

Always Been Yours Chapter 349

Chapter 349 Nicholas Went Abroad Yesterday

“Nicholas... He still has no interest in me,” Hayley said and couldn’t help but sigh.

Hearing that, Remus frowned as his brows reflected his expression.

At the sight of this, she deliberately retreated in order to advance and added, “Sometimes I can’t help but wonder whether it’s better not to force things—”

“Where did the reluctance come from? I will help you to teach that kid a lesson when I head back.” He stopped her words in dissatisfaction and persuaded her, “Don’t give up either. Nicholas has always been rather indifferent since he was a child, and he will naturally have feelings once you guys get along for a long while.”

Hayley feigned hesitance to think about his words, but how could Remus not be able to read her thoughts?

Although he was not happy, he still went ahead to say, “Well, it’s still early. Meet with Nicholas for dinner together tonight, and tell him it’s my arrangement.”

If he had said this before, then she would have been elated.

However, she couldn’t help but feel lost at this moment.

After all, in the past, she would always be rejected whenever she wanted to make an appointment with Nicholas. Yet, if there was an order from Remus, then Nicholas would definitely go with it.

When she thought of her purpose of coming over, she cautiously informed, “Nicholas went on a business trip abroad yesterday.”

Remus frowned again and when he saw Hayley hesitating to speak, he immediately guessed the girl’s purpose of visiting this time.

He didn’t expose her, but instead gently replied, “Since that’s the case, then we’ll reschedule the meal when Nicholas returns.”

When she saw how he had maintained his silence about Nicholas’ trip abroad, Hayley nodded in disappointment. In fact, she really wanted to ask Remus whether Nicholas went abroad to meet Tessa.

However, when the words reached her mouth, she swallowed them back.

It was because Hayley was afraid that Remus would think that she was too preoccupied with gains and losses. She wouldn't want to seem too earnest, which would cause the man to greatly reduce his impression of her and make her lose more than what she could gain.

Now that she had nothing to gain, she sat for a while before proposing to make a move.

Remus watched her disappear into the garden, called the housekeeper over and said in a cold voice, "Go and investigate Nicholas' whereabouts abroad and see whether he has gone to see Tessa Reinhart."

"Yes." After being instructed, the butler left.

In the evening, the housekeeper received feedback from his subordinates after dinner.

He immediately knocked on the door to enter the study and respectfully reported, "Sir, Master Nicholas went abroad for the company mattress and did not go to see Miss Tessa."

It was a sunny day the next morning.

Nicholas walked out of the washroom in a white shirt, and his flawless handsome face was as expressionless as ever.

His slender legs were hidden in black suit pants.

While buttoning his cuffs, he walked toward the bedside table and immediately picked up his phone that had been ringing nonstop.

The call was from Edward.

"What's the matter?" Nicholas asked, his voice hoarse as he had just woken up.

Edward reported, "President Sawyer, Old Master Sawyer asked someone to investigate your whereabouts last night. I followed your instructions and sent the person away."

Nicholas hummed—he wasn't very surprised at the turn of events.

Before going abroad, he had thought of this and made arrangements in advance to hide his whereabouts, so that Remus' people were only aware that he was abroad, but not the fact that he was now in Vienna.

However, when he realized that Remus had unpredictable thoughts, Nicholas did not intend to lower his guard.

He coldly commanded, "For these few days, tell the people below to keep their mouths shut. If anyone leaks the news, don't blame me for being ruthless."

"Got it." Edward took the order.

Then, Nicholas explained a few more things and hung up the phone.

Now that he and Tessa were finally together, he would never give anyone a chance to destroy them.

Not long after putting down the phone, someone knocked on the door outside.

When Timothy saw Nicholas opening the door, he said with a smile, "My sister called earlier and said that breakfast is ready. Let's go over."

Nicholas nodded. He went back to the room, took his suit jacket and followed Timothy to Tessa's apartment.

Gregory was already awake in the apartment.

He didn't forget that today was Tessa's birthday. As soon as he opened his eyes, he gave her a sweet kiss.

Always Been Yours Chapter 350

Chapter 350 Birthday on a Cruise Ship

"Miss Tessa, happy birthday!"

"Thank you, Greg."

A joyful Tessa kissed the child on his cheek.

Then, she took out the clothes that she had previously bought with the toys and put them on him.

Now that he was wearing his gorgeous new clothes, Gregory was ecstatic and the smile on his face never faltered.

He couldn't wait to show off to them when Nicholas and Timothy entered the door.

"Daddy, Mr. Timothy, look, these are the new clothes that Miss Tessa bought for me. Don't they look awesome?"

"They look lovely."

