

BOOT CAMP 1993

Chapter 1993 The Student Surpasses The Master

Ye Jian's mental fortitude was top-notch. She wasn't afraid of the leaders of the Military Disciplinary Committee. When she heard that Commander Xia would be guiding her throughout, she became calmer.

"Please take a seat." The leader who came in had a high military rank. He had two bars and a four-star colonel rank. He was the highest-ranking officer in the military and had some real power.

He didn't walk in with a straight face. Instead, he had a smile on his face as he introduced himself. "I'm Tan Bin, the person in charge of looking into your mother's case. I was also the political commissar of your mother's company before she joined the army. I'm currently working in the General Political Department and am also one of the members of the Military Disciplinary Committee."

Ye Jian didn't sit down. She saluted first and greeted him. Then, she waited for Senior Colonel Tan to sit down.

"You're very similar to your mother." Senior Colonel Tan looked at the cadet in front of him carefully and smiled. "Your mother was a sharpshooter in our company back then. Back then, things were not as advanced in terms of equipment as they are now. She didn't have any aiming tools or correctors. She only had a bare rifle. Her aim depended on the accuracy of the gun.

"Sun Xueqing isn't an ordinary martyr. During the recruit training period, she managed to reach the tenth ring on her first target. I, as well as the regimental commander at that time, got a shock. I thought she had just gotten lucky.

"We let her shoot five more times, and she got the tenth ring each time. She was a true sharpshooter. The regimental commander and I asked Sun Xueqing if she had trained before. In the end, your mother gave us an unbelievable answer. Ye Jian, can you guess what answer she gave us?"

Ye Jian felt her heart burning as she listened to her mother's past deeds. She didn't expect her mother to be so outstanding when she was a new recruit!

It seemed like she had inherited her mother's strengths. That was why she had such amazing marksmanship that both the demon king and Q King had praised her for it. Shaking her head, she said softly, "Chief, I can't make a guess. I spent too little time with my mother. I don't know her as well as you do."

These words made all the leaders who heard them feel sad. They knew her mother better than her... Sigh, their hearts felt heavy.

Senior Colonel Tan sighed heavily. It was true.

"Your mother told us that she had sharp eyes and was very good at threading needles. She thought of the bullseye as the needle's eye that she needed to pass through, and she thought of the bullet as the thread in her hand. Combined with what the instructor said about hitting the target, it became very easy for her to hit the target."

It was an unbelievable answer. Ye Jian was dumbfounded.

Her mother was indeed a genius.

Her expression made Senior Colonel Tan laugh out loud. "That's right. Back then, my regimental commander and I had the same expression as you now. I've served for so many years, but I've only heard your mother say such a thing."

The people in the surveillance room could hear their conversation. Commander Xia knocked his fingers on the table lightly.

Sun Xueqing was a martyr with such talent. It was no wonder that Little Ye's talent was so high. It was clear to see that she had surpassed her teacher!

Originally, he thought that Sun Xueqing sacrificed herself in battle. However, after the military wiped out her life story, he suspected that there was something else behind the sacrifice.

Otherwise, he wouldn't have asked the Military Disciplinary Committee to investigate the matter directly. He even suggested that there should only be one team leader and one managing director to conduct the detailed investigation. Only after that would the general secretary take charge.

To be able to erase the history of a martyr without being discovered by the military showed that this person was not simple.

Chapter 1994 Heroine In The Army

He said to the major general who had spoken to him just now and was a core member of the Military Disciplinary Committee, "Old Song, if the Military Disciplinary Committee doesn't investigate this matter properly, we'll be letting down all the martyrs who sacrificed themselves for our country and our people! We'll also be letting down this military uniform!

"Old Song, you have to be the backbone of the army. I've recently received many anonymous reports. Some of the troops are really laughable! There are more officials than soldiers! These people are sure that they've gone up high enough and the relevant departments will not be able to supervise them. They're bold and unbridled. They do everything for the sake of personal gain. Old Song, when did the Military Disciplinary Committee ever send people to inspect these cases?"

Major General Song was once the head of the political department of Linchuan Military District and was also one of the leaders of the Military Disciplinary Committee. When he heard this, he said solemnly, "It's time to clear things up. If you hadn't reported the incident of Martyr Sun Xueqing to the Military Disciplinary Committee... everyone here would have been kept in the dark!

"The higher-ups are not strict, and those at the lower ranks are incompetent. Our mistake at work has caused an upright martyr to suffer such great humiliation. Who can't tolerate this! The highest-ranking leader is already paying close attention to this matter. Our intention is to investigate in secret and obtain all the evidence. We'll then arrange for all those involved to gather, and we'll directly cut them off."

Commander Xia was also a member of the Military Disciplinary Committee. However, due to the relationship between Ye Jian and Xia Jinyuan, he chose to avoid directly involving himself in the investigation.

When he heard this, he nodded and said, "I'll leave it to all of you. The three main military units must be properly reorganized. Otherwise, the Military Disciplinary Committee would've been set up for nothing. It won't be of any use."

"The highest-ranked leader gave us a firm order. If we don't investigate Martyr Sun Xueqing's incident properly, the few of us will have to apologize to the entire military." Major General Song stared intently at the surveillance and asked Commander Xia, "Ye Jian is still a cadet, but her information is encrypted. Old Xia, what are the intentions of your side?"

Only the secretary of the Military Disciplinary Committee had the authority to look at her information. Neither the team leader nor the committee member had the authority to do so.

Although Ye Jian was just a reserve member of the Xueyu unit, her information was classified and not anyone could check it. Commander Xia smiled and said, "Although she's a military student, she's not simple. Sun Xueqing is a sharpshooter and her daughter is the same. Both mother and daughter are not simple. She's a heroine in the military!"

Major General Song sighed regretfully. "If Sun Xueqing was still alive, I'm sure she would be very happy."

Senior Colonel Tan, who was in the meeting room, said the same thing. "If Sun Xueqing was still alive, I'm sure she would be very happy. You have completely inherited her strength and become an excellent soldier!"

"Although I don't know my mother well, I can tell from your stories that she was an outstanding soldier. I'm proud of her!" The atmosphere was relaxed as they talked about it. However, Ye Jian knew that the real conversation had not started.

Everything they were talking about now was just to make her lower her guard.

Senior Colonel Tan saw the faint smile on her face and felt more relaxed than before. He smiled and said casually, "Yes, we're all proud of her. It's a pity that she died young."

"Chief, would you believe me if I said that there was something more to my mother's death?"

Ye Jian immediately replied. Her tone was cold and sharp. "Chief, I suspect that my mother's sacrifice wasn't as simple as it seemed!"

The senior colonel wanted to test how much Ye Jian knew about her mother, but there was no need to test her. Besides the fact that she had nothing to say about Sun Yaozu, she would tell him everything else she knew and her speculation!
