? Why? What should we call her then?" Alex retracted his gaze and started the car. "Call her mother."

After Alex start the car, everyone fell into an unprecedented silence.

After a long time, Jessie was the first to regain her senses. Although she had just heard his words and her heart was greatly shaken and she had been looking forward to it for a while, she had already calmed herself down. She even felt that changing the call like this was too embarrassing, not to mention Felix and Fia.

She reached out to rub Felix's head and Fia's head. She smiled again. "Dad is joking with you. Don't take it seriously."

Felix looked up at her with eyes that were as pretty as black grapes. "My dad doesn't seem to know how to joke."

Fia also stared at her and nodded seriously.

She couldn't help but look at the man sitting in the driver seat.

Although she was very touched that he could help her recognize the children, she also blamed him for being too fast.

After Alex threw down the word, he no longer participated in their conversation and calmly and attentively drove.

Jessie originally hoped that he would help her again. She saw that he did not have any intention to speak again and was trying hard to organize the words in her heart. As she was thinking about how to resolve the awkwardness in front of her, a soft and warm little hand drilled into her palm. Then, a small hand also reached into her other hand.

The two small hands suddenly seemed to warm Jessie's heart until it became sweet. It was not important to call her anything anymore.

"Mom." Fia raised her small face and her eyes turned into a beautiful crescent moon. She called her very conveniently.

In an instant, Jessie could not control the sourness in her nose and tears welled up in her eyes.

Felix snuggled into her arms and raised his beautiful little face, "Mom, let me tell you a secret. Ever since we first met, Fia went back and said that you were like our mom. That brainless person was finally right for once."

"You're the one who doesn't have a brain!" Fia snorted and pushed him out. She threw herself into Jessie's arms and hugged her neck as she giggled, "I really have a mother. This time no one dares to call me a wild girl without a mother and no one dares to say that I am a good liar!"

Jessie's heart could not tell if it was more sour, more painful, or sweeter. When she heard what Fia said, she could no longer suppress the surging emotions in her heart. She hugged her two small bodies and cried bitterly.

Alex saw her overflowing maternal love through the rearview mirror. He simply turned his gaze away and no longer looked at the rearview mirror.

After a long while, the corners of his thin lips couldn't help but curve into a charming arc.

Alex originally planned to return to R City on the same day after bidding farewell to Jouvita and the others.

Seeing Jessie stay for the holidays, he also changed the flight ticket to the next morning.

When they were making dinner together, Jessie looked at her mother who was flipping fried potato chips. She brewed for a while before saying, "Mom, I'm preparing to go to R City again."

Jessie did not expect that her mother would not be surprised at all, "En, going to R City is good. Young people should just barge into the big cities. What kind of experience can they have if they stay in our small village?"

"When I settle down over there, I'll buy a new house and come back to pick you up."

"No need. The people of our age can't compare to you young people. The outside world is already not used to it. Not to mention... Besides, your grandfather and grandmother are here too. There's also such a huge garden. Even though I can't help them much, I can still help them, so don't worry about us. You and Alex can just live a good life together."

Jessie felt embarrassed in her heart, "Mom, what did you say? I still don't know what will happen between us in the future."

Actually, she still did not dare to think deeply about her future with Alex. Every time she thought of this matter, she couldn't help but be afraid.

If it wasn't for Felix and Fia, she would never agree to have any relationship with a man like him.

Jouvita used a spatula to lightly knock her. "The children have already run all over the ground. If you don't live well, what else do you want?"

Jessie's small face was slightly pale. Suddenly she understood why her mother was worried that the Laurent family's gate would be too high and she was worried that she would be injured. Later on, she helped Alex again and again and even deliberately let him be with Jessie in the open and in the dark.

She just didn't know when Alex told Jessie about the child.

"Back then, you wanted to be with Mike. We didn't agree. You wanted to marry him, and I thought you had suffered a lot since you were a child. I thought that I would let you have whatever you like, and that's why I agreed to let you go with him. But at that time, We were still worried. Mike was a utilitarian and had too many desires. He will never be satisfied. How could a person like Mike be with you all the time?"

"Alex is different from him. He manages so many people in such a big company. He lives in the glory of wealth, but he does not have the slightest bit of enjoyment and impetuosity. Only a man like him can live his life in a considerate manner. It's your fortune that he likes you. Although I don't know why you had a child with him so many years ago, Let bygones be bygones. Don't think too much about it, just treat it as a blessing from the heavens. The difference between our family and theirs is huge. But I believe in Alex. He has the ability to handle all these matters."