Nicholas and Timothy's doting compliments made the smile on the child's face grow even brighter.

At this time, the two of them looked at Tessa with gentle eyes and said in unison.

"Tessa, happy birthday."

"Tess, happy birthday."

Then, Gregory also joined in and wished, "Miss Tessa, happy birthday!"

Tessa looked at the people in front of her with a heart that was full of happiness. She smiled and thanked them before beckoning them to have breakfast.

During the meal, Gregory stuffed his mouth full and complimented her in all kinds of ways, "Breakfast made by Miss Tessa is really delicious, if only I can eat it all the time."

Tessa was about to melt from his cuteness. She patted the child's back lightly and commented lovingly, "Eat slowly. There will be more tomorrow."

He nodded, but didn't stop moving.

After the meal, she had planned to take them out for a walk.

Gregory was holding Tessa as he jumped around in excitement.

Nicholas and Timothy were standing on each side to protect them both.

Along the way, the four of them talked and laughed.

Apart from that, Tessa had also made plans. She would take her brother and Gregory to visit the surrounding attractions today before they would have a meal and cake together in the evening. If they could really do that, she would be very satisfied.

It was just that plans could never keep up with the changes.

Nicholas had already made arrangements for her birthday where in the afternoon, he took Tessa, Timothy and Gregory to a cruise ship.

When they boarded the cruise ship, there was already a handsome steward in a vest waiting for them there.

"Mr. Sawyer, this way please."

He respectfully walked in front while leading the way for Nicholas and the others.

Tessa held Gregory and looked at her brother, but she didn't ask anything and only followed Nicholas.

A few minutes later, the steward took them to the door of a deluxe suite before he handed the room card to Nicholas and turned to leave.

"Mr. Sawyer, this is the room card. I wish you a good time."

Tessa looked at the departing steward and finally found the opportunity to ask, "Nicholas, what are we doing here?"

Timothy also looked at Nicholas when he heard the question.

"You'll know later. Now, we'll enter first."

After speaking, Nicholas was the first one to open the door and thereafter walked into the room.

The room was lavish with excellent lighting while soft carpet adorned the floor.

"I have instructed someone to keep a dress in the room. You should change into your dress first and we will attend the banquet on the ship later," he said to Tessa as he pointed to one of the bedrooms.

She glanced at the room. As if she had thought of something funny, she suddenly burst out laughing.

"What's wrong?" Nicholas looked over suspiciously.

Tessa waved her hand, but the smile on the corner of her mouth did not diminish at all. "It's nothing. I just remembered that the first time I saw you and Gregory was on a cruise ship."

When he heard this, he also thought of the scene at that time and laughed.

At the time, Gregory always wanted to follow Tessa and the level of his persistence had astonished Nicholas at one point, but he didn't expect that it was actually the nature of them being mother and child.

However, he was also fortunate that Gregory's persistence prevented him from missing out on her.

As he was thinking about it, he looked at Tessa tenderly. "Go ahead and change into your dress."

Tessa nodded, after which she turned and entered the room.

Nicholas waited in the living room with Gregory and Timothy.

She later walked out with an off-shoulder white dress with a V-neck and immediately amazed the people in the living room.

The slit of the attire was above her knees and revealed her perfect legs. As she had a slender waist, it made her look charming and elegant.

Always Been Yours Chapter 351

Chapter 351 Mommy, Hug Me

“Miss Tessa, you look beautiful.”

Gregory was the first to return to his senses before he clapped and shouted in surprise.

At this time, Nicholas and Timothy also regained their composure.

“You’re beautiful,” Timothy praised Tessa as well.

When she heard all the compliments, she felt embarrassed.

Then, Nicholas walked over with Gregory in his arms. His handsome face bore the kind of tenderness that no one else had ever seen before. “See, I knew that this dress would compliment you well.”

With that, he raised his arm in Tessa’s direction and motioned for her to tuck her arm in his.

Only then did Tessa realize that the dress she wore had perfectly matched Nicholas’ black tuxedo.

When she thought of the man’s secret thoughts, her heart felt like it was dripping in honey.

When they were going out, Tessa held Nicholas’ arm while he carried Gregory.

As for Timothy, he followed behind them.

Hunky men and a beautiful woman with a cute child—it was a sight for sore eyes.

When they arrived at the banquet hall, the waiter present took the initiative to greet Nicholas and the rest of them with a subservient attitude.

At this time, there were already many guests wearing suits and leathers being accompanied by beautiful and elegant women in the banquet hall.

The soothing violin music created a cheerful atmosphere in the air.

Gregory looked left and right in Nicholas's arms while Timothy also looked around without leaving a trace.

