

BLACK PLAIN 386

Chapter 386: Maybe I Want (*)

Minos and Abby had passed through some towns where they had done business in the past month and forest regions ruled by spiritual beasts. With this, the two had fought enemies on many occasions and also trained with each other during the quieter moments of the trip.

Abby had finally learned the last two Silver-grade techniques missing, one for attack and one for support. And from these fights she had had at that time, this young woman had already mastered the basics and could finally fight enemies 4 to 6 levels above her!

That was a considerable advance for her, and Abby was naturally pleased with herself and Minos. Now, she could withstand even more intense training with him and was less dependent on his help when fighting enemies.

But neither Abby nor young Stuart had achieved a breakthrough during this period. After all, despite having tried hard, the two still needed to cultivate longer to reach level 44.

Aside from the increase in strength of Minos' young friend, the two had had a much smoother journey this time.

Last month, they hadn't been approached by enemies like those bandits in the Flooded Valley. In fact, in addition to beasts in forest regions, they had only fought each other during their training.

But even without taking any action against humans, i.e., gaining people's belongings like those bandits, Minos had achieved even more spiritual techniques for the Dry City.

Of course, these techniques he had obtained commonly, buying them, not just taking them from corpses left on the ground...

Anyway, the two had passed through other cities in the Kingdom of the Waves, and one of them was similar to Jalene City. But instead of a place specializing in the culinary profession, this time the two had known a place famous for its seers!

In that place, Minos and Abby had spent a few days until they finally negotiated 45 copies of Blue-grade and 3 Black-grade techniques, specific for professionals in this field.

Minos intended to have specialists from each spiritual profession in his army, soldiers who could learn Black-grade techniques. That is because, even if one specialization didn't seem to be that significant, when combined with others, it could yield great results.

See the example of the Spatial Kingdom ring left by Henricus Longus. This thing involved more than one professional and had already helped Minos in more than one situation.

And the best items in the Spiritual World were those that involved the work of more than one type of cultivator!

So, young Stuart was already preparing the bases for the future of the Black Plain so that his soldiers would have good resources, to help them in different types of situations.

Finally, the couple had also passed through a town with a medium-sized beast tamers guild during that month of travel. But Minos had not been interested in doing business there.

It wasn't because he wanted to find some high-level place. No, the problem was, there weren't many beasts naturally found in the Black Plain!

Because of that, buy techniques of this type at the moment would be a waste of the scarce resources of the Dry City. Most likely, no one would want to learn a profession that would force them to travel thousands of miles!

On the other hand, while each state of this region had good beast tamer guilds, they were all a step below the Snow Kingdom's best tamer families.

That place had the best professionals in such a field and also the best techniques. Because of this, Minos wanted to leave to buy techniques from that place in the future, when the Black Plain stopped hiding and started doing business openly.

Before that, it wouldn't have much sense to invest in this area!

...

In a large city in the Kingdom of the Waves, several mountains were surrounding that place, with some even partially covered by clouds due to its high altitude.

In this place, the streets and buildings were built even on the most vertical points of the mountain. The same level of altitude areas formed rings with small streets and houses, connected to other locations by several stairs and small bridges.

And due to this construction model, along with the fact that it was night, looking at this city from afar, such a place would look like a trunk of a cone, with thousands of luminous points around it.

Anyway, in the middle of this city with such a construction model, there was a medium-sized inn, looking like a four-story house, with several windows on the sides.

The place had a rustic look. However, it was something elegant, as if it were a historical heritage of this place.

There were some statues in the small courtyard in front of this inn, while the people who came and went from this place were very well dressed as if they were all of high status or nobles.

And in this inn, in one of the rooms on the top floor, if someone could fly and stop beside the open window of that place, they would see two youths playing with each other, at high intensity and sweating a lot.

Pah! Pah! Pah!

Sounds of beating flesh sounded there, where a sensual, blue-haired young woman was on all fours on the bed of that place. Her body moved back and forth while her hair was messed up, and her back was completely sweaty.

"Ahhh~ Ahhh~"

She made heavenly moans every time she felt her mate move with his hips while she used her delicate hands to play with her little sister and one of her nipples.

At the same time, a tall, well-muscled young man was standing behind her, holding her waist and actively pushing his groin over his partner's buttocks.

He was also drenched in sweat, and his brown hair had become unruly due to the four hours of high-intensity activity in which these two had focused.

"Cumming~" And at one point, the two finally reached another orgasm, with only a few seconds difference between them.

"Hah... hah, hah, that was perfect... Hah, hah, I think we hit a record this time, didn't we?" Minos asked Abby while still standing behind her, feeling his friend's wet interiors.

He couldn't get enough of admiring Abby's beautiful buttocks.

And truth be told, it was flawless, precisely the way he liked the most.

"Hmm, I'm glad this town was on our way... I was already going crazy with the sexual tension between the two of us!" Abby commented, with her body trembling until gradually she began to walk away from Minos.

Pah!

"Ahh~"

And at that moment, young Stuart slapped Abby on her left buttock, causing her to moan softly and look back. 'Ahh, that's how I like it...' He thought with a lusty smile on his face.

After that, the two lay in that place, hugging each other, when Abby began to feel her partner's little brother pressing her belly. "Wow, Minos, you are very naughty!"

"How do you still get that way after everything we've done?" She asked this as she blushed and smiled.

"It's your fault for being so beautiful!" He teased her as he approached his face to her neck, already sucking on the young woman's ear.

"If we keep this up, you'll get me pregnant!" She played with him. Abby knew that if neither of them wanted such a thing, then it would never happen, but she had still made such a comment to him.

"Hehe, who knows, one day we both forgot to take worries, and a little Abby shows up here..." Minos said this while he was already using one of his hands to massage her belly.

"Maybe it's a little Minos..."

"By the way, do you want to have children?" She asked with a twinkle in her eyes as she let him continue playing with her body.

"Who knows... When the Black Plain is stable, and there aren't so many external threats. And you? Maybe you wanted to carry my children?" Minos teased her as he brought the girl to his lap.

After hearing this, Abby's face turned even redder as she felt young Stuart's rod touching at her intimate part. She then looked into his eyes and said at once. "Maybe I want..."