

BLACK PLAIN 868

Chapter 868 A Woman Of Attitude

Sensing how 'Ruth' was kissing and touching him, Minos' hands stopped their movement as he opened his eyes momentarily. 'This...'

But he did not stop kissing that woman. Instead, he took a step forward, trying to understand what this person wanted from him.

'Who are you?' He wondered in his mind.

He could see that the person in front of him was very similar to Ruth, and without being able to ascertain her level for sure, he had been mistaken earlier about her identity.

However, upon feeling how she kissed and touched him, he immediately realized that this was not Ruth, or such things would not be so different.

'Is this on account of the array from before? But such a thing should not make me see Ruth's face in other people!'

'After all, if this array were so good, then this woman definitely wouldn't have been so afraid of me since she would have to be much stronger than me to operate better arrays!' So, Minos concluded as he ran his fingers between 'Ruth's' clothes, trying to understand how far this woman would let him go.

'That means she probably already has a very similar appearance to Ruth!'

'What a fascinating thing!' He pondered in interest, considering that it was not at all easy to find look-alikes in the Spiritual World.

However, they existed since billions of humans lived on this sole continent.

The human genetics in the Spiritual World were very diverse, as the current race had existed for millions of years.

On the other hand, it had been conceived in a remote past that even Minos had no idea how much time had passed since then, nor how many individuals had given 'birth' to his race. PANDA-NOVEL.COM

But even with such diversity, there were look-alikes all around this great world, people who, even without genetic relatedness, could have almost identical external characteristics.

And thinking that the woman in his arms was one of these, Minos was fascinated to find a look-alike of Ruth.

However, his fascination did not last long. After all, even if such a thing was incredible, it did not diminish the problem in his arms.

'Why was she after me? And why is she kissing me now?' He wondered even more, curious.

She had acted against him and his mount earlier by setting a trap in this area. But then, she had lost and fallen into his arms.

After that, she suddenly pretended to be Ruth and accepted what Minos was doing to her...

That was strange!

Minos was not just kissing her. Instead, he was doing what he would do to Ruth, groping and massaging her most sensitive parts!

And yet, the woman in his arms was accepting all of this, with faint signs of pleasure appearing in her body, as she held herself back from stopping kissing young Stuart and moaning...

'Don't tell me she's some kind of pervert?' Minos' eyes widened in shock as he watched how she kissed him like an animal in heat.

'This...' PANDA NOVEL

'This could be dangerous!' He decided to stop it right after he felt the tips of one of his fingers wet with the nectar of 'Ruth's' flower.

"Uh?" Sensing Minos stopping his hand movements and retrieving his tongue from her mouth, Talia opened her eyes in confusion. 'It was so good... Why did you stop?' She thought about it.

She then asked. "Why did you stop?"

Minos' pupils then contracted as he noticed the sincere expression on this woman's face, which at the moment no longer looked so identical to Ruth's but was still very similar.

'It was that array!'

'And to think that an array could disturb my senses in such a way!'

'She truly isn't from this region!'

'But if she's here to kill me, why did she give herself to me like that? Is it her strategy?' He looked at her carefully, still holding her in his arms but prepared to act if something were to happen.

"You..."

"I..." Talia's pulse raced as she heard Minos' deep voice.

"You are not Ruth!" ρ??(??????)

"Who are you? Why are you doing all this?"

'Damn...'

She turned her face away in shame, regretting that Minos had discovered such a thing too soon. 'If he had only realized this later, at least we would both be in the same boat...'

"I..."

"I just wanted to meet you... I promise I'm not a risk to you, nor do I intend to hurt you..." She replied in a soft tone. "Then please don't ask my name for the moment..."

"What?"

"Are you serious? Even after using a trap against me, you say that?"

She nodded in agreement and said. "I am serious. Otherwise, I wouldn't have used an array that merely messes up your senses."

'That's true...' He thought about it as he ran his tongue across his lips.

Gulp!

"So? Why don't we continue?" She asked without any shame on her face.

Hearing such a thing, Minos was shocked at how libertine she was to propose this right after meeting him and kissing him for only a few minutes. 'This woman is on fire!'

'Am I lucky? Or is this some kind of bad luck in disguise?' He tried to see the bright side of the story, still feeling awkward under it all.

"You..."

"Why are you doing this? Your last goal didn't seem to be that..."

"As I said, I wanted to meet you... But my questions have already been answered." She said, thinking about how excited Minos had made her simply by kissing and touching her.

Because of this, she already had a good idea of why Ruth had fallen in love with him!

Obviously, not only does sex matter concerning feelings, but this was an essential factor.

In one case, a couple loved each other very much but were not compatible in sex. In other, the couple did not love each other but were compatible in this activity.

PANDA-NOVEL In both cases, the relationship was unlikely to work out in the long term.

After all, human beings have both physical and mental needs to be satisfied from time to time. And if the partner could not do what was necessary, then, sooner or later, such a person would look for someone else to do it for him or her.

In this way, compatibility in the intimate moment was crucial, and Talia understood this very well.

With that, she could understand why Ruth liked Minos so much. After all, it was definitely easier to start liking someone who was already compatible in bed than someone who was not.

The opposite could even happen. Still, such a thing would require much more dedication from both parties and would hardly work with people living so far away from each other.

Ruth was beautiful and talented, someone who had rows of men willing to be with her in the Gray Clouds Sect.

So, if she were not compatible with Minos and had not created genuine feelings for him from the beginning of their relationship, it would probably have been difficult for her to remain oblivious to her choices. But that had been what she had done since she had met young Stuart.

Hence, Talia had had her questions answered only by Minos' actions.

As for his character, she was sure that he was an obstinate person because he had refused to go to one of the empire's sects to stay in the poor northern region.

She knew he had some sort of problem with his mother, so she understood that Minos was someone who would prove himself when 'challenged.'

As for the rest, if he were not good for her, Ruth would not be so fascinated with him that she would not want to stay long in the empire!

With all that, Talia had gotten her answers and now hoped to understand more 'deeply' how Minos had changed her little sister...

"Is that enough for you?" She asked softly, touching Minos' semi-exposed chest.

'What an attitude!' Minos thought about it as he watched the beautiful woman with big breasts touching him.

And when one of Talia's hands finally found the 'little' Minos, that young man answered her. "It is a very tempting offer, Miss..."

"But it's hard for me to simply accept all that without even knowing your name, where you come from, and so on..."

"Even more so, we are in the middle of nowhere, and as much as I am interested in exploring new places, I believe this is not the time for that."

...