

Dae Hyun walked around his house several times but couldn't find Soo Yin. Worries appeared in his heart. Even Dae Hyun had to check the rooms available in his house one by one. But no to avail.

"Eun Hee, did you see Soo Yin?" Dae Hyun asked.

"I think I saw her going out through the side door, Sir."

"Alright." Dae Hyun immediately went out with hasty steps. There was no way Soo Yin came home.

Dae Hyun walked towards the guards to ask about his wife but they said that Soo Yin didn't come out. Dae Hyun thought for a moment because she could be in a lonely place right now.

"Cough... cough..."

Dae Hyun turned his head when he heard the sound of someone coughing. Turned out it was in a dimly lit place. Dae Hyun immediately approached because he knew the voice very well.

"Honey, why are you sleeping here?" Dae Hyun said. Then sat next to Soo Yin who was yawning.

"Hmmm, I'm very sleepy," said Soo Yin as she shifted her head and leaned on Dae Hyun's shoulder.

"Why don't you sleep inside?" Dae Hyun grabbed his little wife's waist to ease the chill that Soo Yin felt.

"I don't know where to sleep," said Soo Yin while blowing her cold hand.

"Let's go inside."

"Later. Inside, I will feel alone so it's better to be here with you," said Soo Yin, tightening her arms around Dae Hyun's body.

Dae Hyun stroked Soo Yin's hair in a gentle motion and then kissed her forehead repeatedly.

"Sorry, we shouldn't have come here," said Dae Hyun.

"Is Park Soo Hyun not home yet when there's a grandma's event like this?" asked Soo Yin with a furrowed brow.

"It seems that he is contemplating somewhere. He is usually like that when he is facing a problem. But if in the next few weeks he hasn't come back then I will immediately look for him myself," said Dae Hyun.

"Hopefully when he gets home his mind changes." Soo Yin just felt sorry for Jean who seemed to still hope for Park Soo Hyun even though her lips say that she didn't want him anymore.

"Hmmm, I really want to beat him though."

Soo Yin pinched Dae Hyun's waist until he groaned in pain. Sometimes she really didn't like Dae Hyun's attitude, he always used muscles when he spoke.

"Why did you pinch me?" Dae Hyun said.

"That's because you always spoke with emotion," Soo Yin grumbled as she rolled her eyes.

"I'm just annoyed to have an irresponsible brother like him," said Dae Hyun. Then sniffed Soo Yin's neck to smell her very seductive scent.

"Dae Hyun, stop doing something stupid. Do you want people to know what we're doing?" Soo Yin said while pushing Dae Hyun's body away.

Dae Hyun shifted his body then laid down with Soo Yin's lap used for cushioning. With such a position, he could see Soo Yin's face even though it was dim.

"Don't look at me like that." Soo Yin's face heated up, embarrassed that Dae Hyun was staring at her intensely.

"So what?"

"I'm afraid you'll be bored," said Soo Yin with a crisp chuckle.

"How could I ever be bored. Even with you all day, I will never be bored." For him, Soo Yin was like the morning sun that always gave him warmth.

"Come on, don't talk nonsense." Soo Yin felt exasperated until she pinched Dae Hyun's nose.

They kept laughing and joking with each other. They didn't realize there was someone standing not far away. She clenched her fists tightly because she felt jealous. Because Dae Hyun never behaved like that during their marriage.

"Enjoy your togetherness which is only a few days left. After this there are only tears," Aeri said with her lips curved into a cynical and hateful smile.

"Hmmm." Aeri immediately spoke up after being behind Dae Hyun and Soo Yin because they didn't seem to notice her coming.

"You guys look very busy sitting here just the two of you. Don't you remember if I was here," said Aeri.

Dae Hyun then straightened his body in a sitting position. Then tidied up his clothes. Aeri's arrival really bothered him.

"Never mind, there's no need to pretend to be sweet like that. There's no one here anymore except the two of us," Dae Hyun said with a flat face without turning his face to his first wife.

"What are you saying? I'm not pretending at all. Why would I do it anyway? Don't you already know me very well if I don't like pretending to be nice," Aeri said without any emotion at all. Instead, she sat beside Dae Hyun and rested her head on his shoulder.

"Aeri, go away. What are you doing?" Dae Hyun said while shrugging his shoulders.

"Honey, we are still in a marriage bond so I also want to feel what Soo Yin felt because she can be spoiled when she's with you. Because as far as I remember you never did anything like that to me," said Aeri with a sad tone.

"We still have a marriage bond but it's all because of my parents. Otherwise, we would have been divorced long ago," said Dae Hyun. He was the kind of guy who didn't like small talk. It had been seven years of being married to Aeri and pretending to be a good man.

Aeri let out a long sigh.

"You're right that this bond still exists because of mother's request. But don't you remember the night when we were at the hotel? You promised not to leave me before we did that. But it seems that you forgot because you were drunk at that time," explained Aeri at length. She did that on purpose so that Soo Yin could hear it too.

"Never mind, it's already night. Don't talk nonsense because I'm already sleepy," said Dae Hyun. The longer he talked to Aeri, the more she will say things about their past.

"Let's go to sleep. I'm also very sleepy," said Dae Hyun as he stood up and held Soo Yin's hand.

"I just came here but why are you guys leaving?" said Aeri.

"It's late at night and the weather outside is very cold," said Dae Hyun in an even tone. If Aeri didn't come, maybe he would still linger there.

Soo Yin actually felt a little bad and felt sorry for Aeri. Maybe she had really changed. Even though it seemed impossible.

"Dae Hyun, why are you being cold to her?" Soo Yin said.

"Don't believe her words too much. Because I really know what Aeri is like," said Dae Hyun.

Soo Yin turned to Aeri for a moment. Before finally continuing to follow Dae Hyun into the house.

Dae Hyun then entered the house while holding Soo Yin's hand. He didn't care even though there were many probing gazes on them. Why should he hide anymore? All his family members also knew. Hotel problems were also nothing to worry about.

"Dae Hyun, let go of my hand." Soo Yin felt uncomfortable as she passed the living room to see everyone was staring at her. She was not someone who was crazy about attention.

"Leave it alone. Why are you afraid, though Aeri has already told everyone. If I was indifferent to you, they would think that you were the one who was trying to tease me," whispered Dae Hyun in Soo Yin's ear.

Dae Hyun then entered the house while holding Soo Yin's hand. He didn't care even though there were many probing gazes on them. Why should he hide anymore? All his family members also knew. Hotel problems were also nothing to worry about.

"Dae Hyun, let go of my hand." Soo Yin felt uncomfortable as she passed the living room to see everyone was staring at her. She was not someone who was crazy about attention.

"Leave it alone. Why are you afraid, though Aeri has already told everyone. If I was indifferent to you, they would think that you were the one who was trying to tease me," whispered Dae Hyun in Soo Yin's ear.

Soo Yin let out a long sigh. She understood that so with her head held high, she walked with her fingers intertwined with Dae Hyun's.

Soo Yin let out a long sigh.. She understood that so with her head held high, she walked with her fingers intertwined with Dae Hyun's.