

BOOT CAMP 1999

Chapter 1999 Practice Well

Thinking of this, Ye Jian's face turned red... She was determined to marry Captain Xia.

"Do whatever you need to do after you return to the Southern Province. Don't be distracted by the conversation with the Military Disciplinary Committee. I believe you've seen how the Military Disciplinary Committee treats you, so you don't have to be worried." In the car, Commander Xia maintained his gentle tone. He wanted to show Ye Jian that he was really an amiable and open-minded parent. "Little Six couldn't accompany you during the Lunar New Year this year. Dad still hopes that you can spend the holiday happily. Don't burden yourself."

Dad...

Ye Jian, who was still blushing, almost choked on her own saliva. She thought uneasily, 'Did the commander in chief see through my thoughts just now?'

Ye Jian felt her face getting hotter.

Commander Xia saw the look in her eyes and laughed out loud. He teased, "Little Ye, you can't be so shy when you're interacting with Little Six. Do you still remember what Dad said?"

She remembered what he had said before and didn't forget it. Ye Jian's face was red and hot. She nodded. "I remember. I need to be shameless."

"That's right. Little Six's is publicly acknowledged to be shameless. If you want to subdue him, you must first train yourself to be more shameless than him. However, the two of you have your own ways of getting along. I'm just giving you a suggestion. I don't know if it'll actually work."

She wondered if Captain Xia had inherited his shamelessness.

Ye Jian thought about it silently. Suddenly, her heart turned cold. How could she think like that? The person sitting beside her was the commander in chief! "In front of you, I don't dare to be impudent when I look at your military rank." Ye Jian knew that the commander in chief was teasing her because he had noticed her cautiousness. Ye Jian pursed her lips and smiled gently. "If I want to be like Captain Xia, I have to continue training." Commander Xia could tell that the reason why his future daughter-in-law was so reserved wasn't that he wasn't friendly enough. It was because she respected him from the bottom of her heart. For a moment, he had a headache.

"If that's the case, we still have to meet more often." Commander Xia wasn't just saying it but was seriously considering it. "The military school will arrange for the second-year cadets to study during the winter and summer holidays. Little Ye, why don't you come to the military headquarters to study?"

Ye Jian was frightened. If she went to the military headquarters to study, she might no longer be able to go out onto the field. Her goal was not to go to the military headquarters but to go to the Xueyu unit.

She hurriedly said, "If there are any holidays in the future, I'll definitely come to the capital to visit you more often."

“Hahaha, okay! Then it’s settled!” The commander in chief laughed heartily. Even though he was wearing his military uniform, he was still an amiable elder.

For some reason, Ye Jian felt that the commander in chief had just been waiting for her to say this.

The Military Disciplinary Committee was a distance away from the airport. The guard in the front passenger seat had booked a two p.m. flight for Ye Jian. Commander Xia looked at the time. It was only 11 p.m. now. They could still have a meal at the airport.

Worried that the elderly in the old residence would be waiting for him, the commander in chief called the butler and asked him to tell Old Master and Old Madam that he wasn’t coming home for lunch.

Ye Jian could tell that the commander in chief was on the phone with the old residence. She sat up straight, afraid that she would cause a commotion.

The butler didn’t ask about the commander’s schedule. Hence, Commander Xia just ended the call. He continued to talk to Ye Jian about some things in the military unit.

Although Ye Jian was a little reserved, she wasn’t so reserved that she was stuttering.

She was in awe of the commander in chief but was still able to express herself well. She was fluent and could answer whatever the commander in chief asked. She wasn’t afraid and was still calm.

However, Commander Xia felt that she still had a lot of room for improvement. Hence, when the guard went to get her plane ticket back to the Southern Province, Commander Xia said earnestly, “Little Ye, you can be respectful toward me in the army but not in life. You can talk back to Dad like Little Six.”

Ye Jian almost couldn’t hold her flight ticket firmly, so she could only nod her head. Her back was sweating again. “Take care of yourself. I’ll come back to visit you next time.”

When she was with the commander in chief, her heart’s ability to withstand stress would improve.

Chapter 2000 Winning Everything

Uncle Chen felt that this was good. From their conversation, he could tell how satisfied Commander Xia was with Ye Jian.

“The commander in chief is right. You have to respect him in the army. You have to respect him in life, but you don’t have to be afraid of him. Is there a need to be afraid when a family gets along harmoniously?”

After running around the capital, Ye Jian returned to the sniper base at seven p.m. She held a cup of hot water and told Principal Chen everything that Commander Xia told her about the Military Disciplinary Committee.

Principal Chen was very happy. “Commander Xia is Captain Xia’s father and your elder. His attitude is very important.”

After a slight pause, he said meaningfully, “Since you’re valued by the commander in chief, you’ll have a backer in the future. Do you understand, girl?”

Backer?

But she had never thought of finding a backer for herself. She only wanted to rely on her own hard work to win everything.

Ye Jian placed the cup of water on the table gently. There was some doubt in her eyes. "Uncle Chen, you mean to say that Commander Xia has been a big help to my mother's matter? Is that right?" "You can think of it that way." After talking to Ye Jian last night, Principal Chen knew that she still wanted to hide her matter from Captain Xia. She thought that it was her own personal matter and didn't want to trouble Captain Xia. Thus, Principal Chen knew that he had to lecture Ye Jian. It was the first time that Ye Jian heard Principal Chen say such words. She sat up straight. "Uncle Chen, are my current efforts not enough that I need a backer?"

There was a hint of anger in her calm tone.

Why was she angry?

Because she had lost terribly in her previous life!

But she admitted it. Who told her to be so disappointing and live a life of cowardice?

In this life, she almost risked her life to work hard. Did she still need a backer?

In order to reach Uncle Chen's sniping standard, she carried more than five kilograms of weight with both hands as training. Even if she was so tired that she could not even lift her arms, she would grit her teeth and continue training the next day just so that she could hold the sniper rifle steadily at any time and in any environment.

In order to identify the model of the gun with her eyes closed and to find the parts that belonged to the gun, she stayed up all night just to meet Grandpa Gen's requirements.

To have quick reflexes, she practiced listening as the bullet brushed past her. She learned to identify the trajectory of bullets and avoid being hit by them.

In order to attain top-notch skills, no matter the wind or rain, she would never stop training even for a day. She would never raise her hands to say that she wanted to rest because she was tired.

In order to become a qualified special forces soldier, she would work together with the male soldiers. She would do whatever the male soldiers could do. Even if the male soldiers could not do it, she would grit her teeth and do it.

The two elders, Grandpa Gen and Principal Chen, had taught her that it was better to rely on herself than anyone else. With the tragedy of her previous life, she deeply agreed with this and worked hard to rely on herself and not anyone else.

But now, Uncle Chen told her that it was important to have a backer.

Was it really that important?

Facing her doubts, Principal Chen was very sure and told Ye Jian truthfully, "That's right, Ye Jian. In the future, with Commander Xia as your backer, your path will be much smoother.

"I'm not saying that you shouldn't do anything in the future. I'm just telling you that if you have the commander in chief as your backer, some people will be afraid of you and won't make things difficult for you.

"But I think that your future will be smooth. I don't think that you no longer have to work hard anymore and should rely completely on the Xia family."

Hearing this, Ye Jian suppressed the anger in her heart. Uncle Chen wouldn't say such words to her for no reason. He must have his reasons. She needed to listen carefully.