For some reason, Jessie felt sour in her heart when she heard her mother's words.

Could Alex really be that kind of man? Actually, she was still uncertain in her heart. He was too deep and complicated, and she could not figure it out at all.

Sometimes, she felt that he still cared about her in his heart. But in reality, she didn't even dare to ask him for a promise.

Although after experiencing a marriage, she knew that even if it was a promise made by the Mountain and Sea Alliance, it wasn't trustworthy at all.

As the two of them were chatting, Fia ran in with her hair disheveled. She pulled Jessie up and walked out, "Mom, quick!"

"What's wrong?" Jessie still wanted to help her tidy up the dust and messy hair, but the little girl only followed her and ran forward.

They walked out of the main door of the house and only then did they see a few children fighting at the door.

The one in the middle was Felix, who had always been calm and collected like his father!

Jessie saw her son getting beaten up and wanted to protect him. She let go of Fia's little hand and rushed over, pulling the little guys away. She put on a stern face and said, "Who allowed you guys to fight?"

When the few children saw Jessie's fierce face, they immediately fled.

OD

Jessie pulled the dusty Felix up from the ground. Felix stood up very calmly. "I'm fine. Fia told them that you are our mother. No matter what they would not believe it. It was so infuriating that we fought. Mom, you're not angry with us, right?" Fia put her hands on her hips and raised her chin and shouted, "You ignorant little bastards, do you believe it now? She is our mother! Real mother, not a single word is fake!"

The children were all from town and knew Jessie. They had never seen her have such a big child. Moreover, seeing that Fia and Felix were outsiders, they refused to believe what they said that they were Jessie's children. After saying a few words to each other, they could not convince the other and immediately started fighting.

After Jessie heard it, her heart ached and she felt guilty. She used a tissue to help Felix wipe his face full of dust. "The next time we encounter this kind of thing, call me over and I'll prove it to you. What my babies said was the truth. You are my children, absolutely true. Don't fight anymore. What if you get hurt? Mom will feel very sorry for you, okay?"

Felix and Fia looked at her. They were so touched that their eyes were red. They nodded heavily.

Jessie looked up and saw a tall and handsome man standing at the door of her courtyard. She remembered what she said to the children just now and could not help but blush.

1. We Have to Give Her the Title She Deserves

After dinner, Jouvita went to the suburbs first. The two children saw her leave and also wanted to play in the fruit garden on the outskirts of their grandparents.

Jessie took her phone and prepared to bring them there.

Alex stood at the entrance of the courtyard and took a cigarette with one hand. "It is late. We will bring them there tomorrow."

With Jessie protecting her, Fia became more daring. As soon as Alex finished speaking, she immediately shouted, "I want to go. Mommy will take us there!"

Alex's handsome face sank, "If you say one more word, then get your ass back to R City tomorrow!"

Fia pouted her small mouth and did not dare to make a sound.

Jessie stared at Alex.

The man's long fingers inadvertently pinched her earlobe and his voice was low and magnetic. "Don't let them do whatever they want!"

Jessie waved his hand away and brought the two children upstairs. "Let's go take a shower and tell the story after the shower."

After entering the room, Alex followed her in and sat down on the sofa. He folded his long legs leisurely and looked at the email on his phone.

Felix and Fia stared at him for a long time. Seeing that he was still not leaving, the two children could not hold it in anymore. Fia pulled Felix's sleeve.

Felix looked like he was thinking for him. "Dad, you can take a shower and sleep now."

Alex raised his head and looked at him coldly. Felix raised his little finger and pointed at the floor. "Your room is downstairs." "Go take a shower!"

DOC

Felix shrugged at Fia and took the pajamas that Jessie handed over into the bathroom.

Jessie finished washing the two of them and she also took a shower. When she came out, she saw that Alex still had his long legs folded. He sat on the sofa with one hand in a pocket and used one hand to flip a document in his phone.

She took a book and prepared to go to bed. After hesitating for a while, she looked at him. "Go downstairs and look at the documents. We will be a little noisy."

Alex pressed the screen of his phone and reached out to her. "Bring the book over for me to see."

"A book that children love to read. You want to read it too?" Jessie smiled and gave the book to him.

"Harry Potter?" Alex looked at the cover and flipped to the inner page.

"This book also filmed a movie." Jessie excitedly explained to him. When she saw him close the book, she bent over to get it.