Nicholas leaned against Tessa's ear and explained in a warm voice, "This banquet is organized by the cruise company, and only the guests of the VIP suite are eligible to enter. The purpose is to provide a place for the established guests to make connections, which is considered a fixture activity of this cruise ship."

After she listened to his introduction, she looked curiously at the guests around her and found that they were all from all over the world.

It was a grand party with a magnificent atmosphere where these people seemed like they could have small talk with their peers.

At this time, a waiter came over and since Tessa was a little thirsty, she took a glass of juice from him and sipped on it.

Nicholas looked at her peaceful appearance just as the corners of his mouth curled up into a beautiful arc.

He turned his head and said to Timothy, "You may have unexpected results when you walk around."

Timothy also had this intention. Since he wanted to expand the company, connections were essential.

When Tessa saw this, she did not interfere but looked at Nicholas and asked, "What about you? Do you want to establish connections?"

"My task today is to accompany you," he replied softly in a tone that was full of tenderness.

Their eyes met, and they shared a sweet moment.

However, such a good atmosphere was ruined by Gregory who didn't understand their meaningful glance.

"I want to accompany Miss Tessa too." He raised his little hand and looked at Tessa with joy.

Helplessness danced in Nicholas' eyes. If he had known earlier that this would happen, he would have asked Timothy to take the child away.

Tessa saw Nicholas' depressed look and laughed. "Well, Greg, I'm very happy with you accompanying me too."

After chatting and laughing for a while, they found a place with a good view where the sea breeze was blowing against the railing.

At this time, a man of foreign descent approached them.

He was a gentleman who seemed to be interested in Tessa as he asked her with a glass of wine, "Hey beautiful, I wonder whether I have the chance to invite you to a glass of wine."

Tessa was stunned for a moment as she didn't expect that someone would come to talk to her.

Just as she was about to refuse, she saw that Gregory had reached out from Nicholas' arms and yelled, "Mommy, hug me."

She was shocked.

The man was also slightly stunned, after which he looked at Gregory and at the stunning Nicholas standing next to her before breaking into a knowing smile.

"Sorry for bothering you," the man apologized. Then, he turned around to leave without pestering her anymore.

At this time, Tessa also recovered from her shock. She hugged Gregory and asked, "Why did you suddenly say that?"

"Daddy taught me to say that." He immediately betrayed his father.

Tessa didn't know whether to laugh or cry while she looked at Nicholas standing next to her.

Nicholas noticed her gaze, and his expression was calm.

Always Been Yours Chapter 352

Chapter 352 May I Have This Dance?

After all, it was not wrong for Gregory to call her that.

Tessa didn't know this, so she blushed a little instead.

She didn't know what to say to Nicholas, so she deliberately forgot the little episode earlier and laughed with Gregory.

Timothy returned a short while later. When she saw that he was in a good mood, she guessed that he probably gained something.

“Let’s go and get some food.”

Nicholas glanced at the time and led Tessa toward the dining table.

She did not refuse as she felt that this banquet was a simple social occasion, unlike the upper class society in the country that had many rules.

Anyway, she was still very relaxed and comfortable after a while.

The group of four found a table by the window after taking their dishes and sat down.

They ate their delicious food while admiring the view of the sea.

At this time, a handsome emcee in a tuxedo took to the stage to give a speech.

“Thank you very much for participating in this cruise...” There were a lot of formal words in his speech before he changed his tone to announce with a smile, “In addition, I was entrusted by a guest tonight to celebrate his girlfriend’s birthday here. Tonight, all the expenses in this banquet hall will be covered by this guest.”

As soon as the emcee finished speaking, there were cheers and applause from the audience.

Those present were searching for the identity of the said guest and his girlfriend.

Tessa was stunned for a moment.

She subconsciously looked at the man sitting opposite her with a racing heart.

The corners of Nicholas’ mouth were slightly upturned while a faint smile appeared in his dark eyes.

At this time, the emcee spoke again, “Now, let’s all welcome Mr. Sawyer and his girlfriend, Miss Reinhart.”

Almost as soon as the words fell, the bright white spotlight shone on them.

Nicholas and Tessa instantly became the focus of the audience as they erupted into warm applause again.

“My God. this is too romantic.”

“That woman is so lucky.”

“I envy that woman.”

When she listened to the envious voices all around her, Tessa covered her mouth. She no longer knew how to describe her excitement at that moment and her eyes had started to sting a little.

Then, Nicholas stood up and extended his right hand to her.

She didn't know what he was going to do, but she still put her hand in his without any hesitation.

When he felt the softness of her hand in his palm, he tightly held onto her.

He gazed at Tessa and said in a pleasant voice, “Leave it to me tonight.”

After he finished speaking, he led her toward the emcee.

