

Always Been Yours Chapter 1187

Kieran pointed it out for Edward. "If you still don't get it, then think about Leah. It's actually the same thing. Those investors refused to use her because they were worried about offending Sawyer Group."

"I see it now." Edward finally realized where he was wrong. He kept seeing the Muller Group as just a small business and forgot that the massive Muller Inc. was backing it from overseas.

While Edward was experiencing an epiphany, something came to Kieran, and he turned to his brother. "Nick, why don't you let me take this case? It's high time I repay Tessa for the care she's given me."

Besides, he was close with Timothy, so he couldn't sit and watch, be it for their brotherhood or his sister-in-law's care. Nicholas nodded in acknowledgment, knowing what his brother was thinking.

That night, Kieran asked a few of his good friends, whom Nicholas trusted and were well-informed in the circle, to join him for a drink at Jazz Bar.

booth on the second floor, they gazed at the dance floor below them, where stage lamps flashed, and ladies and gentlemen danced to the booming music, releasing their excessive from rich families who normally didn't have to do anything but waste their life away his vision on a tall, slender young man on the dance floor named Oliver Hadfield, whose family was close with the Mullers. Word was that their elders even planned on forming a marriage alliance, and it just so happened that Oliver had been had it the young man had always behaved unreasonably and unruly. Hence, Kieran believed Wanda would thinking of a way to approach Oliver, his friend's ridicule traveled to his ears. "What are you looking at, Kieran? Your eyes are practically glued to it.

just looking at Hadfield."

friend asked in bafflement. "Has he pissed you another, and the rest of them looked quizzically toward Kieran, who swirled his liquor glass and revealed, "More or less.

gathered his friends to collect