Alex handed the book to her but did not let go.

Jessie's eyebrows slightly knitted and she could not help but pull the book hard.

He pulled hard and Jessie was pulled a few steps forward by him. Then she heard the man's deep voice, "I will wait for you downstairs."

Before Jessie could recover, he suddenly let go.

Jessie was not prepared and fell back. He held her waist.

Alex helped her up. His slender fingers squeezed her soft palm. He looked at the two children on the bed who were staring at them without moving. "Don't bother your mother for too long. All of you go to sleep early!"

The two children nodded obediently. "Okay, Dad."

Jessie wanted to pull her hand out but he clenched it again and whispered as he brushed past her, "Speed up!"

He held his phone and left.

Jessie felt that his hand that was holding her was extremely hot, from her face all the way to her neck.

Seeing the door close, Fia patted her small chest. "He finally left! Mommy, tell a story!"

Jessie smiled and took the book to bed.

The two little ones immediately went to her side and started to listen to the story in the book.

Alex had processed the documents in the computer downstairs. After taking a shower, he still did not see Jessie coming downstairs. His phone rang. He found that it was Grandma Restall calling. She kept complaining. "The child went to school well. Why did you suddenly bring them to a vacation? It's the Mid Autumn Festival in two days. When are you going to bring them back?"

"A few more days later."

"Are you saying that the kid won't back in the Mid-Autumn Festival?" Grandma Restall raised her voice. Then Grandpa Rudolf's loud voice sounded beside her, "Don't count on him. When did he take things at home seriously? Ask him directly, where are my good grandsons now? You need to know the exact location. We'll go and pick them up during the Mid-Autumn Festival!"

Alex sat down on the sofa and pressed the computer screen. "They're not here. You guys can have a quiet festival."

"Why do I need him to teach me how to celebrate the festival?" Grandpa Rudolf shouted even louder. Grandma Restall ran to the side to put on an act. "Alex, we are old. We don't have much time to enjoy the pleasures of heaven. We clearly have grandchildren. We don't need peace. You should bring them back quickly."

"I will try to come back as soon as possible."

Hearing her son's unchanging tone, Grandma Restall's anger also came. "You want me to check your flight information, right?"

"Don't waste your energy. You won't be able to find it even if you do." He knew they would be like this. Alex asked the two little fellows to turn off the Phone Watch. He didn't even use his private plane when he came here. They had booked a plane ticket to the Hai City, then went to the branch office to bring a car to the Nanchuan. The two old men couldn't find their exact location even if they wanted to.

"It's late. You two should rest early!" Without waiting for Grandma Restall to get angry, Alex hung up the phone.

Grandma Restall was so angry that she wanted to vomit blood.

She threw her phone on the table and sat on the sofa. She repeatedly sighed. She thought that she had a son and a daughter. Her elder daughter was disobedient and insisted on marrying an unreliable and impoverished artist who was in a second marriage. She didn't listen to her advice and ran away from home one night, leaving no news for several years. When the Laurent family finally found out where she was, what they got was a terrible news. Her daughter had passed away.

She had risked her life to give birth to a son when she was in her forties. Although Alex marriage was a happy one, his wife had passed away when she gave birth. Now, his son did not 'filial', did not go on blind dates, and did not remarry. Now, he had actually brought his two obedient grandsons, who should have gone to school, to somewhere unknown.

Grandpa Rudolf heard her long-winded talk and his mood became heavy. He took out his phone and dialed Rick's number, asking him where Alex was. Rick was honest and told him that they were in Hai City. As for their exact location, he did not know. The Boss did not tell him.

Although Hai City wasn't as prosperous as R City, it still had several cities and towns. If Alex didn't want them to know where he was, where could the two of them find him? If they went to investigate one place at a time, when would they be able to find them?

"Wait, Hai City?" Grandma Restall stopped sighing and looked at her husband with wide eyes, "Last time, did Rick say that the two children liked Aunt Jeje? She seems to be from Hai City, right?"

Grandpa Rudolf still had a sullen face. "When did Rick say that?"

"I heard him mention it. You can call him and ask him. If that's the case, ask Alex to bring the girl back. He has already moved into the female residence. We have to give her the title she deserves!" Grandma Restall said and became excited again. The sadness and depression from before had been swept away in an instant.

Grandpa Rudolf took the phone and looked at the time. It was late. He thought for a while and said, "If that's really the case, let's wait. Alex did not take the initiative to mention it when he first got married. It is rare that there is someone he likes. His character will not treat the female side unfairly. He will bring her back sooner or later."

