

Hae Sok looked at Park Soo Hyun who was just silently looking down while playing with his food. She wanted to ask more about Dae Hyun, but Hae Sok didn't want to. She understood that Park Soo Hyun's feelings were very sensitive right now. Luckily he didn't do anything unnatural.

"Soo Hyun, why don't you have breakfast? Are you feeling unwell?" Hae Sok asked carefully so as not to offend him.

Park Soo Hyun held his head up because his head had been dizzy for the past few days and his strength had weakened. Maybe due to overwork and lack of sleep. So many problems in the hotel made him work extra hard. He was unable to control his two uncles who acted as they pleased in the hotel.

"I probably don't get enough sleep so some days if in the morning my head hurts and I don't have an appetite," said Park Soo Hyun honestly.

"If you are sick, you should call Doctor Kang to check. I don't want something bad happen to you," said Mrs. Park who was immediately worried about the condition of her youngest son.

"Mom, don't overdo it like that. I'm not a weak man, just because I work hard then I'll get sick," said Park Soo Hyun with a bent face. Since childhood he did not like to be considered weak.

"Soo Hyun, I'm just worried. If you're really okay, you should have breakfast," said Mrs. Park.

Park Soo Hyun sighed heavily. Seeing his worried mother made him uncomfortable. So Park Soo Hyun put the food into his mouth.

Mrs. Park was happy that his son finally wanted to eat. She was just like a mother who had a seven year old son.

Park Soo Hyun tried to swallow the food into his mouth until several mouthfuls. Although right now it felt like he wanted to let it all out. At the fourth bite, Park Soo Hyun could no longer hold his stomach.

Park Soo Hyun immediately put his cutlery on the plate with a loud enough sound then immediately ran from the dining room to the sink located in the kitchen.

Everyone looked at each other, wondering about Park Soo Hyun today. Previously they did not know because Park Soo Hyun rarely ate at home.

"Ji Hoon, quickly call doctor Kang to come here immediately. If we're going to the doctor, I'm sure Soo Hyun won't want to," said Mrs. Park to her husband.

Obediently Park Ji Hoon immediately contacted Doctor Kang.

Mrs. Park followed Park Soo Hyun who was still in the kitchen with a loud vomiting sound. She helped to massage the nape of her son to relax and reduce the nausea.

"I'm fine, Mom," Park Soo Hyun refused when Mrs. Park was about to lead him back into the dining room.

"I'm just worried you'd collapse," said Mrs. Park honestly.

Mrs. Park then poured water into a glass and handed it to Park Soo Hyun.

"Soo Hyun, why are you like your father when I was pregnant," said Mrs. Park unconsciously.

"What do you mean Mother?" said Park Soo Hyun with a frown. Surprised by his mother's words.

"Ah, no. I just remembered that when I was pregnant, your father would have a headache in the morning and feel nauseous for several months," said Mrs. Park while smiling.

Park Soo Hyun's heart immediately skipped a beat. He suddenly remembered Jean.

'What if Jean is pregnant,' thought Park Soo Hyun. But he immediately shook his head because there was no way Jean was pregnant. This must be because he was too tired to experience something like his father.

"I'm just tired, Mom," said Park Soo Hyun so that everyone wouldn't suspect him. Maybe later he would confirm it to Jean whether what he feared was true or not.

"Of course you're just tired. Until now you haven't even brought your future wife to this house," Aeri said with a chuckle.

Aeri immediately covered her mouth with her palm when everyone looked at her with disapproval.

=====

Park Soo Hyun thought about what his mother said. Regarding his father who felt nauseous when his mother was pregnant. Did that apply to him and his brother? Even though he had tried to forget it but still can't.

Park Soo Hyun continued to massage his temples with one hand while the other hand was used to drive. After taking medicine from Doctor Kang, his body began to feel better.

"There's no way she's pregnant," Park Soo Hyun muttered with a long sigh. His mind wouldn't settle down until he met with Jean to make sure of everything.

Park Soo Hyun slowed down his vehicle as he passed a hospital. There was a girl with a downcast face who just came out. The girl looked very dispirited as her hand tightly gripped a medicine bag.

There was doubt in the man's heart to meet her today. But if not now it might be difficult for him to meet Jean again. Sometimes opportunities wouldn't come for a few times.

Park Soo Hyun stopped his car slowly right in front of Jean. Then rolled down the car window.

"Jean," he called quietly without getting out of the car. He looked at Jean with a complicated and guilty feeling.

Jean lifted her head when a voice called out to her. Such a sweet voice rang in her ears. Her eyes went wide, she couldn't believe that the man was in front of her. There was a feeling of joy and anger mixed into one.

No sound came out of Jean's mouth even though her lips moved open. Her voice seemed to be stuck in her throat along with the fear that had begun to spread throughout her body.

There was a feeling of fear in Jean's heart if the man knew what had happened to her.

Jean was still rooted to the spot because her legs didn't even want to move out of there.

"Jean, come in.. I want to talk to you," said Park Soo Hyun.