All eyes were on the two of them.

The emcee passed the microphone with a wink and gave up his seat when he saw them.

Tessa looked at Nicholas who brought them to the stage and had already guessed in her heart what he was going to do.

Sure enough, in the next second, she heard the gentle and pleasant voice of the man resounding throughout the banquet hall.

“Today is the first birthday that my girlfriend and I are celebrating together since we started dating. It has a very special meaning to us. Thank you for being here and I hope you have a good time here tonight.”

After Nicholas finished speaking, he looked sideways at Tessa.

The two looked at each other affectionately with thunderous applause ringing in their ears.

On the side was the emcee, who coaxed and suggested, “Miss Reinhart, since you're the birthday star tonight, why don't you have an opening dance with Mr. Sawyer?”

A dance...

Tessa looked forward to it but she was also a little embarrassed to look at Nicholas.

Under the light, the man was tall and slender. His facial features were as handsome and flawless as though he was crafted by the gods, and he had a tenderness that seemed to indulge people.

Nicholas noticed Tessa's gaze and smiled.

Then, he took a step back like a knight in a fairy tale to bend forward and offer his hand to her. "Do I have the honor of inviting my girlfriend to a dance?"

"Certainly."

At this moment, Tessa felt as though she was a young girl whose heart was about to explode. As if there were a thousand butterflies in her stomach, her heartbeat accelerated instantly and it couldn't stop at all.

With a sweet smile on the corners of her mouth, she placed her hand in the warm palm.

A beautiful waltz music then sounded moments later.

Always Been Yours Chapter 353

Chapter 353 Make a Wish

Nicholas danced with Tessa in his arms.

The two were so close that they could hear each other's heartbeats. They stared at each other deeply, as if everything around them was blurred where they only had each other in their eyes.

Some people gradually joined the dance floor with their female partners.

However, the stage lights were only on Tessa and Nicholas.

Timothy held Gregory while glancing at the brightest pair in the center of the dance floor and joked, "It seems that we can only dance together."

Then, he stretched out his hand to Gregory in a chivalrous manner.

When Gregory looked at the clean, slender fingers in front of him, he mischievously replied, "Okay. Since you don't have a girlfriend, I'll reluctantly dance with you."

When they saw the interaction between this adult and child, many people were amused by the cuteness of it all and laughed in good nature.

Gregory and Timothy didn't care either and entered the dance floor with giggles.

Although the two had quite a huge height difference, they were still able to have a harmonious dance.

The two danced and came to Tessa and Nicholas' side.

She looked at the two of them having a good time, which rendered her stunned for a moment before she couldn't help laughing while Nicholas' face was full of tenderness.

Later, in the second half of the music, Timothy and Nicholas exchanged dance partners.

"Miss Tessa." Gregory happily took Tessa's hand and imitated his daddy's dance steps earlier.

Tessa was also happy to cooperate with Gregory while Nicholas and Timothy smiled at each other before they stood on the edge of the dance floor.

When the song was over, everyone stopped dancing.

At this time, the lights at the scene suddenly went dark, after which the birthday song started playing. A waiter then emerged from the darkness with a three-tiered cake.

Tessa's eyes grew misty in surprise.

The surrounding guests spontaneously sang the birthday song as well.

It was not until the cake was pushed in front of Tessa that the singing stopped and the lights were turned on again.

She looked at the delicate cake. Her eyes finally fell on Nicholas to tell him that she was touched.

At this time, Gregory excitedly took Tessa's hand and urged, "Miss Tessa, quickly make a wish! Make a wish and we will slice the cake together."

I wish that in the future, my brother and I can be safe and successful in our careers.

I wish that my relationship with Nicholas will have fewer ups and downs. It will not be tumultuous, but rather flat and smooth-sailing.

I wish that Greg will be happy every day, and free from illness and disaster.

After silently making her wish, she blew out the candles on the cake.

"Miss Tessa, what did you wish for?" a curious Gregory asked.

Nicholas and Timothy also looked over at her.

Tessa thought of her wish and felt a little embarrassed. She rubbed the tip of Gregory's nose affectionately and responded with a smile, "If you say your wish out loud, then it's not a wish anymore. Come on, let's slice the cake."

Gregory was really distracted and smiled happily. "I want to slice the cake with you, Miss Tessa."

"Okay, let's do it together."

As soon as she said this, she noticed a hot gaze on her and realized that it was Nicholas staring at her with a faint expression. Her cheeks were slightly red as she invited, "Why don't you join us?"

And just like that, Tessa held Gregory and Nicholas to slice the cake together.

After distributing the slices of cake, the emcee came over at this time on behalf of the cruise company. "Miss Reinhart, this is a birthday gift that was specially customized by our company for you. I hope you like it."

