

"Look at them. I really can't believe what I saw."

"I thought it was the girl who had seduced Dae Hyun. But that seems to be the opposite."

"Look how sweet Dae Hyun is to you. Dae Hyun's eyes are very different when he's with Aeri."

"Maybe the news circulating is true if Dae Hyun has never loved Aeri."

They gave compliments and positive words when they saw how romantic Dae Hyun was to Soo Yin. Even though they often saw Dae Hyun and Aeri holding hands. But it was like a compulsion.

Soo Yin smiled at everyone. Even though she was nervous, she didn't want to be said to be arrogant.

Aeri followed Dae Hyun a bit behind. Felt very upset because it seemed like her efforts were in vain. The intention to make all of Hae Sok's extended family hated Soo Yin turned out to be meaningless.

Instead of being affected, Aeri chose to leave and went through the side door to enter.

Dae Hyun invited Soo Yin to the kitchen first because he wanted to drink to relieve the thirst in his throat.

"Honey, are you hungry? I saw that you only ate one mouthful," said Dae Hyun as he opened the refrigerator to get mineral water.

"A little," said Soo Yin, grinning. It seemed that no one would be able to chew their food when everyone in the dining room stared intensely at them.

"Do you want to eat something?"

"Hmm, don't worry. It's late after all. It's not good for others to see us in the kitchen," said Soo Yin.

"No problem at all. Tell me what do you want to eat? Because I don't want you to starve." Dae Hyun persisted because he realized that his wife will have stomach problems if her stomach was empty.

"Hmmm." Soo Yin considered what she wanted but nothing came to her mind.

"I will eat whatever you cook," said Soo Yin as she sat on the kitchen table.

"Is that true?" Dae Hyun approached Soo Yin after finishing half a bottle of mineral water and stood in front of her. Deliberately wrapped his arms around that slender waist.

"Get out of the way, don't let anyone see us. I don't want them to think that we don't know the time and place," Soo Yin said anxiously as she looked around. Afraid if suddenly someone came to the kitchen. Although the situation seemed to have been quiet because there were only a few who were still awake. Because those who had small children must have fallen asleep.

"Just leave it." Dae Hyun stared intensely at Soo Yin's eyes which always made him yearn to be close to each other.

Dae Hyun then used one hand to reach for the switch that was right behind Soo Yin. Instantly the lights were turned off and the kitchen was now dark.

"Why are the lights off?" Soo Yin said frantically.

"Shhh, don't be afraid because I turned it off on purpose," Dae Hyun whispered in a low voice.

"You ...."

Soo Yin's words were cut off because Dae Hyun had already covered his mouth with his lips.

Dae Hyun kissed Soo Yin's lips so gently. But the longer it took, the kiss became more aggressive. Kissing in the kitchen at an event like that actually made him even more excited. It was like there was a challenge within himself when suddenly someone came to catch them.

Dae Hyun's tongue aggressively explored every part of Soo Yin's mouth. Such a demanding kiss made Soo Yin unable to keep up until her breath hitched.

"Ughhh." Soo Yin tugged Dae Hyun's shirt so Dae Hyun would stop the kiss. Because there was a little fear that arose in her.

Dae Hyun finally broke the kiss. He smiled at the sound of Soo Yin's ragged breath.

Dae Hyun smiled mischievously until his hand moved to touch Soo Yin's back. He was about to unbutton the dress that Soo Yin was wearing.

"What are you doing?" Soo Yin said in a low voice with emphasis.

"I just want to feel a different sensation. Besides, I won't do anything," said Dae Hyun casually.

"Come on, stop it. It's useless for us to warm up but without cooling down," said Soo Yin.

"You're absolutely right." Dae Hyun pressed the switch to turn the lights back on.

"You said you wanted to cook for me? Hurry up because I'm already hungry," said Soo Yin as she pulled Dae Hyun away from her body.

"I wanted to eat you first. But it's a shame you refused," Dae Hyun teased with a wink.

Soo Yin's face immediately turned red. Until she pinched Dae Hyun's arm.

"Don't talk too much because my stomach is growling," Soo Yin said to divert attention.

Dae Hyun rolled up his sleeves and prepared the ingredients needed to make a simple meal. Looked like eating ramyeon was pretty good. They can eat it outside under the tree.

"What are you going to cook?" Soo Yin got off the kitchen table and sat down on a chair.

"I want to cook ramyeon. Eating under the tree must have been very fun," said Dae Hyun.

"Seems like you want to make me fat and my body getting wider," Soo Yin grumbled.

"You don't have to worry, even though you are fat I will always love you." Dae Hyun didn't stop what he was doing at all. His hands deftly cut various vegetables and cleaned the shrimp.

"I'm not sure of what you're saying," Soo Yin said.

"Why?"

"Men really like to brag," Soo Yin said casually.

"If you don't believe me then I will prove my point."

"It's up to you. Do what you want to do," said Soo Yin as she rolled her eyes.

"Okay, we'll see."

Soo Yin rested her head on the table while waiting for Dae Hyun who was busy cooking.. For the umpteenth time, Soo Yin felt very grateful to have a man like Dae Hyun who can be relied on in many ways.