

Dae Hyun laid Soo Yin's body on the bed and then spread a thick blanket to cover her body. The man could not understand if his wife would act stupid again.

"Where are you going?" Soo Yin held Dae Hyun's wrist when he seemed to be about to step out.

"I want to go to the next room to see Yeon Ho," said Dae Hyun as he turned to Soo Yin.

"Don't go," Soo Yin whined. Worried that when Dae Hyun was not with her, he will believe the photo.

"I just take a moment to clean myself and change clothes. Only 15 minutes, it won't take long," said Dae Hyun with a smile. Reassured Soo Yin that he won't be long.

"Hurry back," said Soo Yin with pouting lips and a sad face.

Dae Hyun nodded his head before finally disappearing behind the door. He sighed heavily, he was almost consumed by Aeri's words when he saw Soo Yin's photo with Gong Yoo.

Dae Hyun was actually almost angry with Soo Yin when he arrived. But he couldn't bear to see Soo Yin sobbing and kneeling in front of him. The feeling of annoyance he had been feeling all day instantly disappeared.

Dae Hyun was actually lying if he didn't know about Soo Yin's photo with Gong Yoo. He even met with Aeri to prove her words. Dae Hyun also found out that Soo Yin was looking for him with Chung Ho.

He knew he might have gone too far with Soo Yin. But he didn't want to meet Soo Yin when his heart was burning with jealousy. It would be fatal because it was possible that Soo Yin would be offended by his words.

If only Chung Ho hadn't called him, saying that Soo Yin was still standing on the balcony late into the night. Possibly until the morning Dae Hyun would just come home.

Dae Hyun sat on the side of his son's bed. Stroking his hair that covered his forehead. If he hadn't stopped Aeri, surely Jo Yeon Ho would have been in the UN Village by now.

"Forgive father for making you wait all day," Dae Hyun said softly with complicated feelings. Lucky to have calmed himself down so his emotions wouldn't explode.

Dae Hyun remembered of having to meet Soo Yin again so he immediately went to the bathroom.

Half an hour later Dae Hyun returned to meet Soo Yin in the room. He hoped that his wife was asleep because she hadn't slept at all since then.

Dae Hyun gently pushed the door so as not to wake Soo Yin. After making sure she fell asleep, he wanted to go back to Jo Yeon Ho's room to accompany him to sleep.

But it was a shame because Soo Yin was still awake and actually sat up when she saw Dae Hyun.

"What did take you so long?" Soo Yin grumbled as she pursed her lips. A little disappointed because she had to wait longer.

"Why haven't you slept yet? Haven't you slept at all since the afternoon?" Dae Hyun pinched the space between his eyebrows as he walked over to Soo Yin.

"I can't sleep," Soo Yin said.

"Why? Are you still thinking about what happened today? Don't worry about it, you better rest. I don't want you to get sick just thinking about this problem." Dae Hyun sat on the side of the bed then cupped Soo Yin's face to look into his eyes. Tried to find the lie in her eyes but couldn't see it.

Dae Hyun immediately dispelled the bad thought. There was no way that Soo Yin would lie knowing that. Maybe he should go to Gong Yoo for an explanation.

"I'm afraid you won't believe me." Soo Yin buried her head in Dae Hyun's chest. All day she was so scared that it seemed very difficult to just disappear.

Dae Hyun rubbed Soo Yin's back.

'I'm really sorry, honey. I can't get rid of my jealousy and possessiveness if you're with another man,' Dae Hyun thought with his eyes closed. Honestly, when he remembered of the video and photo, those made his heart hurt so much.

"Why do you think like that?" Dae Hyun asked.

"I know that you won't like to see me with other men even if we don't do anything," Soo Yin said with all her fear because she would feel relieved if she said everything.

"You know, I'm really jealous. I feel like I want to kill that guy." Dae Hyun hugged Soo Yin even tighter. At first he was going to lie and hide it but Dae Hyun couldn't lie in front of Soo Yin. Not satisfied if he hadn't tell her about his feelings.

"So you actually knew? Then why didn't you answer my phone?" Soo Yin grumbled, wanting to let go but Dae Hyun didn't let her go.

"Hmmm, I just wanted to calm myself down before meeting you. I was worried that if I met you when you were emotional it would hurt your feelings. That's why I left and intended to go home tomorrow morning," Dae Hyun said honestly so that his feelings were much more relieved and there was nothing to hide.

"If you come home tomorrow maybe we won't see each other again," Soo Yin said quietly.

"What are you going to do to talk like that?"

"Who's going to stay out all night when it's snowing? Maybe I'll freeze if you come home until morning."

"I have repeatedly told you not to act stupid like that. Don't do anything that endangers yourself. You should think before you act," said Dae Hyun.

"You should also know that I like to act unreasonably when I'm sad," replied Soo Yin, who until now had not been able to get rid of her reckless nature.

"Your childish nature hasn't changed at all," Dae Hyun sneered.

"Your over-possessive nature also couldn't heal until now." Soo Yin sneered at her husband no less fiercely for not wanting to lose.

"About that, I really won't be able to get rid of it so you don't dare to be close to other men at will," said Dae Hyun in a relaxed tone. As if his bad nature was an advantage.

"You don't seem to have any intention of getting rid of your bad behaviour," Soo Yin grumbled.

Dae Hyun just chuckled in response to his wife's words. This was the first time Dae Hyun was so possessive of women. Maybe because Soo Yin was too meaningful in his life.

"It's getting late. We should rest." Dae Hyun released his embrace then cupped Soo Yin's face. He kissed her eyelids alternately down her cheeks. Grateful that the misunderstanding was over. There was no need to continue until tomorrow morning.

Dae Hyun laid down first followed by Soo Yin by his side.

Soo Yin was relieved that her fear was over.

"I love you, Honey," said Dae Hyun.

"I love you too, My Hubby," Soo Yin replied then kissed her husband's cheek.

They then began to close their eyes because their heart felt relieved.. Heavy sleepiness slowly began to appear, taking them to the subconscious into a beautiful dream.