

BLACK PLAIN 267

Chapter 267: Confused

At the moment, it was cold outside the government mansion of the City of the Waters. However, inside Mirya's room, Minos was feeling quite warm...

The room was as expected. Messy. First, the three women had already made a zone in this room, even before the young Stuart arrived to participate in the 'game.'

With that, several clothes were scattered on the floor of this room, at the same time, in which the four of them were lying in that big bed.

Allied to the chaotic image, the rich fragrance characteristic of sex still permeated the air of this room, to the point that if someone entered there, maybe that person would be a little more excited than should have...

But not for the image of the four. No, the four were lying comfortably on that bed while a white sheet covered the perfect bodies of these three women, who were currently filling the spaces around Minos.

Viola was lying on his left side while she used one of Minos' arms as a pillow. On the other hand, Mendy was lying comfortably on top of him, with her breasts wholly pressed against his abdomen as she rested her head on his chest.

Finally, the mature Mirya occupied Minos' left side, where she was also resting her head on this young man's arm.

And in the midst of that, Minos woke up from his sleep slowly, feeling a soft sensation enveloping him.

Even though it was cold outside, the heat of these three women was warming this place, even though they weren't worried about using their energies for it.

But hell, it was a heavenly feeling to be warmed by the human warmth of three beauties.

So, Minos woke up with a smile on his face when he finally saw Mendy's rounded face. This girl had surprised him last night, given the ferocity with which she acted.

But even if she had been a virgin before, properly speaking, given the countless experiences she'd had with other women, it wasn't quite so strange.

Knowing what satisfies you and using it to your advantage was undoubtedly an excellent way to act on sex.

And about that, Mendy knew very well how to do it. Even though it was her first time with a man, all the experience she had made things easier for her, helping her figure out what best suited her tastes.

Anyway, the three beauties didn't take long to wake up, and soon they were all smiling in that place.

"Morning." They said to each other as they either stretched or snuggled closer together.

And after a few minutes of this morning's peace, while the four of them were still exchanging a few gestures of appreciation, Minos finally pushed Mendy aside and prepared to get out of bed.

Seeing this, Mirya was the first to question him. "Won't you stay?"

"No, I'm just passing through. I had business nearby, but I've already taken care of everything..." He responded at the same time as he went into that bedroom's bathroom to take a quick shower.

"Ahh, too bad, I thought we could have another night together..." Mendy said in a low voice as the noise of the shower already reverberated through that place.

Hearing this, Mirya smiled at her, already pulling Mendy into her side and hugging this young woman. "We can fix this later, it won't be the same thing, but it won't be bad..." This mature woman said this while she had a perverted look on her beautiful face, immediately kissing young Mendy after that.

There weren't many possibilities nearby, even more of the 'level' of Minos, but for anyone who wants to, there would always be 'alternatives'... And even if it wasn't enough, the three still had each other...

...

Finally, after a few minutes in that place, Minos finished his shower and quickly changed into new clothes before leaving.

When he left that room, he could still see the beautiful image of the three women kissing, already starting a new round. But that didn't stop him from leaving. Instead, he just laughed at these three people before finally saying goodbye to them and leaving the mansion where Mirya and Viola live.

Eventually, after some more time walking through the City of Waters, he arrived at the hotel where Abby and Eda stayed.

It was still early, but when he arrived at that place, the soldier who had accompanied them here was already in the position to leave, with the carriage in front of that place.

Seeing this, Minos quickly went up to the floor where their rooms were to wait for the moment of their departure from this place. The two women might not be ready yet, as it had only dawned a few minutes ago.

...

Arriving at his room, the first thing Minos saw was a young woman sitting on the leather sofa there while she calmly ate. She wore a white silk dress, which contrasted sharply with her beautiful blue hair.

And seeing this, Minos was a little impressed as he had not expected to find this young woman eating in the room he had rented. He then looked at the open window and then thought to himself as he strolled. 'She came in through the window?'

"Morning. Did you stay out all night?" Abby asked when she finally looked to the side Minos had come from, not changing the expression she'd had at all. She didn't look angry, but that was the most dangerous kind of expression coming from a woman.

After all, the appearance of 'no problem' was indeed something to worry about...

"Hmm, good morning to you too. Ehh, is there something wrong, Abby?" He asked calmly, approaching her slowly. 'Did I exaggerate last night?' He questioned himself, a little worried.

"No, why would there be? You flirt with me, but then you'll spend the night with someone else..." She paused for a moment as she felt the fragrance in the young Stuart's body. She then said surprisingly. "More than one? You must be proud, huh?"

She then got up from her chair and slapped his face while having an angry expression on her gorgeous face. Abby had felt very confused by the 'action' Minos had made the night before, so she had woken up early and invaded this young man's room.

She wanted to watch him as she wondered if she would be able to step forward in this relationship. But to her surprise, Minos still hadn't returned from his nightly adventure.

And Abby wasn't angry that he had gone to bed with other women, but the fact that when she wanted to see him, he was away with others. More than one to make matters worse.

Abby was a selfish girl, after all...

And sensing Abby's slap, Minos didn't try to dodge or protect himself. Instead, he fully accepted this young woman's blow while he had a small smile at the corner of his lips. But he quickly recomposed his appearance and looked at her thoughtfully.

Minos couldn't be considered a womanizer since he doesn't try to be with every beautiful woman he meets, but he wasn't a saint either. If there was room for a more intimate relationship, if there was attraction and desire for it on both sides, there was no reason not to try.

He didn't know if it was in his nature or an outside influence, like the fact that he had met someone like Elena in his first experience or something else, but it didn't matter. The point was, he wouldn't give up on a night like the one he'd had with the previous trio just because he'd flirted with Abby last night.

But he completely understood Abby's side. After all, he could still be considered an empathetic person.

Finally, Minos approached the young woman to him, hugging her tightly as he spoke into her ear. "Looks like I got you a little confused Abby, I'm sorry. But know that I would have preferred to spend the night with you, but you refused me."

He then looked her in the eye and continued. "You have every right to refuse me, but I can't promise you I won't go out with others just because I want you. You've seen me do similar things before, and that won't change in the short term."

"I'm not in a hurry. I can give you a little more space. Maybe I overreacted last night. But know that I still want you." He said this calmly, looking deep into the eyes of this beautiful young woman with blue hair, who at the moment looked angry.

Abby's face was completely red. Her fists tightly clenched as she felt her heart race. Her breathing was increasing, and her pupils chased Minos', with only the sound of her breathing reverberating in that place.

And at that moment, she kissed him.