

Hallym University Medical Center,

Hae Sok was immediately rushed to the hospital to get help as soon as possible. The atmosphere that had been tense had now turned into emotion. They were still waiting for good news from the doctor who was currently treating Hae Sok in the emergency room. All her family members just hoped that Hae Sok was okay and nothing serious happened.

"Mom, calm down," Dae Hyun coaxed Mrs. Park who continued to sob. They sat on chairs right in front of the room where Hae Sok was currently being examined by a doctor.

"See, because of the chaos that happened, your grandmother had a heart attack. You should have obeyed mother to get back to the hotel immediately. If something like this happened, who is to blame?" said Mrs. Park between sobs.

Dae Hyun took a deep breath. Unexpectedly his arrival to meet Park Soo Hyun turned into chaos. A few days ago, she had asked him to return to the hotel, but he was still considering it.

"Never mind, Mom. Who knows if something like this will happen," said Dae Hyun to calm his mother.

"If your grandmother wakes up. You must obey whatever she says. Dae Hyun, be an obedient man and don't disobey your parents' words," said Mrs. Park.

Dae Hyun was silent when he heard his mother's words. It was useless to argue, he would only hurting his mother's feelings.

"How is mother?" said Hyun Bin who was one of Dae Hyun's aunts. She just came to the hospital after receiving news that Hae Sok was being treated.

"The doctor is examining her inside," said Park Ji Hoon who was standing at the door. There was a desire to be angry with his sisters but in truth, they were innocent. Their husbands were just too crazy for wealth and power.

"Hopefully mother is okay," said Shin-hye who was no less worried.

Not long after, the doctor who treated Hae Sok finally came out of the ER.

"How is my mother, Doc?" said Park Ji Hoon, wanting to know about his mother's condition immediately.

"She's fine even though her condition is still weak. I suggest not to make her think too much about something heavy. She's like this because she has too much on her mind," the doctor advised so as not to make Hae Sok's mind go sour.

"Alright, Doctor," Park Ji Hoon said understandingly.

The doctor immediately left them after chatting briefly with Park Ji Hoon.

"Remember, if you want to visit mother. Don't occasionally talk about the hotel, especially the two of you," said Park Ji Hoon while looking at his two brothers-in-law in turn.

"It seems that mother loves her son more than her daughters," Jung Woo grumbled, to which Hyung Sik immediately agreed. Then they put on a sour face.

=====

The Flower Restaurant,

The restaurant had just closed, Soo Yin was still faithfully waiting for Dae Hyun who said that he will pick her up after his business was finished from the UN Village. But until eleven o'clock at night, there was no sign of his arrival.

"What took you so long?" Soo Yin grumbled while holding back her sleepiness. She was still waiting in the backyard of the restaurant as usual while enjoying the beautiful stars in the sky.

The restaurant was very quiet because everyone had gone home except for the security guard at the front.

Soo Yin had tried to contact Dae Hyun dozens of times but he hadn't answered. Even though she was sleepy. She pulled her sweater tighter with her hands because the night breeze was enough to make her body shiver. If there was no appointment, maybe she chose to go home since earlier.

The hours went by so fast, Soo Yin really couldn't hold back her sleepiness so she slowly brought her head back on the table with both hands as support.

Dae Hyun just remembered that he had to pick up Soo Yin after a few hours at home. So he immediately rushed to the restaurant to meet Soo Yin.

Dae Hyun immediately got out of the car after parking his car in front of the restaurant which was already very quiet.

"Is Soo Yin home yet?" Dae Hyun asked the security who was on guard.

"Not yet, Master. An hour ago I asked her to come home but Miss Soo Yin insisted that she wanted to stay here, waiting for Master."

After hearing the answer from security, Dae Hyun immediately walked half-run through the side yard to look for Soo Yin's current whereabouts.

His gaze immediately fixed on someone who was sleeping in a sitting position. The beautiful face seemed freezing until her lips looked so pale.

"Honey, wake up," Dae Hyun said softly, not wanting to surprise Soo Yin with his arrival.

Soo Yin slowly opened her eyes with a blurry vision. She smiled because the person she had been waiting for had finally arrived.

"Finally you came," said Soo Yin with trembling lips. She tried to hold her head up, which felt heavy and sore.

Dae Hyun squatted in front of Soo Yin and then tightly gripped the fingers that felt so cold. He blew on it so that he could provide some warmth.

"I'm sorry, honey. I forgot to pick you up," said Dae Hyun with full of regret. He should have picked up his wife immediately after taking his grandmother to the hospital.

Being outside for too long in the cold weather made Soo Yin's head spin.

"We should go home," said Dae Hyun, who was already standing ready to carry Soo Yin's body. But before he could carry her, her the tiny body had collapsed. Luckily Dae Hyun managed to support her.

"Honey, wake up," said Dae Hyun, feeling very restless and panicked at the moment.

Without thinking, Dae Hyun immediately lifted Soo Yin's body and took her to the hospital. Worried that something happened to his little wife. The man took her to the same hospital where Hae Sok was currently being treated.

oooo

"Doctor, how is my wife doing now?" said Dae Hyun who forced his way into the patient's room even though the doctor was checking her condition.

How panicked Dae Hyun is right now along with the regret he feels. He didn't think that would happen.

"She's fine. There's nothing too serious about her. She's just tired, coupled with an empty stomach, which caused her to faint. Soon she'll wake up," explained the Doctor.

Dae Hyun nodded his head. Understood that maybe Soo Yin hadn't eaten since they promised to have dinner together. No wonder the doctor said if her stomach was empty.

"Honey, I'm sorry. I shouldn't have forgotten you," Dae Hyun said in a sad tone.

"After you wake up you can get mad at me and do anything that can vent your anger. I beg you don't keep your eyes closed for long," added Dae Hyun.

Dae Hyun stayed awake until 4 am. He felt really anxious because Soo Yin hadn't woken up yet.. But the longer it took, the sleepiness was getting heavier until slowly Dae Hyun leaned his head on the bed right next to Soo Yin.