Tessa was surprised. She didn't expect the cruise company to prepare gifts.

She opened the gift box and couldn't help but exclaim.

It turned out to be a set of figurines in the gift box which astonishingly resembled just like her and Nicholas. Gregory was of course included too.

There were three figures together—they looked like a beautiful family and Tessa loved this gift a lot.

"Thank you. I like it very much."

"I'm glad you do, Miss Reinhart."

After saying those words, the emcee then said his farewell.

Tessa was holding the gift box and feeling unbelievably happy. Then, she looked sideways at the calm man beside her with sweetness. "Nicholas, thank you."

Always Been Yours Chapter 354

Chapter 354 Take a Guess

Thank you for giving me such an unforgettable birthday.

Nicholas stretched out with his hand and pulled the woman into his arms. His voice was soft and pleasant as he answered, "You don't need to thank me. I am willing to do this for you."

When she heard those words, Tessa only felt that she was extremely blessed.

Nicholas left the banquet hall with Tessa later that night.

She originally thought that he was just bringing her out for a drive, but who knew that he wanted to bring her to the restaurant to be alone together with her?

As she followed him, she looked sideways at the banquet hall that was getting farther from her sight and asked, "We're leaving? But what about Greg?"

"It's fine with your brother watching over him."

He led her to walk down the quiet aisle.

Tessa thought about it too, so she felt relieved and followed Nicholas out. "When did you arrange the plan at the banquet earlier?"

When she thought of what had happened at the banquet, she was curious. She felt that there would have been no way for him to prepare so many surprises in advance.

Nicholas smiled mysteriously and said warmly, "You will find out later."

"So mysterious?" Tessa muttered with laughter, but she couldn't help looking forward to it.

After a few minutes, they arrived at the restaurant.

"Mr. Jackson, why are you here?!"

Tessa looked at Edward standing at the entrance of the restaurant in surprise.

The man was wearing a black suit and he had a small smile on the corner of his mouth. After greeting Tessa, he explained, "I was here a few days before President Sawyer."

In short, Tessa already understood how Nicholas was able to execute everything without her knowing.

Everything on the cruise ship was obviously communicated by Edward in advance.

He continued, "President Sawyer, everything has been arranged here. I wish you and Miss Reinhart a happy night."

After a pause, he looked at Tessa and showed a sincere smile. "I also wish you a happy birthday."

"Thank you," Tessa thanked him.

Edward nodded before he proposed to leave with the other two since he had planned to head to the banquet hall to look for Timothy and Gregory.

Only Nicholas and Tessa were left in the corridor.

"Let's go in." Nicholas led her into the restaurant.

As soon as she entered, she found that the interior of the restaurant had been carefully arranged.

The rose petals that were everywhere permeated the air with a faint floral fragrance.

There were some candles scattered in every corner of the restaurant that was now lit and gave the entire restaurant a hazy yet romantic aura, as if it was a scene in an oil painting.

Tessa's heart throbbed when she saw this. She looked at Nicholas with a laugh. "How many surprises have you prepared for me?"

"Take a guess," Nicholas said as he brought her to the dining table.

He was very gentle and thoughtful, and even pulled the dining chair for her.

When she sat down, he took a detour and sat opposite her.

As soon as they were seated, the waiters of the restaurant emerged to place the exquisitely cooked dishes on the table and quickly backed out.

After a while, it was only Tessa and Nicholas left in the restaurant. At this time, the soothing music sounded.

She was in a great mood while eating delicious food. Then, she propped her chin, looked at Nicholas with a smile, and forced herself to ask, "Be honest. What else have you prepared for me?"

Nicholas smiled lightly.

At this time, an explosion came from outside the window.

Tessa turned her head and saw the gorgeous fireworks outside the window before being stunned.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

The fireworks continued and illuminated the dark sky. At times, they looked like a meteor or a spark at other moments with its color and beauty.

After a few minutes, the sky returned to calmness and darkness.

She looked at the man opposite her with tears in her eyes. She had already lost count as to how many times her heart has been moved tonight.

“Do you like it?”

The man’s hoarse and low voice sounded in her ears, like a cello.

Tessa took a breath and nodded vigorously.

Nicholas curled the corners of his lips to reveal a beautiful smile. He placed the stack of peeled shrimp in front of Tessa. “I’m glad. Then, let’s eat.”

Always Been Yours Chapter 355

Chapter 355 More Gifts and Surprises

Under the yellowish candlelight, the figures of both people became illusory and beautiful.

After the meal, Tessa looked at Nicholas with a smile and asked, “Where are we going next?”

“Come with me.”