"Is that so? You also think he's serious? I knew it. We're not heartless people. How could we have a heartless son? If that's the case, I'm relieved." Grandma Restall heaved a sigh of relief and started to look forward to the day when her future daughter-in-law came to visit her.

Alex hung up the phone and waited for a while. Finally, he heard a sound coming from the stairs.

He stood up and went to the mirror to open the front of his robe, revealing his strong chest muscles. He then went to open the door.

He waited by the door for nearly a minute, but no one came. He frowned and walked out.

The light was still on at the stairs. A yellow cat was squatting by the stairs. It heard the noise and turned its face to look at him.

The man and the cat were silent for a long time. Alex put on his robe and strode over. The yellow cat was so scared that it ran away. He strode upstairs.

Outside, he heard Jessie's soft and innocent voice. She was following the story in the book and mimicking all kinds of vivid conversations.

The door was pushed open and everyone in the room was shocked. They all stared at the door in unison.

Alex's handsome face darkened. "What time is it? All of you, go to sleep!"

Jessie took the phone and looked at the time. It was only eight o'clock.

"It's only 8:00 PM. Usually, we only sleep at 9:30 PM." Felix and Fia also saw the time. Fia stared with her big round eyes and pouted her small mouth as she whispered.

Jessie wanted to say that it was still early.

Alex's cold voice fell again, "You guys are too noisy. I will catch the plane tomorrow morning."

"Are we very noisy?" Jessie could not believe it.

She had lived here for many years. Sometimes Jouvita would stay in her room and she would call her mother upstairs. Jouvita could not even hear her. She had to run to the staircase to call her. How can Alex could even hear the sound of them telling stories in their room?

Seeing his serious expression, she thought that it was because his hearing was too sensitive and did not doubt anymore. She rubbed the two soft little heads beside her. Softly: "Your father is going to catch a plane tomorrow morning. Let's not disturb him. Let's sleep early too.

Although Felix and Fia were unwilling, hearing what she said, they nodded sensibly and pulled up the blanket to lie down.

Jessie turned off the light and only left behind a warm yellow wall lamp before lying down with them under the blanket. She turned her head and saw that the man was still standing there. A huge shadow was cast on the floor of the room.

She suddenly understood. It was not that she was too noisy, but...

He had been waiting for her downstairs...

She met his dark and gloomy eyes and inexplicably felt that her throat was dry and there wasn't even a trace of sleepiness left

1. 7 If He Knew That the Separation was a Farewell

She didn't dare look at him again, turned around and faced the other side.

After a while, she couldn't help but turn around again.

That tall shadow still stood there without moving.

Felix and Fia slept for a while and Jessie was too embarrassed to get up.

But the pressure from the scorching gaze at the door was too great. She pinched the blanket and continued to lie there for a few minutes. In the end, she still got up quietly.

When she started to put on her shoes, the tall shadow of the man finally disappeared. His steady footsteps sounded on the stairs.

She bit the bullet and followed him out.

Just as she reached the staircase, a pair of strong arms wrapped around her waist. She was so scared that she screamed. Before she could open her mouth, the sound was swallowed by the man.

He held her up and put her slender legs on his lean and strong waist. He continued to kiss her lips and held her round butt with his big hands as he walked downstairs.

He was especially tall and Jessie was afraid of falling down. Her two hands tightly hugged his neck and her fair and slender fingers were inserted into his thick and messy short hair.

In the quiet night, it was as if there were only their panting sounds upstairs and downstairs.

"Let's go back to the room first..." Jessie begged in a low voice.

The room was too spacious and the sound was especially loud and clear.

"Right here." Alex was annoyed that she did not want to come out just now and made him wait for so long. He put her on the handrail of the stairs and then tightened his grip on her waist.

Jessie did not dare to make a sound and opened her mouth to bite his shoulder.

Men usually had strong muscles, but now their muscles were as hard as iron. She did not bite him, but her teeth hurt instead. She had to bite the corner of his robe to suppress the scream.

They were going to separate tomorrow, and they would not see each other for at least two days. Alex no longer restrained himself.

Jessie just realized that she had suppressed him a few times before. He was completely released tonight, which made her feel scared.

Later on, she cried and begged, and was forced to call his name many times. Only then did he stop.

Just as she was about to fall asleep, he started again.

She was so tired that she didn't even have the strength to cry...

