

My angel - 34

Ava's POV

I was running down a dark alley not knowing where I was going but I was sure why I was running. As I finally reached the end of the alley, I thought there was a way of escaping but it was a dead end,

I began crying and fell to the cold ground. But I stopped weeping as a hand cupped my chin. I looked up and met my eyes with the green eyes that I had dreaded in this moment. The eyes that betrayed me and hurt me.

'It's alright don't cry' he wiped a tear that had escaped my eye. Without sparing one more glance at him, I shot up from the ground and ran to towards the dead end screaming as if anyone was on the other side of the wall to get me out of here.

I was gently turned around and there he stood in front of me, his eyes bloodshot as if he didn't sleep. 'Why did you leave me?' He asked me. I stood silently mentally begging him to leave me alone. I guess he heard my thoughts so he leaned over to me and whispered.

'I love you.'

I screamed at him throwing punches at his chest. No he never loved me he just wanted to use me and throw me away. He didn't seem affected by my punches as he whispered to me again before kissing my cheek.

'I will find you just wait for me love.'

I awoke to a warm feeling being sprawled across my face. I opened my eyes slowly to adjust the brightness of the light coming from the window. I groaned and sat up in bed, yawning. I checked the time and it was almost 5 am.

It was normal for me to get these types of dreams. It's my 5th time this week that I had this dream. I've been having them regularly since I ran away from him. In my dreams he always says that he'll find me but he never did.

I looked to my side and saw Noah sleeping. I smiled and then I got out of bed and stretched my arms out before heading towards the bathroom for a long shower. After my shower I picked out my clothes for today from my wardrobe nearby the window.

I went over once again to my bed and woke up Noah which was a struggle cause he would make a crying face when I would wake him up for school. He soon got ready for school and I was ready for work. I grabbed my purse and phone then I stepped out of the room as Noah followed behind me. I closed the door and went to the kitchen for our breakfast.

When we had entered the kitchen, Rose was busy cooking something on the stove to notice us come in. "Hey Rose" I greeted her making her turn around. "Hi Ro-Ro!" Noah squealed running towards her and jumping on her almost making her fall. "Hey Noah and Ava" Rose laughed. "Well sit down and I'll bring breakfast." she said turning back to the stove as me and Noah sat at our table.

"What are we having for breakfast today?" I asked her excitedly. "Blueberry pancakes!" she walked over to us placing two plates filled with a stack of blueberry pancakes with syrup dribbling down it in front of us.

Without a second thought I picked up my fork and spoon that was placed in the plate and I dug into the dish in front of me. I closed my eyes in delight. "Thanks! This tastes amazing." I kept on eating as she laughed and sat in between me and Noah with her plate of pancakes.

"It's okay." she shrugged her shoulders as my jaw dropped, I shook my head and said. "You are fantastic at cooking" She smiled weakly at me, "Well at least you think I'm good." her eyes teared up. I rubbed her shoulder in comfort, she must be thinking of her family. "It's alright don't be upset, some people don't see the talent in front of them." I smiled at her as she chuckled. "Thanks but I'm not sure about talented." I laughed at her, shaking my head.

After we finished eating our breakfast, me and Rose headed towards the bus stop to go to work but not before dropping off Noah at his school, so we are currently in the bus waiting for our stop. But suddenly my phone rang. I took my phone out of my purse and checked the caller it was my manager, I frowned in confusion.

Why is he calling me? is it important?

I answered the call and held it up on my ear.

"Hey?" I said waiting for a response. "Hey Ava dear I need to speak to you" he replied. "Oh yeah, what is it?" I started to get a little scared cause Mr. Cooper never called me this early in the morning it must be important, I hope I'm not in trouble. "Well today morning I checked the newspapers and an article was written about my restaurant." he paused.

"I'm very pleased to say that my restaurant is moved to a higher standard and that's all thanks to you." He said. I let out a sigh in relief, it must have been the people that came to the restaurant for a review yesterday. "Thanks sir" I thanked him as he laughed over the phone.

"I also have decided to promote you to a higher level in the restaurant so now you'll be working for events." he said and I was stunned. The event section of the restaurant has the highest pay and you get to organise grand parties there. "N-no I can't!" I shook my head.

"You have to and I won't take no for an answer." he said and I still proteste. It was not fair that I only get this chance and not everyone else. "But that's not fair-" he cut me off again. "Ava you will do it" he said sternly. "Okay." I replied. "That's what I was expecting, well, I'll see you at work bye" he said and cut the call.

I squealed in happiness as numerous heads turned at me. "Quiet down, what is it Ava?" Rose asked me in confusion. "I get to work at in the event section of the restaurant" I screamed as people on the bus shushed me down. "You're so lucky! You deserve it" Rose smiled as I grinned in happiness.

My life is going great! I have a nice job, a best friend and my brother.

What else do I need?

Carter's POV

I drove my car into a road that looked beautiful with the sidewalks that had mosaics on them as they shined at the sun's light. "Take a look here." Jacob said to me, he was sitting in the passenger seat while I was driving. We are both going to see Ava today. I found out that she has a friend named Rose and that they are very close. I'm glad about that cause at least there is someone for Ava.

Ava now worked in a restaurant as well. I actually knew the owner of that restaurant his name was Ben Cooper and was my father's best friend. When I was young I always spent my time with him until we one day moved away from him. I still don't understand why Ava disappeared from my house that day. I need to ask her that once I get her back home.

After a while of driving we finally reached to what looks like a huge restaurant as we waited for Ava to arrive. I smiled at the restaurant. I never knew Mr.Cooper had a restaurant since I moved away from him when I was 10.

I miss Ava so much, her smile, her laugh, her come backs when she would talk to me. I just miss her...

Jacob nudged my shoulder causing me to turn around to him. "Look there." he pointed out the window on my side. I turned around and looked out the window and my gaze immediately spotted Ava as she was laughing with another girl beside her like the one in the picture, I guess she was Rose.

Ava giggled at something the girl, Rose said. Ava's gray eyes held happiness, I felt better after knowing she is safe and happy. I was about to jump out the door and bring her back home but Jacob stopped me.

I looked at him and furrowed my eyebrows. "Don't go now, she'll think we followed her." he said as I looked back at Ava. "But I miss her." I muttered. "I know Carter, but she is upset with you about something and going up to her out of nowhere doesn't make it any better for her." he said hugging me in comfort.

"I miss her and love her." I said as Jacob patted my back in comfort. I looked back at the building one last time and an idea popped into my mind on how to get Ava back.

I'll get you back Ava. Whatever I did that made you run away from me I'll fix it, and I'll get you back and I know just how to.