He led her where they thereafter started to climb the stairs.

The sea breeze blew and caused Tessa’s black hair to blow in the air, and her white skirt fluttered in the wind to reveal her slender, beautiful long legs.

A few minutes later, the two were standing on the top deck. Tessa looked around, but unexpectedly discovered that there was no one else here except for them.

As if he saw through her doubts, Nicholas placed his arms around her slender waist and lowered his head slightly before he approached her small and exquisite ears. “This place is off limits.”

Off limits? She blinked her eyes and said in surprise, “Don’t tell me that you reserved this place too?”

“You guessed it right,” he responded with a smile.

She was stunned again. “You are too extravagant.”

“Well, I did say that the first birthday we’re spending together is very memorable.” Nicholas didn’t think it was a waste at all. On the contrary, he was elated. “Follow me.”

He pulled Tessa inside, and there was another staircase leading up.

After going up, she was stunned by the scenery in front of her.

The top floor had also been clearly decorated with care where there was a white light and a fence wrapped with colorful small lights.

At the very center of the top floor was a large bouquet of champagne roses with its faint floral fragrance permeating its surroundings.

Nicholas walked over and held the bouquet before standing in front of Tessa again.

Tessa only thought that there was a bouquet in front of her, but she saw Nicholas taking out an exquisitely crafted necklace with a unique shape from the bouquet of roses, as if he was doing magic.

She could also read the words engraved on the necklace through the light. After she did so, she covered her lips as her heart exploded.

“I’ll put it on for you.”

While speaking, Nicholas shoved the bouquet of champagne roses into Tessa’s arms and walked behind her.

Tessa looked down at the necklace on her chest, only to realize that the words engraved on it seemed to be the date that they became a couple.

At this moment, she was very moved.

Very few men remembered things such as anniversaries.

“Nicholas, how can you be so good to me?”

“Because you deserve the best.” Nicholas looked back at Tessa, his dark eyes filled with endless tenderness. “I’ll show you one more thing.”

He pulled her to the place where the champagne roses were placed earlier.

It was only then that she discovered that there was also a big gift box, which she thought was touching yet rather comical. Haven't I already received enough gifts?

Nicholas didn't know Tessa's thoughts.

He helped her to place the bouquet of champagne roses aside before taking the big gift box. "Open it up and take a look."

Tessa glanced at him and stretched out with her hand to untie the ribbon on the box.

The moment the gift box was opened, she froze in place.

It was an exceptionally delicate violin. She recognized this violin almost at first glance. It was the famous 'Thena' worth 45 million dollars and also the one handcrafted by the famous Italian violinist Tradivari.

"This is too expensive for me to accept." Tessa came back to her senses and immediately closed the gift box.

"There is nothing you can't accept." Nicholas insisted on gifting the violin to her.

She was afraid of breaking it, so she had to gingerly pick up the gift box when his low and pleasant voice sounded again in her ears.

"I had searched high and low for this violin. I hope it can signify the meaning of our being together, and at the same time, I want to use it to celebrate the meaning of your new career journey. Of course, I hope it can also accompany you to perform on the best stages in the world in the future!"

After Tessa listened to Nicholas' words, she was so moved to tears that she almost cried.

She sniffed and blinked hard, trying to hold back her tears, but it was a pity that her attempts did not work.

Then, she pretended to be fierce and shouted, "Why are you so sensational? Don't you know that I can't cry on my birthday?"

Always Been Yours Chapter 356

Chapter 356 Stinky Daddy

"Alright. It's my fault for making you cry."

When she looked at the man who took the initiative to admit his mistake, Tessa burst into tears and smiled.

Nicholas looked at her with eyes that were full of tenderness and affection. "Before I met you, I would never have thought of living such a life, but after meeting you, it seems that such a life is not so bad."

When she heard the man sigh, she stared at him for a few seconds.

Afterward, she set the violin aside, and took the initiative to step forward and hug him. "Thank you. I really enjoyed everything today."

"As long as you liked it." Nicholas hugged her back.

Under the colorful lights, the scene of them both embracing was beautiful.

After a while, Tessa raised her head and asked with a smile, "Do you want to listen to the violin? I'll play a song for you."

"Yes." He did not refuse the offer.

She nodded, walked to the side and took out the violin before the romantic A Midsummer Night's Dream slowly rang in the air.

The light and agile sound of the violin that was accompanied by the sound of the waves, the wind and the occasional chirping of seagulls resembled the mermaid from the sea singing. It was wonderful and pleasant to the ear.

In the first class, people who played the violin were more like elves exuding light, which was fascinating.

At the end of the song, Tessa looked at Nicholas expectantly. "Does it sound perfect?"

