Chapter 3 Mom I am Married

After Ryan finished his meal, he sat in his wheelchair and walked out. A man at the door immediately went forward to open the door for him. His attitude was respectful.

“Where are you going?” Elena asked hesitantly. She saw that he was quiet and did not speak much. There was no intimacy between the two of them.

“Do I need to report you?”

Ryan turned around and saw that Elena wanted to follow him but stopped because of his words. His heart softened and he could not help but say, “I’m going to work at the company. If you are bored at home, you can take a stroll on the streets.”

Elena replied, “Okay!” She didn’t not know how to speak.

At this moment, the man behind Ryan took out a card. “Madam, this is the bank card Young Master prepared for you. You can buy whatever you want when you go shopping.”

Elena was slightly stunned. The value of her existence was to accompany him to eat every day, then go shopping to buy things?

If that was really the case, she might be able to use the money in this card to treat her mother in the hospital.

Although they had just gotten married and it would not be inappropriate for her to use his money now, and what she lacked the most right now was money.

“Thank you.”

She turned around with the card in her hand, but she did not see the disgusted expression on Ryan’s face the moment she took the card.

In the car, the driver looked at Ryan’s gloomy face and could not help but ask, “Sir, are you still thinking about Madam?”

“Find someone to follow her.” Ryan ordered coldly. This woman knew that he was disabled, but she was still willing to marry him. She definitely had a motive.

“Sir, I have confirmed that Madam is indeed the young lady of Lewis family, but not the previous one.”

The corner of Ryan’s mouth curled up, “Lewis family is really bold.”

“Do you want me to go to the Lewis family?”

“No need.” Ryan interrupted him, “This marriage is only for outsiders to see. I never hope that Lewis family can help me. No matter who I marry, it will be the same for me.”

At the wedding, he saw Amara. The woman who should have been his wife was flirting with his elder brother, Roman.

“Also, did you find out about Ella, who saved me half a month ago?”

He went to that alley to find some clues about that woman.

Unfortunately, there were no surveillance cameras nearby, so he could not find any clues.

“I’ve already gone to investigate, but there’s still no news for now. If it doesn’t work, I’ll send people to every house to find her!”

In the old district that was on the verge of demolition, many houses were already empty. The rest were people who had lived there since young, and they were unwilling to move.

“You need to verify those people’s identities as soon as possible.”

That night, not only his elder brother Roman’s men were involved in the assassination, but also a mysterious force.

“Yes!” The driver nodded and asked again, “Sir, what about Miss Thomas?”

Before he finished speaking, Ryan’s gaze landed on him, making him immediately shut his mouth, “Sorry, I shouldn’t have said too much.”

After the meal, Elena rushed to the hospital.

The people from the Lewis family promised to pay her mother’s the medical fees after the wedding. She wanted to see if the money had been transferred to her account.

The doctor said that after most patients were paralyzed for a year or two, their bodies would not be able to withstand it and they would suffer from organ failure. Her mother was lucky. She did not show any signs of organ failure, which increased the hope of recovery in the future.

Elena thanked the doctor and went to the ward.

“Mom, I am married. Forgive me for acting on my own accord, but you can rest assured that this identity is no different to me. Besides, Ryan treats me very well. Mom, you don’t have to worry about me.”

Although she knew that her mother couldn’t hear her, she was still used to sharing anything with her mother immediately.

Ryan’s lower body was crippled. This marriage was fake, so she was no different from before.

“Mom, you should rest first. I’m going out to buy some daily necessities.”

Elena took her things and walked out of the hospital.

She didn’t have that much money on her. She usually worked part-time to earn some money to pay for her mother’s medical expenses. This morning Ryan gave her a bank card, which really helped her a lot.

Elena bought some daily necessities. She heard a familiar voice at the door of a premium bag store.

“Their brand is not bad. The skincare products I bought before were all here.”

“Amara, your taste is good. Let’s go and take a look.”

The world was so big, why did she meet Amara wherever she went?

Elena did not want to meet her. She originally planned to hide for a while before walking out. She didn’t think that Amara would actually discover her.

“Younger sister, why are you here?”

Enemies were really easy to meet!
