

Soo Yin lay on her side with her back to the door because she was tired of having to lie on her back all the time.

Check...

She immediately turned around when she heard the sound of the door suddenly opening. It was quite surprising that Dae Hyun had returned even though he hadn't been gone for long.

But it wasn't Dae Hyun who was standing at the door but someone else. So Soo Yin tried to sit up and leaned against the side of the bed.

"Father," Soo Yin said with her mouth hanging open but she quickly covered her mouth. Quite surprised because her father-in-law knew where she was being treated.

Park Ji Hoon approached Soo Yin's bed with a straight face.

"How are you?" asked Park Ji Hoon.

"I'm fine, Sir," said Soo Yin with her face down because she was feeling so nervous. She had not seen face to face like that with her in-law in a long time.

"I came here just to remind you," said Park Ji Hoon directly and without further ado.

"What do you want to say?" Soo Yin could already guess that there must be something that Park Ji Hoon visited her.

"I want you as a wife to be able to persuade Dae Hyun to return to the hotel. Dae Hyun only wants to listen to what you have to say so I want you to be able to give him the best advice." Park Ji Hoon stopped his speech to catch his breath.

"Before meeting you, Dae Hyun has never once been a dissident man. He will do anything to make his family happy. It's very different from now. He puts you before his family."

Soo Yin was just silent with her head bowed, listening to every word said by her father-in-law.

"I also didn't expect my two sons to love the same girl as you. Until now there was a split even though I was very happy because Park Soo Hyun had wanted to return to Seoul. But now there has been a split between them again. I hope you don't make Dae Hyun destroying the relationship with his extended family," said Park Ji Hoon at length. He indirectly said that the split that occurred in his family was caused by Soo Yin.

"Just so you know, until now the reason that we have never allowed a divorce between Dae Hyun and Aeri. That's because Aeri has helped a lot in the development of the hotel when she was a famous model. She was able to promote our hotel to everyone until it slowly became a five-star hotel," said Park Ji Hoon honestly. Sometimes he felt sorry for having to see Aeri who survived in their family, even though Dae Hyun didn't want her at all anymore.

"You understand, don't you? With what I said," continued Park Ji Hoon.

"I understand, Sir," Soo Yin replied with quivering lips. Slowly Soo Yin began to understand that Park Ji Hoon indirectly wanted her to step down because she had caused chaos in his family.

"Since you understand, I should go. I hope you get well soon as before," said Park Ji Hoon while looking at Soo Yin's face with a sad look. Didn't really have the heart to say that.

Soo Yin didn't budge in her place. Didn't expect to have to meet her father-in-law at a time like this.

Dae Hyun glared at Park Ji Hoon when he saw that he had just come out of the room where Soo Yin was being treated. His hands were clenched into fists because his father must have been talking nonsense with his little wife.

"What did you come here for?" Dae Hyun accused with a probing look. He already understood that his father will do things in a subtle way.

"My daughter-in-law is sick so of course I want to see her. Is it wrong for me to pay attention to her?" said Park Ji Hoon casually.

"Watch out if father said something bad," Dae Hyun threatened in a cold tone.

"Just ask her because how could I say something bad. I just hope she gets better soon," said Park Ji Hoon, hoping that Soo Yin wouldn't say anything to her husband.

Dae Hyun immediately entered Soo Yin's room. He saw that Soo Yin was currently pensive as if thinking about something until she didn't notice his arrival.

"Honey." Dae Hyun patted Soo Yin's shoulder gently until she woke up from her daydream.

"You're back. Why you only went for a moment? How is grandma doing right now? Is she all right?" asked Soo Yin repeatedly.

"Grandma is fine. What did father come here for? Did something he said hurt your feelings? Just tell me and don't be afraid," Dae Hyun insisted.

"Nothing. After all, father is only here for a short time," said Soo Yin while widening her smile.

"Is that true?" Dae Hyun knitted his brows, not trusting Soo Yin at all.

"Right, how could I lie to you," said Soo Yin. It was impossible for her to say everything because she was afraid that there would be another split.

"Soo Yin, don't ever lie to me. You don't need to be afraid if someone threatens you," Dae Hyun said while holding Soo Yin's fingers tightly. His heart was still restless because something must have been said by his father.

"I really didn't lie to you." Suddenly Soo Yin wrapped her arms around Dae Hyun's neck and then landed her lips there. She kissed Dae Hyun's lips so gently.

Dae Hyun was quite surprised by what his little wife did. But slowly he began to reply by crushing it slowly and gently. His two hands had even unconsciously wrapped around Soo Yin's waist.

Soo Yin did it on purpose to divert their conversation. She wasn't a very good liar, so it was better to try to stop the conversation rather than get caught.

The two lovebirds both closed their eyes. They enjoyed every soft touch of their lips that were fused together until the excitement grew on both of them. But Dae Hyun immediately stopped the kiss because he remembered that they were currently in the hospital. The man didn't want to go too far.

Dae Hyun immediately embraced Soo Yin's body into his arms.

"Please don't believe too much in what everyone says. Don't even think about leaving me even for a second," Dae Hyun said sadly because he was worried that his wife would be taken by the words of people who didn't like their relationship.

"You don't have to worry because I wouldn't think about parting with you." Soo Yin hugged Dae Hyun back by wrapping her arms around the man's waist tightly.

But the gentle words that Park Ji Hoon spoke were enough to pierce to the bottom of her heart. It was true that before Dae Hyun met her, their family relationship was fine.

"Promise me," said Dae Hyun.

"I promise, honey," Soo Yin said with a tear falling from her eye. She will try to survive as best she can. She will endure until she feels tired.. Although it will leave more pain. H k