"It's wonderful," Nicholas responded as he walked over step by step. He stood still in front of Tessa, his voice soft and charming. "Do you know what I really want to do now?"

Tessa's heart inexplicably skipped a beat. She shook her head. "I don't."

"I want to kiss you."

Nicholas took the violin in her hand and put it on the table beside him, then lowered his head suddenly and kissed her soft lips.

The fragrance that belonged to her kept attracting him to deepen the kiss.

He couldn't help but clasp the woman's slender waist tightly as if to absorb her into his body, but even so, he still felt that it was not enough.

Tessa was dizzy and weak from the kiss, and she could only instinctively grab the item next to her for support.

While she was in a state of confusion, Nicholas suddenly released her and lifted her into the air.

Tessa, who had lost her balance, instantly sobered up. She looked at the man with forbearance and knew very well what might happen next.

In an instant, she became nervous and panicked.

“I-I didn’t take the violin.”

She tried to divert his attention and stall for time.

However, Nicholas didn’t care at all. “Someone will come up to clean this place later.”

After that, he carried her and strode away.

Back in the room, Tessa looked at the big bed that was getting closer. Her nervous heart jumped to her throat and her whole body was stiff.

The next moment, she was placed on the bed and a dark shadow pressed down on her.

Nicholas was leaning against Tessa, and he was naturally aware of her tense body.

He suppressed his body’s urge and kissed her eyebrows lightly before speaking in a sexy and hoarse voice. “Don’t be scared, okay?”

Tessa looked at the blue veins on Nicholas’s forehead that popped out due to his patient endurance. Her heart suddenly moved, as if she had nothing to be afraid of.

She nodded lightly, as if giving Nicholas some kind of signal.

The air in the room suddenly increased in temperature.

At the banquet, Greg was unhappy that he had been left behind. He also wanted to live with Aunt Tessa and give gifts to her as well.

“Daddy is really rude. Bad Daddy, stinky Daddy,” he scolded his daddy in anger as he pouted.

Edward and Timothy laughed when they saw this.

“Okay, Greg. Don’t be angry. Your daddy will come back with your Aunt Tessa in a while,” Edward coaxed the child, but it did not do much.

“Daddy was the one to surprise Miss Tessa first, so I can’t surprise her with my gift anymore.” Gregory folded his arms and pouted softly.

His small appearance simply made people think that he was adorable.

As Timothy was affected by his cuteness, he crouched down and cajoled, “Then, I’ll take you to Miss Tessa’s room, and we’ll come up with a surprise for her while waiting for her to come back. Okay?”

Chapter 357 This Is Quite Inconvenient

When he heard this, Gregory’s dim eyes immediately brightened.

“Okay, okay. Let’s go to Miss Tessa’s room now.”

Then, the two adults and one child returned to the door of the deluxe suite.

As it was inconvenient to open the door with Gregory in his arms, Timothy handed the room key to Edward and asked him to unlock the door instead.

Edward was about to push the door to enter when he heard some movement from the bedroom and he smoothly shut the room door.

“Mr. Jackson, what are you doing?” Timothy watched Edward’s series of actions and did not know why he did that.

Gregory also asked, “Mr. Jackson, what are you doing when you open and close the door? We haven’t even entered yet.”

“Well, Mr. Reinhart, Gregory, let’s wait in the next room.” Edward laughed dryly and tried to persuade the two to head next door, but unfortunately failed.

A suspicious Timothy frowned. “What are we going to do next door? Let’s just wait in my sister’s room.”

“Yeah, I have to prepare a surprise for Aunt Tessa.” Gregory nodded.

When he saw Timothy wanting to get the room card to reopen the door, Edward was in a hurry. He stopped Timothy’s hand more and hinted at him, “This is quite inconvenient.”

“What’s the inconvenience?”

As soon as Timothy finished speaking, he became stunned for a moment and looked at Edward suddenly, as if to ask something in the silence.

Edward nodded knowingly.

In an instant, Timothy had an indescribable expression.

The atmosphere suddenly became weird as Gregory didn't understand what kind of riddles Timothy and Edward were playing.

His jet-black eyes gazed between them both as he urged, "Mr. Timothy, let's go in quickly. Or else, Miss Tessa will come back later, but my surprise is still not ready yet."

Timothy coughed awkwardly when he heard Gregory's suggestion. "Greg, let's go to your father's room and wait instead."

Gregory was suspicious. "Miss Tessa doesn't live at Daddy's place, so why should I wait at Daddy's place?"

Now that the child had posed such a question, Timothy was at a loss of words and said dryly, "Aunt Tessa will go to your father's room. Be good and listen to me, alright."