That night, Jessie was very tired from the torment. When she woke up the next day, it was already dawn. The laughter of the children playing came from downstairs.

She looked at the ceiling and was somewhat at a loss.

She remembered that last night, he threw the thing with the contraceptive measure into the garbage bag and then stuffed it under the bed. She turned over and hid her head under the bed to look. It was empty inside. The garbage bag was long gone.

Jessie did not know that there was a garbage bag underneath. It should be that he threw it out early in the morning.

Thinking of this, Jessie could not help but pull up the blanket and cover her hot face.

If not for experiencing it personally, she would not believe that Alex was actually such a meticulous man.

Mike would not do something like this at all.

She suddenly felt that the 'Alex' that her mother spoke of was the kind of man who would be considerate in life. What she said also seemed to make sense.

There was an unread message on the phone. She took it over and found that the balance in WeChat and Alipay account had increased by more than two hundred thousand.

She then looked at the user who transferred the account. It was Alex's number.

She was confused when he suddenly gave her so much money. She quickly dialed his number,

Alex had already arrived at the Hai City airport. When he saw her number, a smile appeared on his lips. "You won't sleep for a while longer?"

His magnetic and deep voice was transmitted through the electrical waves. It was even more intense than when he had asked her to call him by his name last night. Two red clouds flew upon Jessie's cheeks. From time to time, her fingers would grab a corner of the blanket, and her voice became soft. "I am already the last person to wake up at home. Have you not boarded the plane yet?"

"There are still ten minutes." He paused and lowered his voice even more. "You called me as soon as you woke up. We just separated and you miss me?"

When he said such nauseating words, it actually did not make people feel disgusted at all. Instead, it even evoked traces of palpitations in her heart.

"You're talking nonsense!" She did not know how tempting her voice was at this moment.

Alex's throat tightened and his voice became hoarse. "Take good care of the child at home. Don't run around when you have nothing to do, understand?"

Jessie's bright eyes lit up. "I'm with the children. Where can I run to? Why did you transfer so much money to me? I am not short of money."

"Nothing much. I just want to give it to you." Alex's tone was relaxed.

Only then did Jessie feel that although she had been trying hard to ignore his background and background, treating him as an ordinary man and getting along with him equally, the gap between them would still be revealed everywhere.

When there were more than 2 million in the card, she had thought that she could barely be considered a rich person. But at this moment, she realized that it was just a rich person in her mind.

Even if she had more than two million in her card right now, she would only be like a miser. Unless it was absolutely necessary, she would not transfer the money in her card out. She definitely would not transfer two hundred thousand so casually.

“It’s about time.” Alex took off his sunglasses and stuffed them into the outer layer of his suitcase. “Since I’m not there. Help me show the three elders respect for their filial piety and buy what they like. It’s rare for them to spend time at home, so don’t worry about the money.”

He was considerate. With one sentence, he successfully dispelled all of Jessie’s melancholy. She put the warm back of her hand on her hot face and smiled. “I understand.”

When she said this, her soft and lovely voice sounded like the sound of the rain in Jiangnan. It was pleasant and touching.

If it wasn’t for the matters of the Mumen Group, he really wanted to return to that small town and enter her soft body before coming out.

It was already afternoon when Alex arrived in R City.

Rick took his suitcase and carefully said, “The Elder and Old Madam knew you were coming back today. They told you to make a trip to old residence after getting off the plane.”

Alex snorted. “What use do I have for you?”

Rick wiped the cold sweat off his forehead.

On one side was boss, and on the other side was boss’s father and mother. As an assistant, what could he do? He was also in despair.

As soon as he finished speaking, Grandma Restall called.

Alex looked coldly at Rick again. – Rick’s neck shrank and a chill ran down his spine.

Alex pressed the answer button.

Grandma Restall urged him from the other side, “Where are you? We are all waiting for you to come back for lunch. Ask Rick to drive faster.”

“I will go back now.”

“... Hurry up!”

When the car reached Laurent Residence, Rick did not dare to stay any longer with him. He took the initiative to ask, “I will go to the company to prepare for the afternoon meeting.” Alex nodded. There were two cars parked at the entrance of old residence. One was the Audi commonly used by Grandpa Rudolf, and the other was the dark blue BMW SUV.

Looking at the car, Alex’s face darkened.

Grandma Restall had just heard the sound of the car when she ran out of the house. When she saw Alex alone, she held the tassel on her shoulder and looked behind him. “You alone? Where are Felix and Fia?”