Gregory looked at Timothy with skepticism, then looked at the closed door, and agreed in the end.

In the large and bright living room, Timothy sat on the sofa with Gregory in his arms and Edward.

Minutes passed and Gregory was so sleepy that he rubbed his eyes.

He tugged on Timothy's sleeve and asked in confusion, "Mr. Timothy, how long will it take for Aunt Tessa and Daddy to come back? I'm so sleepy."

Timothy and Edward subconsciously glanced at the time and found that it was past one o'clock in the morning. They both knew that Tessa and Nicholas would not be appearing again tonight.

At that moment, both of them sympathetically looked at Gregory.

In the early morning of the next day, she felt as if she had been run over by a car when she woke up, and her entire body was sore.

A pleasant magnetic voice sounded in his ear. "You're awake."

Tessa saw that Nicholas was already dressed and sitting on the chair by the window, looking refreshed. At this sight, the memories of last night also poured out like a tide.

She blushed instantly and pulled the quilt to cover herself. It was crazy last night.

She also went crazy with Nicholas...

When he looked at Tessa trying to hide herself, Nicholas laughed before he stepped forward to pull the blanket and said warmly, "Don't suffocate yourself."

"That's none of your business." Tessa's dull voice emerged.

Who could've predicted that there really was no movement outside the quilt as soon as these words came out?

She couldn't help pulling off the quilt and unexpectedly saw a magnified handsome face.

After being startled, she asked sullenly, "Why are you scaring me?"

Her voice was very soft and she sounded a little coquettish.

Nicholas was enjoying this a lot and said with a chuckle, "I didn't scare you. I just wanted to see how long you plan to hide under there. If you're suffocated, then I'll save you at first instance."

Tessa's already blushing cheeks became even hotter when she heard this.

Chapter 358 Present

"I don't need your help."

"Yes, of course you don't."

They played around for a while, and Tessa started to let loose. Nicholas noticed that, and he picked her up. "Alright, fun's over. Time for breakfast. And we'll have to pamper Gregory a little."

"Huh? Why?" Tessa looked at him, confused.

Nicholas smiled. "We left him alone the whole night, and he's going to be angry about it. Not to mention I took you for myself the whole night."

For some reason, she had a feeling Nicholas was trying to say something else, and she glared at him in embarrassment. "It's all your fault!"

Wait. Gregory was with Timothy. Oh no. That means Timothy knows about this too. Her face turned pink. How am I supposed to face them? She still had to see them no matter how reluctant she was. Fortunately, she calmed down a lot after she washed herself up.

A while later, they went to knock on the door of the house next door, and Timothy came to open it. He looked at the two of them, his gaze mysterious.

Nicholas let him look all he wanted, though Tessa seemed fidgety. She tried to ease the awkward air, and she said, "Good morning, Timothy."

"Morning, Tessa."

It got even more awkward. In the end, Tessa put her pride aside and asked, "Is Greg up?"

"Yes, and he is sulking." He opened the door fully and let them in.

They saw Gregory in the living room, though his back was turned on them angrily. Amused, Tessa went and sat beside him. "We're back, Greg."

Gregory puckered his lips. "Miss Tessa, Daddy's gone too far. He promised we'd celebrate your birthday together, but he took you for himself the whole night!"

Tessa nodded. "Yeah, he did go too far."

"I don't like him anymore."

"Yeah, you do that."

Nicholas shot Tessa a look, and she looked back at him. The look in her eyes said, 'Your son said that himself. I have nothing to do with it'. Since Gregory still looked sulky, Tessa ignored Nicholas and went back to coaxing the boy. She held him in his arms, saying, "I'm really, really sorry I stood you up last night, Gregory."

Gregory pursed his lips, and he finally relented. "Fine. I'll forgive you then, but you have to give me something in return."

"Of course. You can have anything you want, as long as you don't stay angry." Tessa touched his nose with hers. "Why don't I spend the whole day with you then? I'll do everything with you."

Gregory's eyes shone, and it was as if stars twinkled within them. "That's a promise then, Miss Tessa."

"Of course. Pinky promise?" Tessa raised her pinky.

Gregory pulled her hand down and smiled. "It's alright. I trust you."

Tessa heaved a sigh of relief seeing that he finally smiled again.

Just then, Gregory seemed to remember something. He got off the sofa and said, "Give me a minute, Miss Tessa. I have something for you." He went into his bedroom and came back a while later, though he had a little robot following him.

Tessa noticed that the robot was a miniature version of the one in Dynasty Gardens' basement.

"Here's my present for you, Miss Tessa." Gregory sent the robot up to her using voice command. "You don't have that big robot overseas, so I'll give you this little one. Now we both have our own secret robot."