“They stayed in Hai City for the holidays.” Alex did not hide anything from them when he thought about how they had looked for Rick and knew that they were in Hai City

Grandma Restall did not get angry either. She approached him with a smile. “Tell Mom the truth. Are you guys at that Miss Jessie’s house? When are you going to bring her home for us to take a look?”

“After the middle of autumn.”

Grandma Restall did not expect him to answer so readily and became even more excited. “So you really went to her house? Did her family agree to it? What kind of girl is she? How old is she?”

“You’ll know when she comes.” Alex strode into the room.

Grandma Restall pulled his sleeve and said, “I will not ask anymore. I will see for myself. Oh right, Valent is here. She is waiting for you at home.”

“She is looking for me for something?”

“She didn’t say anything when we asked her. Let’s go in and eat first. You can ask her after you finish eating.” After a pause, Grandma Restall continued to speak with some sadness. “It’s rare for her to come back. She never ask our help when she has something to do. And she is closer to you. Later on, you will listen to all of her matters first. If you don’t have time, you can leave it to us. We’ll do it for her in your name, got it?”

Alex took a step forward and turned to look at the dark blue SUV outside. A few seconds later, he answered, “Alright, I will ask her first.”

“Let’s go into the room and eat.”

Alex's sister, Amanda, was twelve years older than him. The thing that left the deepest impression on him was her bright and wanton smile. There was nothing in this world that she did not dare to try. Until now, she was still the most unrestrained and unruly person that Alex knew.

That year, when she left with Shawn, Alex who had gradually begun to shoulder the responsibility of Mumen Group, really envied her.

Later on, he often thought that if he knew that their parting was forever, he would still only means to stop her.

Laurent Residence had always kept a room for Fifi, even though she could count the number of times she stayed in it with one hand.

Grandpa Rudolf and Grandma Restall held a deep grudge against Shawn. They had personally said that they did not want to see that man again in this life.

Shawn also felt guilty in his heart. He also didn't know how to comfort the two old men. After Amanda died, he took his daughter and disappeared for many years. Later on, he might have realized something. A piece of work named Remembrance re-appeared in the eyes of the public, and it was during the Spring Festival when Fifi was in her teens. He sent her to the entrance of Laurent Residence and let her spend the New Year with her grandfather and grandmother. She was only picked up when school started.

At that time, Grandpa Rudolf and Grandma Restall both wanted Fifi to stay by their side for a long time, but Fifi refused. She had the talent of her father to draw, and she loved drawing since she was young. She wanted to follow her father, but she was very stubborn, so they had to agree.

Moreover, Shawn had gradually become famous in the painting world at that time, and his living expenses were no longer a problem. Grandpa Rudolf and Alex had secretly invested in him, and Shawn and Fifi had settled down in X City, which was famous for its culture in the Ancient Capital. Only then did Grandpa Rudolf and Grandma Restall feel slightly relieved

However, apart from meeting their granddaughter occasionally, they still treated Shawn with indifference and hatred

1. 7 What else Can I Learn from Our Father
Love is deep, hate is deep, and that's how they feel.

Alex first went to the study to see Grandpa Rudolf. Maybe it was because Fifi had come. Grandpa Rudolf sat on the rattan deck chair by the window and stared blankly at the long green tree in the garden outside. He had been yelling over the phone about how to deal with Alex, but now he had lost his temper.

Fifi's room and Alex's bedroom were in the same hallway on the second floor. (This novel will be daily updated at ) Alex went upstairs and heard Fifi's cheerful and clear voice in the hallway.

"Just kiss me! If you don't kiss me, I will ignore you! I will kiss you first. Listen. You are so bad! Remember what you promised me. When I come back, draw me your naked body. Don't worry, hubby, have a good figure that can only belong to me alone. How could I possibly be willing to sell your nude painting..."

Alex frowned and walked over.

The door of the room was open. He raised his hand and knocked on the door.

"I'll call you later!" Fifi hung up the phone and turned her head to pounce over happily. "Uncle, you're back?"

Alex put one hand on her shoulder and walked in. He untied the buttons of his windbreaker and sat on the sofa. Seeing the light pink button top and the black super short leather skirt on her body, his thick eyebrows knitted even tighter. "You are not cold?"

"Not cold. The house's heater is quite good."

Fifi hugged a coffee colored soft pillow and bent one leg to sit on the sofa diagonally opposite him. Her smiling face was in front of him.

She looked about seventy to eighty percent like her mother. Alex looked at her as if he saw Amanda who was unrestrained all those years ago. He could not help but be in a trance.

"Uncle, I came specially to find you today. I'm begging you for a favor. It's absolutely a piece of cake for you."

Alex woke up. He folded his long legs and leaned against the back of the sofa. "Tell me."

"I have a friend who wants to re-join the MTC Entertainment company under your company. He's very talented. He used to be an artiste of the MTC Entertainment. He's very famous. I heard he's competing with the company in the same industry. It made things a little unpleasant. (This novel will be daily updated at )The person in the same industry had a good relationship with the higher-ups. In the end, he was forced out of the company. It would be a huge loss to your company if he was fired based on his popularity. He also liked the MTC Entertainment and wanted to continue working with them. Uncle, help me tell the person in charge over there personally. Just let him renew the contract with the MTC Entertainment.”

Alex’s heart sank slightly. He asked with a frown, “What’s your friend’s name?”

Fifi’s smile became even brighter, “Mike! The superstar Mike, who has always been very popular!”

On the Mid-Autumn Festival, her grandfather and grandmother came over to celebrate the festival together. With her grandmother’s help, Jouvita did not need Jessie’s help to prepare the Mid-Autumn Festival feast and only asked her to accompany the children.

Felix and Fia had already played with the children in town for the entire morning. Jessie asked Felix to give Fia supplementary lessons.

After the Mid-Autumn Festival, They were going back to R City to go to school. Fia was originally playful and had not gone to school for so many days. She had almost returned everything she learned to the teacher.

When Fia heard that she need to study, Fia fell onto the sofa and pretended to be dead. “I don’t want to study. My wound hurts!”

Felix rolled his eyes. “I didn’t see you screaming in pain when you learned how to climb trees in the morning. Your wound has already healed, right?”

Jessie sat down by the sofa and picked up the little girl. “After the festival, you are going back to school. So we can’t delay anymore. Come on, just make up for the lessons that have fallen i n the past few days.”

“Then I’ll go to school to make up for it.” The little girl leaned into her arms. “Who did you learn that you don’t like studying so much?” Jessie smiled and carried her to the small chair in front of the coffee table. She gently scratched her little nose.

“Who else can it be? My dad.” Felix sighed. “My grandma said that my dad always skipped school when he was young. I don’t know how many times my grandpa beat him up.” “Really?” Jessie could not help but laugh. She could not help but imagine the scene of Alex getting beaten up. She laughed again. So Alex was the special case of being naughty and mischievous when he was young and becoming successful when he grew up?

Fia was even more excited and her small arms tightly wrapped around Jessie’s neck, “I have also heard of it. It is true. So Mommy will let me skip two more days of classes. Maybe I’ll be able to manage a big company like my dad in the future. I’ll learn it tomorrow, okay?”

“No, with your brain, you’ll only miss more classes if you’re a day late!” With a beautiful face, (This novel will be daily updaed at )Felix took out his textbook from his schoolbag.

Fia looked at the textbooks and felt a headache. She saw a coin on the sofa. She immediately used her short legs to climb up and catch the coin. Holding the coin in her palm, her delicate face was especially sincere. "I've decided to use a coin to decide whether I want to learn or . not!. If the coin is on the other side, I'll play. When the coin stands up, I'll learn!" Jessie and Felix were speechless.

In order to not learn, she could even think something!

After eating, Jouvita wanted to go to the cemetery at the back of the suburbs.

During holidays or every October or 3rd day, she would go there to visit a person.

Jessie only knew after she became sensible that every time her mother brought her to see the tomb, it did not even have a tombstone, the one buried was her father that she had never seen before.

Jouvita had never told her how her father died, nor when he died.

When Jessie was young, when she asked about her father, Jouvita would get sick and her illness would get bad and worse each time. Jessie could only bury the blank in her heart and did not dare to mention it in front of Jouvita again.

When she asked her grandfather and grandmother, her grandfather kept silent and did not say anything. Her grandmother kept sighing and could not say anything. She only said that she should remember her mother's good deeds and that her mother had sacrificed too much in this life for her.

Jessie later thought that perhaps her father's death had dealt too much of a blow to her family, causing them to be unhappy about it. She did not think about this anymore. Anyway, she did not have a father since she was born.

Before Jouvita set off, she let Jessie bring the children along and also let her change into a set of beautiful clothes to dress the children up.

Jessie had nothing to do yesterday, so she just happened to bring Felix and Fia to the town to buy two new sets of clothes. Now, she took them out to change into them.

After she was done, Jouvita looked at the two pretty children in front of her and her eyes were slightly red.

"Mom, what's wrong?" Jessie noticed and softly greeted.

Jouvita wiped the corners of her eyes and shook her head. "It's nothing. Let's go."

One

After not coming for a while, there were a lot of weeds on the grave. Jouvita and Jessie went to pull out the weeds and place the mooncakes and fresh flowers in front of the grave.

Then they bowed and greeted the grave.

Felix's small face was calm and respectful as he stood in front of the grave and bent down like them.

Even Fia, who had always been mischievous, bowed down like her brother.

Jessie saw it and her heart felt warm. She touched their small heads and smiled in the direction of the grave. (This novel will be daily updated at ) "Dad, this is my child. He is Felix and she is Fia. They are beautiful, right? They are not only good looking but also very smart. You must be very happy now, right?"

Felix obediently shouted to the front, "Hello, Grandpa!" Fia also did not want to fall behind and called out crisply, "Grandpa, hello. I am Fia." Jouvita's eyes were still slightly red as she nodded with a smile. "You did the right thing. It's good that you have met. Take Felix and Fia back. I will stay and talk for a while."

"Okay." Jessie had always felt that although her mother did not want to talk about her father's matter with her, she had to stay here alone for a long time. Her mother's feelings towards her father must be very deep and after so many years, it did not reduce in the slightest.

What made her regret was that her mother had been in love with someone for more than half of her life but that person was unable to live in this world to enjoy her deep affection...

Seeing that they were getting further away, Jouvita retracted her gaze. Slowly sitting in front of the grave, she tried her best to smile. However, her tears first flowed down, "Jayden, Did you see that? Your daughter has a child. They are two beautiful and clever children. You are not blessed. The fortunate thing is... Your grandson is blessed. When I heard this news, I was overjoyed. Now that you know, I can imagine how happy you will be."

"That time when Jessie and Mike left, I am still regretting it. If only I had stopped her at that time, she would not have suffered so much. But now it is better. The father of the children is a responsible one. He did not give Jessie those hypocritical promises, but I could tell. He is someone who can bear Jessie's burden for the rest of her life. You can rest assured."

"Your daughter won't ask me about her father anymore, but I still feel guilty in my heart. You asked me to hide it for the rest of my life, but I am really afraid that one day, I won't be able to hide it anymore. That person's fault, why can't the child know it for the rest of his life?"

"He harmed you, harmed the child, but continued his life. What justice is there in this world? Why can't I let the child find him and ask him? Did he not feel a trace of guilt all these years? Sometimes, I really want to tell Jessie that I want her to seek justice.”

“But I can’t do that. I can’t bear to not protect your final wish. I can’t accept it. I can’t accept it on your behalf. Jayden, you didn’t even have a tombstone when you died. Even now, my daughter doesn’t know that the one lying in this icy cold ground is her biological mother. Just thinking about it makes me feel that it’s not worth it to help you. Do you know...”

Jouvita kept sobbing as she wiped away her tears. However, just as she wiped away a layer, another layer covered her.

Jouvita had not returned at dinner.

Jessie left the food in the pot for her and then brought the children to set up tables in the courtyard. She set up fruits, snacks, mooncakes, and drinks. She called her grandfather and grandmother to come out to admire the moon.

When the elders heard that Jouvita had gone to the cemetery and had not returned, their expressions changed slightly, and the originally peaceful atmosphere also became somewhat solemn.

After sitting for a while, Jessie’s Grandfather stood up and looked up at the sky. “It looks like it is going to rain. We will go over first. You guys should also sleep early.”

Her grandmother also stood up and prepared to leave.

Fia was not willing to let them go. She jumped down from the chair and ran into the room to carry a few umbrellas out. (This novel will be daily updated at ) She chased after them and shouted, “Great-grandfather. Even if it rains, we are not afraid. We have umbrellas. We can use them to admire the moon!”

Jessie and Felix both covered their faces.

This Silly Girl...

The old man who was still in a heavy mood was amused by the little fellow until his expression eased up. Jessie’s grandfather patted the child’s head and revealed a kind smile. “Silly child, if it was raining, how could there be a moon? It’s late. Great-grandfather and great aunt are tired. We’ll go back and sleep first. You guys also sleep early with your mother.”
